CHINESE ARMY CLASHES WITH ROBBER BAND IN MOUNTAINS

Three Brigades Equipped With Machine Guns, Move Forward in Attempt to Rescue Foreigners Held by Brigands—Failure of Negotiations.

FOREIGN OFFICERS WATCH ADVANCE

Report Is That Outlawry Has a Political Aspect—Bandits Said to Be Anxious to Come to Terms With Government.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, May 26.—Machine guns and rifles tonight are attempting to force the release of 14 foreigners, including six Americans, held by Chinese bandits in the hills above Lincheng.

For three weeks crowds of official negotiators have labored in vain to free the captives, who were kidnaped from the Shanghai-Pekin express on May 6.

Now the mountain paths of the home district of Confucius, that for days have been filled with runners carrying terms back and forth between the Paotzuku fortress and the negotiators below, are being put to other uses.

Old Tien Chung-Yu, Tuchun or military Governor of Shantung, is having his way, and three brigades of his troops, with machine guns and two scouting airplanes, have plunged into the hill defiles to "dig the bandits out."

Already the soldiers have had two brushes with the outlaws, with fatalities on both sides.

Seeks to Cut Communications.

Gen. Tien has thrown his troops in in a wide circle about the bandit hotbed, and he is gradually tightening his stronghold, cutting the outlaws' communication and hoping to isolate the gang that is holding the foreigners.

Far above the clouds in the mountain prison, a crisis is believed to be approaching. The outlaws are said to be eager to make terms, but they fear the promises of Pekin. Also, they know Gen. Tien, who has a reputation for separating the heads of brigands from their bodies.

In what they declare is a final effort to come to an agreement, the brigands yesterday sent out a spokesman, accompanied by J. B Powell of Shanghai, one of the American prisoners. Hitherto, all overtures have failed because of the demand of the abductors that any agreement with the Chinese officials must have an official foreign guarantor.

The captives themselves are reported to be generally in good health, except the wealthy Italian attorney, G. D. Musso, who is suffering from an injured leg. Their clothing is poor, living conditions in their prison are bad, and food is none too plentiful.

Foreign Officers Watchful.

Behind the Chinese lines at Tsaochwang is a military commission of foreign officers, headed by Brigadier-General William D. Connor of the American army, which is investigating measures being taken by the Chinese Government for the release of the prisoners. The commission will report its findings and make any recommendations for action it sees fit to the diplomatic corps at Pekin.

The movement of troops toward the retreat of the outlaws followed statements in diplomatic circles that it had been definitely established that politics and no ordinary banditry was behind the holdup of the Shanghai-Pekin express.

It was intimated that one political faction, hoping to embarrass another, had instigated the crime. It was also hinted that the diplomatic corps was considering taking steps to seize the real and personal property of certain high official plotters in an effort to force action from the Pekin Government.

Only 3,000 Foreign Troops Available.

By the Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, May 26.—There are barely 3000 foreign troops, excluding Japanese, available in this neighborhood, the foreign military headquarters of North China, for an emergency move against the 10,000 bandits of Shantung Province. One thousand of these forces are Americans. There are 500 British troops.

LONDON CLAIMANT TO DAVIES' ESTATE GETS 3 PROPOSALS

His Own Life Story, However, Laments the Women Have Only "Mercenary Motives."

(Copyright, 1923.)

LONDON, May 26.—Capt. Harry L. Zeitun, claimant to the estate of the late Mrs. Julia Stowe Woods Davies of Excelsior Springs, Mo., says he has received three proposals of marriage since the news was published here.

He sadly remarks in his signed life story now appearing in the London Sketch that he fears all three ladies were "only actuated by mercenary motives." He also says:

"One came from an actress, whose name, if I mentioned it, would probably be familiar to my readers. Another from a well known society woman. The third from an obvious crook. These letters will not be answered. But at the same time they gave me the curiosity to think. For this reason: The lady who left me the fortune which will place me among the richest men in the country was married to a man who was her fourth husband. Her solemn declaration to me was that she married him because he threatened her with action for breach of promise and she wanted to avoid any scandal. I am therefore naturally cautious about any matrimonial venture."

Davies is contesting his wife's will in America.

ELECTRIC LIGHT FLASHES 'POLICE' ON COUNTY DEPUTY'S AUTO

Official Using Device for Week Says He Avoided Autoist's Claim of Mistaken Identity.

An electric light showing the word "police" with a hand held up as in the command to halt has been installed by Deputy Sheriff William Perkins of the St. Louis County night riders on the left fender of his automobile.

Perkins said that previously he had experienced trouble in arresting persons in automobiles, who might get the impression that he was a highwayman when he drove alongside and ordered them to stop. Now, as he ranges up to the automobile he wants to stop, he throws on the light by a convenient dash switch and in the week he has had the light has had no complications of "mistaken identity."

In less than three years six county deputies have been shot to death, and in several cases the murderer has said that he thought the officer was trying to hold him up. The Post-Dispatch last week quoted county officials favoring uniforms or some unmistakable means to identify peace officers of the county, and mentioned the suggestion by city night riders of such a signal as that used by Deputy Perkins.

POLISH DIET VOTES DOWNFALL OF GEN. SIKORSKI'S CABINET

Members Express Want of Confidence in Ministry by Division of 279 to 117.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, May 26.—The Polish Diet has adopted a vote of want of confidence in Gen. Sikorski's ministry, 279 to 117. This means the collapse of the Sikorski Cabinet.

Adoption of the vote came after debate on the provisional budget, the majority of the Diet members refusing to approve the secret service funds. Beside the Nationalist, all the non-Polish Deputies voted against Gen. Sikorski.

$9,999,000 STOCK SALE BY SACKS' COMPANY HALTED

State Wishes to Consider Plan for Stockholders to Sell Property Listed at $1,575,000 to Concern.

ONLY $1000 WORTH OF STOCK IS SOLD

Republic Petroleum Co., Originally Formed by William Sacks, Is Involved in Matter.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 26.—A campaign for the sale of $9,999,000 of stock by the Republic Petroleum Co. of St. Louis, of which William Sacks is the heaviest stockholder, is being held up while the State Finance Department determines whether it will approve certain transactions by which stockholders of that company would sell property to it for aggregate considerations of $1,575,000.

At present the Republic Petroleum Co. has aggregate assets of $1000, according to the application on file with B. T. Hurwitz, Deputy State Commissioner of Finance, that being the proceeds of the 100 shares of common stock, par value $10 a share, which have been sold. The company was incorporated under the laws of Delaware in 1920 as the Sonia Petroleum Co., later becoming the Sacks Petroleum Co., and now having become the Republic.

Sacks holds 90 of the 100 shares which have been sold, five of the other 10 stockholders, who own a share each, being St. Louisans. The other 10 shareholders, who have invested $10 each, are: John Henderson, president of the West Virginia Coal Co.; John F. O'Neil, vice president of the Republic National Bank; F. A. Banister, a real estate dealer; L. E. Fischer, a civil engineer, and A. E. Kallemeier, an oil auditor, all of St. Louis, and J. W. Coast Jr. of Tulsa, Ok.; D. P. Freel of Fort Worth, Tex.; Walter R. Kimseey, president of the First National Bank of Mount Carmel, Ill., and Emerson Broyles and John Maxwell of Waco, Tex. These men constitute the officers and directors of the company, Coast being the president, Freel the vice president and general manager, Kallemeier the secretary and Kimseey the treasurer. Sacks is a director.

This company, it is said, originally was formed by Sacks to take over Louisiana holdings, which were otherwise disposed of, however. So the Republic lay dormant until a short time ago, when a plan of consolidating in it the oil holdings of several of its stockholders was conceived.

Sacks Would Get $225,000 Cash.

Sacks desires to sell to it for $500,000 two tracts of land, at Waco, Tex., an oil refinery there and 102 tank cars. Of the $500,000 he would receive $225,000 in cash, $200,000 in stock of the Republic Petroleum Co., and the latter would assume $70,000 of obligations on the property taken over.

Sacks and John Henderson own together leases on a considerable acreage on which are a number of producing wells, in the Herron City field of Texas, which they want to put into the Republic pot in exchange for $225,000 of stock, provided the Republic will assume liabilities on property of $275,000.

President Coast and the Alimo Co. of Oklahoma want to trade in leases on 1415 acres in Washington County, Ok., on which the company claims 43 producing wells and 78 desirable drilling prospects, in exchange for $300,000 in cash, $150,000 in stock in the Republic and assumption by the latter of liabilities on the property of $150,000. The cash to Sacks would be in 51 notes of $5000 each, payable monthly from July 15 next to May 15, 1924, while the cash to Coast would be $25,000 at once and the balance in $5000 notes payable monthly from June 15 next to April 15, 1924.

Samuel J. Caudill of Tulsa, a geologist and appraisal engineer, has filed with the State Finance Department a report on the Coast-Alimo properties, valuing them at $1,176,528, and the E. W. Freeborn Engineering Co. of New YoYrk has filed a similar report on the Sacks and Sacks-Henderson properties, fixing their value at $1,293,039, an aggregate of $2,469,567.

Commission to Be 20 Per cent.

The originators of this plan have entered into a contract with Colfax Gibbs of Chicago, under which Gibbs is given the exclusive right to sell the $9,999,000 unissued of the $10,000,000 common stock with which the Republic was incorporated, it being agreed that Gibbs will receive a commission of 20 per cent on each sale.

Gibbs and Coast were here this

NON-STOP FLIGHT, GULF TO CANADA, MADE BY CROCKER

Pilot Covers 1400 Miles From San Antonio to Mount Clemens, Mich., in 11 Hours, 54 Minutes.

ENCOUNTERS 29 DISTINCT STORMS

Forced to Fly Low as 100 Feet During Much of Journey in Order to Observe Landmarks.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., May 26.—It is just a day's journey from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada.

Lieut. Harrison G. Crocker of Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., proved this today when without a stop he drove a specially built De Haviland plane from Ellington Field at Houston, Tex., to Selfridge Field, near here, in 11 hours and 54 minutes. The distance, measured in time between the Gulf and Canada is less than that, for Lieut. Crocker swung over Canadian soil at the mouth of the Detroit River just 11 hours and 29 minutes after he had hopped off from Ellington Field at 5:21 o'clock, central standard time, this morning.

Set New Flying Record.

Incidentally he set a new flying record, being the first birdman to make such a distance at one hop while traveling alone.

Lieut. Crocker's victory was won against odds probably as great as any airman ever encountered. During 800 of the 1400 miles of his journey his highest altitude was 500 feet and during a large part of the 800 it was as low as 100 feet, due to clouds.

Between the Texas-Louisiana border and Defiance, O., he encountered 29 distinct storms. As he entered the storm area, the flier was forced nearer and nearer to earth, finally flying as low as 100 feet in order to observe landmarks and thus keep on his course. Seeing a group of tall trees looming directly in his path, Lieut. Crocker caused his plane to shoot rapidly into the skies.

All But Lost in Storms.

It was necessary for him to attain an altitude of 3000 feet before he could see the sun. He drove for an hour by compass, descending finally when he observed a rift in the clouds. During the remainder of the ojurney to Defiance the flier skimmed along at the very ceiling of the clouds, passing through one terrific electrical storm after another. The rain beat into his face while the lightning crackled just overhead. Inatermittently he made out landmarks and thus continued his dash northward.

At times he was all but lost in the storms, but his compass and flier's instinct sent him streaking ahead, at tiems dangerously close to the tree tops.

Only once during the 800 miles of struggle against the storm-area, did the engine falter. It sputtered and threatened to die in the midst of a terrific electriial disturbance over Louisiana. Then it went bravely on and did not miss another beat until the Lieutenant shut off the power in a graceful landing at Selfridge.

Faced Danger of Crash.

Officers at the local field were a unit in declaring that had the engine stopped while Lieut. Crocker was flying at so low an altitode, the plane wosld have crashed.

When the Lieutenant set off for the north he carried with him a parcel of sandwiches, a bottle of coffee, a quantity of chocolate and a quantity of drinking water. He ate two sandwiches and drank a small quantity of water, being too busy fighting the storm to partake of the remainder.

At times Lieut. Crocker attained a speed of 130 miles an hour. At others his speed was cut to below 100.

Brigadier-General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the Air Service, was one of the first to congratulate the flyer.

"This flight is most significant," he said. "It shows that the United States can place a flying unit in the center of the country and have fighters of the air on any of our coats on 11 hours' notice.

Lieut. Crocker was tired from his long trip, and his muscles were so stiff that he accepted help in climbing from his machine.

The main fuel tank, containing 240 gallons of gasoline, was drained when the plane still was 20 minutes from Selfridge Field, and the aviator was obliged to draw on his reserve tank, containing 28 gallons.

Broke Record for Non-Stop Flight for a One-Man Plane.

CITY'S GREATEST DISASTER TOOK PLACE 27 YEARS AGO TODAY

Tornado That Caused 140 Deaths Here Occurred on May 27, 1896.

St. Louis' greatest disaster, the tornado of May 27, 1896, occurred 27 years ago today. The city hospital, which stood on its present site, was wrecked, and several large churches and public halls in South St. Louis were demolished or damaged. In St. Louis, official figures later showed 140 deaths resulting immediately from the disaster, and a property loss of more than $10,000,000. The number of buildings entirely destroyed was 321, and the number suffering considerable damage was 7263.

East St. Louis was also affected by the tornado, which wrecked the tower at the east end of Eads Bridge. Train service was suspended, and the city was in darkness and without transportation, wires being down and the streets being obstructed. A heavy rain prevented the spread of numerous fires. The relief requirements, which were large, were met by local contributions.

MAIL BAG BELIEVED TO HOLD $45,000 TAKEN IN STAUNTON, ILL., HOLDUP

Postmaster and Clerk Kidnaped on Street in Afternoon by Five Men and Released Near Edwardsville—Robbers Continue Flight in Direction of St. Louis.

PAYROLL PRESUMED TO BE PART OF LOOT

Money Had Been Ordered From Bank Here to Meet Semi-Monthly Pay Day Tomorrow of Coal Miners.

G. A. Roberts, postmaster of Staunton, Ill., 40 miles northeast of St. Louis, and his money-order clerk, Harry Keuhner, were robbed of a mail pouch believed to contain a $45,000 payroll, and kidnaped on one of the main streets of Staunton at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

The robbers, five in number, took them to a point south of Edwardsville before releasing them, and then continued their rapid flight in the direction of St. Louis.

The money believed to have been taken was intended for the semi-monthly pay day, tomorrow, of mine No. 2 of the Mount Olive and Staunton Coal Co., Staunton. It was ordered sent from a St. Louis bank on Wabash accommodation train No. 50, which left Union Station at 3:40 p. m. and reached Staunton, a coal mining center of 6000 population, at 5:22 p. m. Postmaster Roberts had been notified the shipment would be made on that train, as that was the train the company had ordered it sent on.

Uncertain About Shipment.

Postoffice Inspector Frank Goshey of St. Louis, who was notified of the robbery, said last night that it might not be ascertained immediately whether the money shipment actually was made, but that it was presumable it had been if the local postmaster was on watch for it. Postmaster Alt said he would be unable to determine whether the shipment was in the pouch the robbers obtained. It was understood the shipment was from the Federal Reserve Bank, but officers of that institution said they could not determine anything about it last night. It is possible that other valuable mail matter, too, may have been in the pouch.

Postmaster Roberts met the train personally in accordance with his custom when expecting a payroll. While routine mail was loaded in a truck by the regular messenger, he and Keuhner took a locked pouch, which they presumed to contain the payroll, and put it in the postmaster's Ford sedan. Roberts had a sawed-off shotgun on the floor beside him, and Keuhner had a .45-caliber revolver in his pocket.

Started to Drive to Bank.

The Wabash station is in the eastern part of the town, on the Litchfield road, which passes the north side of the town square, six blocks west. Roberts started to drive for the Staunton National Bank, which faces the square, to put the shipment in the vault till tomorrow. It is believed the robbers, who had a Cadillac touring car painted either blue or green, were lurking in the vicinity of the station and followed the Ford.

The robbers' car drew alongside the sedan three blocks west of the station, while its occupants fired five or six revolver shots which shattered the sedan windows. The breaking glass cut Roberts' face and blinded him. He stopped his machine and the assailants surrounded it.

Cursing the officials roundly, the robbers demanded to know why they had not stopped sooner, then ordered them to lie on the floor in the back of the Cadillac. This they did, but Keuhner was slow and one of their captors hit him on the head with the butt of a revolver, rendering him unconscious for several minutes. Two robbers rode in front with the pouch and three in back, with their feet on Roberts and Keuhner, but later one of these climbed up forward. Keuhner's revolver was taken from him.

Alarm Sent Out.

The robbers speeded on west, having stopped hardly a moment and turned south at the town square on the Springfield-St. Louis concrete road. A number of persons coming from the train had witnessed the

GIRL AND BROTHER KIDNAPED AND AUTO STOLEN, THEY SAY

Seized at Clayton and Denny Roads and Driven Into Illinois by Two Men, Helen Guetgemann Avers.

Two of seven men at 2 p. m. yesterday seized an automobile driven by Miss Helen Guetgemann, 19 years old, of 2729 South Broadway, at Clayton and Denny roads, and drove Miss Guetgemann and her 15-year-old brother, Fred Guetgemann Jr., who was with her, to a point several miles south of East St. Louis and put them out in the road, driving away in the automobile, according to their story to the police.

Miss Guetgemann and her brother made their way to a farmhouse and induced a farmer to take them back toward East St. Louis. At Maplewood Park, two miles south of East St. Louis, F. H. Brandt, who conducts a resort there, took them from the farmer and drove them in his automobile to the East St. Louis Police Station. Two East St. Louis policemen brought them to police headquarters here.

Miss Guetgemann said she was taking her brother to a boarding school in Kirkwood when she observed ahead of her a Ford coupe in which four men were riding and three men clinging to the outside. She passed the coupe and as she neared Denny road it was driven past her and then stopped. Four men, each with a drawn revolver, alighted, she said, and two of them ordered her and her brother into the rear seat, while they took the front seat.

Warned Not to Make Outcry.

The men admonished her not to make an outcry on pain of death, she related, and they drove her south on Denny and across Manchester road, with the Ford coupe and its five occupants following.

At a point near the Meramec River, the exact location of which Miss Guetgemann does not know, the Ford coupe became mired. Her car, a new Dodge sedan, was driven on for some distance and then turned back to aid the Ford, but found that the Ford had been driven away.

Then the two men in the front seat, who carried on a conversation in undertones, drove east on Manchester road to Grand boulevard, north to Chouteau avenue and thence eastward and across the Municipal Bridge to East St. Louis. She said the men drove around East St. Louis in an aimless manner, she thought, stopping at several places to get drinks and always warning her against an outcry.

Took $4 From Her Purse.

After getting several miles south of the city, on a lonely road, they took her purse, containing $4.40, returned 40 cents for carfare and put her and her brother out, remarking that they would leave her car in the vicinity of her home about 1 a. m. Sunday, "after we get through with it," they explained.

Their father, Fred W. Guetgemann, conducts a wall paper business at the South Broadway address. He had reported the disappearance of his daughter and son to the local police at 5 p. m. and again at 7 o'clock. He met them at police headquarters about 8 o'clock, shortly after they were taken there from East St. Louis.

SOVIET REIGN GRIPS RUHR; SPEEDY BERLIN OFFER URGED

Germany's Industrial Chiefs, Alarmed by Spread of Communist Control, Tell Cuno They Are Willing to Make Big Concessions Concerning Guarantees.

FEAR REVOLT'S SPREAD TO MIDDLE GERMANY

General Strike Making Headway and Red Flag Is Reported Flying From Public Buildings in Many Towns.

(Copyright, 1923.)

BERLIN, May 26.—With a Communist reign spreading like wildfire in the Ruhr, the irreconsilable Industrialists have informed Chancellor Cuno they are willing to make far-reaching concessions concerning guarantees needed to subsidize the new reparation proposals.

The fact that the Gelsenkirchen municipal authorities were forced to recognize the Soviet regime after long deliberation between Communists and bourgeoisie has completely upset the confidence Berlin political circles and industrial magnates still had in the solid front of passive resistance.

The Industrials are now afraid the whole Ruhr may slip into Communist control. The last 48 hours have brought reports from Essen, Bochum, Dortmund, Hamborn and numerous other towns indicating the Communists are making speedy headway. They are setting up small Soviet States in the Ruhr similar to that at Gelsenkirchen.

Appeal for Police Denied.

All the self-defense bodies are rapidly being disarmed and demobilized by well-organized armed Communist companies. The general strike is spreading. The red flag with the Soviet star is reported flying from many public buildings. Armed Communists wearing green arm bands act as sentries.

It is reported that Prussian Minister of the Interior Severing requested Gen. Degoutte, French Commander in the Ruhr, to permit Germany to send police into the Ruhr to put down the Communist uprising. It is said the General refused.

Herr Cuno realizes that unless prompt action is taken, prices reduced or wages raised, the Communist revolt is likely to spread to middle Germany, especially Saxony, which, next to the Ruhr, has the strongest Communist district in Germany.

Proposals by Industrials.

As a result of this situation, it is learned, the Industrials have proposed the Chancellor pay toward reparations an annual sum equaling what the Government can extract from all state-owned enterprises after they are put on a rentability basis. The Industrials estimate these enterprises, including the railroads, forests, customs, taxes, etc., ought to yield 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 gold marks after the rentability reforms are put through on a real business basis.

All German business and industry would then unite in guaranteeing to double the sum, so that more than one billion gold marks would be available annually to pay the interest on loans Germany might float in the world's financial markets, when reparations are fixed and the mark established.

Dortmund Workers Send Appeal to Socialist International.

By the Associated Press.

DORTMUND, May 26.—Chaos is inevitable in the Ruhr unless intervention comes immediately, says a telegraphic appeal sent to the new Social Workers' International at Hamburg by the Dortmund general trade unions. The message says: "The Ruhr occupation has intensified conditions of distress and has aided revolts. Bloody fighting has occurred in several places."

300,000 Workers Out in Ruhr, German Officials Report.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, May 26.—The workers and Communists' strike in the Ruhr continued spreading today and German officials estimated that 300,000 men were out. The strike was extended from the Dortmund region, where many mines and metal works are closed, into the Bochum mining district, where 31 shafts and 15 metal works are shut down and 70,000 men are idle.

At the union mine between Dortmund and Bochum 20,000 men are striking. The German authorities have received reports that demonstration strikes also have become effective in unoccupied Germany bordering on the Ruhr, the men going out at Solingen, in the British area, and at Hamm and Elberfeld.

Three of the trades unions at Dortmund sent a message to the Socialist internationale at Hamburg saying the situation was growing more serious and that there would soon be chaos unless something was done.

The workers' police force of 400 men began functioning at Gelsenkirchen today. The men are not uniformed but wear arm bands of red and white stripes. They carry large clubs, but no firearms.

The success of this attempt to provide a policing force has caused the workers in Bochum, Dortmund and Wattenscheid to try and organize similar forces. The Workmen's Council here has decided that its membership shall not strike, and the Essen district is unaffected.

The most serious disorders overnight were at the Germania mine, where two visiting agitators seeking to foment a strike were killed in a clash with the police.

The City of Essen has been fined $1,800,000 by the French because of sabotage incidents, and has been notified that if the fine is not paid within a week, two additional city officials will be sent to jail. The Burgomaster is already in prison for refusal to obey French orders.

Science Held Not to Be Antagonistic to Religion

Bishops, Cabinet Members and Educators Sign Statement in Which They Refer to Science's "Sublime Conception of God."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A joint statement holding that there is no antagonism between science and religion was issued here tonight as representing the conclusions of a group of 40 distinguished Americans on a subject which recently has aroused bitter controversy.

The names of two Cabinet officers, Secretaries Hoover and Davis; three Bishops, and many other leaders in the political, business, scientific and religious world are attached to the declaration, which was prepared by Dr. R. A. Millikan, director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics at Pasadena, Cal.

"The purpose," said an accompanying explanation, "is to assist in correcting two erroneous impressions that seem to be current among certain groups of persons. The first is that religion today stands for medieval theology; the second that science is materialistic and irreligious."

Text of Statement.

The statement follows:

"We, the undersigned, deeply regret that in recent controversies there has been a tendency to present science and religion as irreconcilable and antagonistic domains of thought, for, in fact, they meet distinct human ideas, and in the rounding out of human life they supplement rather than displace or oppose each other.

"The purpose of science is to develop, without prejudice or preconception of any kind, a knowledge of the facts, the laws, and the processes of nature. The even more important task of religion, on the other hand, is to develop the consciences, the ideals, and the aspirations of mankind. Each of these two activities represents a deep and vital function of the soul of man, and both are necessary for the life, the progress and the happiness of the human race.

"It is a sublime conception of God which is furnished by science, and one wholly consonant with the highest ideals of religion, when it represents Him as revealing Himself through countless ages in the development of the earth as an abode for man and in the age-long inbreahing of life into its constituent matter, culminating in man with his spiritual nature and all his God-like powers."

Signers of Document.

Besides Secretaries Hoover and Davis, those whose names were attached to the statement included Bishops William Lawrence and William Thomas Manning of the Episcopal church and Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal church; Dr. Charles D. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution, who is president of the national Academy of Sciences; President Angell of Yale; President Burton of the University of Chicago; Dr. William J. Mayor, David F. Houston; Frank O. Lowden; John Sharp Williams; Rear Admiral William S. Sims; Julius Kruttschnitt; Frank A. Vanderlip; William Allen White; Victor F. NEW YORK, May 26.—The New York Sun, owned by Frank A. Munsey, this afternoon carried the following news story:

"The Globe and Commercial Advertiser, one of the largest evening newspapers in New York, has been purchased by Frank A. Munsey. No details of the purchase have been made known.

"It is not known what Mr. Munsey's plans are for the future of the Globe. Nor is it known that he has made any plans as yet, as the purchase of newspapers by him has become almost a habit."

holdup and an alarm was telephoned to towns south on the highway. However, persons in these towns replied that the Cadillac had gone through seemingly at a mile a minute. After passing through Edwardsville the robbers stopped, a half mile south of there, and ejected Roberts and Keuhner at the crossing of the Illinois Terminal Railroad. The victims returned to Edwardsville in a passing machine and repotred to Postmaster Spilman.

H. Otto Panhorst of Staunton, auditor of the Mount Olive & Staunton Coal Co., said last night that the payroll had been ordered sent on Wabash train No. 50, he believed, from the Federal Reserve Bank. It was intended to pay about 700 miners.

In 1918, when Panhorst was making up the payroll in the company office at Staunton one day, two robbers took $13,000 from him. They were not caught.

CHINESE ARMY CLASHES WITH BANDIT BAND IN MOUNTAINS

1,000 French, and small detachments of foreign marines and volunteers.

The opinion in foreign quarters here is that it would be inadvisable to use force against the Shantung brigands except as a last resort.

Military action, however, may be undertaken by the foreign authorities if the problem of the release of foreigners is reduced to a choice between the death of the captives from disease or at the hands of the bandits.

The present foreign forces here are believed to be inadequate to offer resistance to the brigands. Foreign quarters hold that the powers should reinforce their detachment in preparation for future developments.

HEARST SAYS HE WOULD BACK FORD FOR PRESIDENCY

Manufacturer Would Be Nominated if It Was Left to Popular Vote, He Declares.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, May 26.—Henry Ford will have the backing of William Randolph Hearst for the presidency, Hearst said so today when he declared that Ford would be nominated for President if it was left to the people.

"If the presidency of the United States was to be settled by popular vote today," said Hearst, "Henry Ford would be President, and I am with him because of this. He is the man that should have all the people's support.

"But the only way that Ford can ever run for the presidency will be to run as an independent candidate," said Hearst. "I am a great believer in independence and for that reason want to stand with him in his great fight for recognition.

"Clean and Above Board."

"The political machinery of both the national parties, the Democratic and Republican alike, is in the hands of the old-line reactionaries. They control the delegates and the party. While they may not be able to nominate the man that they want at their convention, they can prevent the nomination of the man that they don't want, and that man I have learned is Henry Ford. This is because Henry Ford has been clean and above board and has come out and told what he thinks of every one, and a man who has made himself by his thrift and energy.

"I believe that the Republican party will go down to one of the most decisive defeats in its history in the coming presidential election, and the so-called foreign policy of the Republican party will be responsible for its defeat.

Opposed to Court Plan.

"I am unalterably opposed to the entry of the United States into the League of Nations or to the World Court, which is nothing but a stepping stone to the League of Nations, and I believe the great majority of Americans are with me in this. When a fly gets one foot tangled up on the sticky flypaper that fly is pretty likely to end by having all its feet tangled up, and if America gets one foot in the World Court America will end by having all its feet tangled up in the League of Nations.

"America has problems enough to settle at home without going out of her way to try to settle the problems of the world. There need be no rigid policy of splendid isolation carried out to any absurd degree which is what the partisans of the World Court and the League of Nations picture as the only alternative to nonmembership in those institutions, but there are American problems affecting Americans that are crying for solutions and that will demand the best constructive brains of America to work out."

AIRPLANE LIQUOR LINE PILOT AND 126 GALLONS SEIEED

Arrest of Flyer, Believed to Be Operating Between Mexico and St. Louis, Made in Texas.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 26.—Traffic on an airplane liquor line, supposed to be run from Mexico to St. Louis and Kansas City, was interrupted yesterday with the arrest at Sabinal, 50 miles from here, of a man who gave his name as Charles E. Williams. His home is in Wichita, Kan., and until recently he lived in Fort Worth, Tex., he said.

Williams was arrested when he landed to replenish his oil supply. Sheriff Johnson, with a deputy and State ranger, laid a trap for him on the Malone Ranch, when they learned that nonmilitary plane was coming in from the South. The last time a plane landed at this point, a mile and a half from Sabinal, an attempt was made to capture the pilot, but officers arrived too late. Citizens of Uvalde report that nonmilitary planes have been seen to pass almost every week.

The officers seized 120 gallons of whisky labeled "Old Taylor" when they made the capture. The prisoner was taken to Uvalde, the county seat, and placed in jail. Charges will be filed against him in the State courts, Sheriff Johnson said. The whisky and the airplane will be turned over to Federal agents.

STILLMAN OFFERED SETTLEMENT, SAYS WIFE OF BANKER

Declares Terms Included Clearing of Baby Guy's Name, but Stillman's Attorney Rejected Agreement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GRADE PILES, Quebec, May 26.—Advising Flo Leeds to get her rights with a gun and speaking of motherhood as their one place in common. Mrs. Anne U. Stillman today said it was to help him live down the "story" that she was willing to bring up Jay Ward Leeds with her sons. Mrs. Stillman said she was willing to take Jay Ward today, tomorrow or any day, although she said she felt that any little boy would be happier with his mother than with anybody else. She also doubted that Flo Leeds would give up the boy.

The "story," Mrs. Stillman admitted today at her camp at Grande Anse, "sounds" none too good and is a handicap to "all Mr. Stillman's children." It is not only a handicap, she said, but a hard thing to buck against and requires strength. However, Mrs. Stillman said she thought her children would profit by the records and example of the father, and that in time the "story" might prove to their advantage, as it would force them to make their way in the world and not be dependent on their father's millions.

She is very proud of the mark set at Milton Academy by James "Bud" Stillman, and said it had helped Alexander, her second boy, in his application for admittance over a "lot of other applicants."

No Possibility of Engagement.

Mrs. Stillman said that she was recovering from the effects of a minor operation. Fowler McCormick, son of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, arrived with her yesterday but Mrs. Stillman denied, with a smile, any possibility of an engagement. She said that her 43 years against McCormick's 20 should dispel any possibility of her marrying, although she refused to deny that she might do so some time.

However, she said: "One thing at a time is my motto at present." She said her only purpose now is to beat Stillman.

Mrs. Stillman was much pleased when first told by a Post-Dispatch representative of the affirmation of $90,000 yearly alimony by the Appellate Court. She revealed today for the first time that Stillman, in person, had made overtures for a settlement with John E. Mack, legal guardian for Baby Guy, now four and a half years old, who has been at Grande Anse since April. She said these overtures were satisfactory to Mack and her, clearing Guy's name, but that the agreement had been rejected by Attorney Sullivan of the banker's legal forces, whose motto, she warned Flo, is, "discard into the dirt and into the garbage can."

Mrs. Stillman also named a woman, who, she said, was the one who displaced Florence Leeds in her husband's affections. The woman's husband, Mrs. Stillman said, formerly was an official in Stillman's bank. She said she had known of Stillman's attentions to the woman two years, but had no other evidence and so did not bring her name into the divorce suit. Mrs. Stillman paid her respects to both Stillman and Fred Beauvais. She said:

Will Not Speak to Beauvais.

"There is nothing I can ever have to say to either Fred Beauvais or Stillman. They are blood brothers, except that one is red and one white. They are a couple of polecats."

Mrs. Stillman said her husband could be "very nice," and had been recently when he personally returned a telegram sent to him by mistake by Miss Oliver, Baby Guy's nurse. The telegram told of the baby's condition and Stillman immediately forwarded it to Mrs. Stillman, she said, for he knew she was anxious.

Mrs. Stillman said that Fred Beauvais, co-respondent, named by her husband, had made an unwelcome appearance at the Stillman camp before her arrival. She said she would have nothing to do with him, and that his presence was most undesirable.

TURCO-GREEK PEACE IS AGREED TO AT LAUSANNE PARLEY

War Threats in Near East Ended at Dramatic Session of Conference, With Settlement of Reparations.

By the Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, May 26.—Peace instead of war in the Near East was the welcome result of a dramatic session of the Lausanne conference held today at Ouchy Chateau to settle the Turco-Greek reparation controversy. Complete agreement was reached, and, as this was the only remaining problem between the Greeks and the Turks, hostilities, which it was feared might involve the Balkan countries, have been averted.

The United States, through Joseph C. Grew, the Minister to Switzerland, played an important part in the settlement. Grew's efforts for peace, which continued throughout the night and today, are regarded by the conference delegates as having helped considerably in preparing the way for the agreement the European Powers have been seeking for a fortnight.

The happy ending of the war threats is expected favorably to influence the remaining Near Eastern negotiations and force an accord on the points still disputed.

Incidentally, it will further the proposed revision of the Turkish-American treaties, which are still in the stage of informal conversations.

The principal points in today's agreements are:

Greece admits that she owes an indemnity to Turkey, while Turkey renounces enforcement of payments; the two Powers agree to rectification of the boundary between Eastern and Western Thrace and to the restoration of ships seized from one another since the armistice; the Turks agree to waive indemnity in view of Greece's precarious financial condition, and Greece consents to the cession to Turkey of Karagatch and the railroad from Karagatch to the Bulgarian frontier.

U. S. Joins European Plea.

The meeting today began in the same atmosphere as attended the collapse of the previous conference on Feb. 4. The principal delegates, notably Sir Horace Rumbold, Great Britain, and Gen. Pelle, France, solemnly appealed to Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, to waive all claims to cash indemnities and accept the offer of Karagatch.

Grew, who until early in the morning, had conferred with Ismet Pasha and M. Venizelos, counseling moderation, added America's voice to that of Europe. He pointed out that both Greece and Turkey had been engaged in a long struggle, and both were confronted with problems of internal organization demanding self-controlled statesmanship. Turkey, he said, seemed determined to reorganize her national life on broad, modern, democratic lines, and it would seem inconsistent that she would thrust this object aside in favor of war.

Settlement Follows Long Debate.

Grew pointed out that Greece faced the terrible refugee problem and direly needed national reconstruction; it was unthinkable she would abandon this to take up arms. He appealed to both countries in the interest of their future happiness and prosperity not to spare efforts at a solution.

The settlement followed a long debate, after which Ismet Pasha and M. Venizelos shook hands and sat down and chatted in the most friendly manner.

Venizelos thanked all the plenipotentiaries, as well as the American Minister, for their efforts toward peace. Ismet Pasha remarked that he hoped Turkish conciliatory attitude would help to influence the settlement of the remaining problems between Turkey and the allies.

The Jugo-Slav delegate said he opposed a change in the Thracian frontier, but would not push his objection to the point of endangering peace.

SALOONKEEPER, SHOT IN HOLDUP OF HIS PLACE ON MAY 16, DIES

George Sutter, 34, Was Wounded When He Involuntarily Turned at Intruder's Demand.

George Sutter, 34 years old, of 1453A North Market street, died at the city hospital last night of a bullet wound inflicted by a robber who entered his saloon at 2202 North Fifteenth street on May 16 at 10 p. m.

Sutter was counting his day's receipts with his back to the bar when he heard a voice commanding "hands up." He involuntarily turned. The robber interpreted the movement as fraught with peril for himself and fired. The bullet penetrated Sutter's right groin ranging downward.

The robber ran out a rear door. Sutter sank to the floor and reached for his own revolver which was on a nearby icebox. He obtained it, but was too weak to fire. Sutter was unable to give the police a description of the robber, who was alone. There was $31.15 in the cash register which the robber did not get.

PARESIS, LONG BELIEVED TO BE INCURABLE, YIELDS TO SCIENCE

Medical Journal Reports New Drug, Tryparisamisde, Was Effective in 50 Cases.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Paresis, long found incurable, has at last yielded to treatment, according to a report of more than 50 cases mentioned in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association published today.

Tryparisamisde, a new drug, which is injected into the blood and is carried to the spinal fluid which contains the diseased organisms, which affect the brain, is the source of the great benefits found through the research and experimental work off Dr. A. S. Lovenhart, head of the department of pharmacology at the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. W. E. Lorenz, chief of the Wisconsin Psychiatric Hospital. The report declared two men suffering with paresis who would have died within two months had been returned to their families.

rison G. Crocker, flying the same plane used by Lieut. James H. Doolittle, in his Gulf to Lakes flight, today broke the world's record for a non-stop flight for a one-man plane formerly held by Lieut. Doolittle, according to records of army aviation officers at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill.

Lieut. Crocker flew approximately 1400 miles in his non-stop flight from Ellington Field, Houston, Tex., to Selfridge Field, Detroit, his time from taking off to landing being 11 hours and 54 minutes.

Doolittle's Record.

Lieut. Doolittle, on Sept. 5, 1922, flew from Kelly Field, Texas, to San Diego, Cal., a distance of 1240 miles, in the same plane used by Lieut. Crocker in 11 hours and 10 minutes.

At the time Lieut. Doolittle was trying for a non-stop flight from Florida to San Diego, but landed at Kelly Field. His total elapsed time from Florida to California with the one-stop was 22 hours and 35 minutes and the distance covered 2275 miles.

On Nov. 3 and 4, 1922, Lieut. Oakley G. Kelly and Lieut. John A. Macready made a record for a nonstop flight for two men when they flew from San Diego to Indianapolis, a distance of 2060 miles. They were attempting a transcontinental flight and were forced down by engine trouble.

On May 2 and 3, 1923, the same men, however, shattered their forformer record and made the longest continuous flight on record when they went from New York to San Diego, a distance of 2520 miles, in 26 hours and 50 minutes.

Transatlantic Flight.

The best record made by any foreign flyer was accomplished in July, 1920, when Capt. John A. Alcock and Lieut. Arthur W. Brown of the British Royal Air Force, flew 1960 miles from St. Johns, N. F., to Clifden, Ireland.

A comparison of records being made today with those of a few years ago shows the marvelous strides made in aviation in the past 10 years. In 1912, Robert F. Fowler managed to fly with many stops in between, from San Diego to Jacksonville, Fla., in 122 days. The year previous Galbraith C. Rogers, in a Wright model pusher biplane, started from Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 17 and reached Pasadena Nov. 5.

Lieut. Crocker, a North Dakotan, Entered Air Service in 1918.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 26.—First Lieut. Harrison G. Crocker of Kelly Field, who made a nonstop flight from the Gulf to Canada, is a native of North Dakota and entered the Air Service in 1918. In 1920 he flew from Laredo, Tex., to Fayetteville, N. C. In September, 1922, he made a flight from San Antonio, Tex., to Fargo, N. D.

BALDWIN ASKS FAIR DEAL FOR RAILROADS

New President of Missouri Pacific Is Welcomed to St. Louis by Prominent Speakers.

Expansion of the railroad facilities of the country is urgently needed, to meet a steadily increasing volume of freight traffic, but to to get this expansion the railroads must have fair and liberal treatment, L. W. Baldwin, new president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., stated last night in an address before the Missouri Pacific Club, composed of company employes, at the quarters of the City Club. It was his first appearance before the organization.

He presented figures showing freight volume had increased 100 per cent in 20 years, while main track mileage had increased only 25 per cent.

"The railroads have had a very hard decade," he said, "due to legislation and regulation. The railroads did not fall down during Government control, but the situation has cost all of us a great deal of unhappiness and cost the public a great deal of money. I hope they got all they want of it. We still are paying the bills."

Baldwin recalled the Missouri Pacific had authorized expenditure of $15,000,000 for improvements in 1923, including $6,00,000 for 100 new locomotives, and said such improvements would be continued by the Missouri Pacific and other roads, if the lines were permitted to earn enough money to meet these expenses.

Talks welcoming Baldwin to the Missouri Pacific and to St. Louis were made by W. Frank Carter, John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce and a director of the Missouri Pacific; Paul W. Brown, editor of America at Work; E. J. White, vice president in charge of the legal department, and H. C. Abbey, president of the club. About 450 employes attended.

RALPH PULITZER REVIEWS FATHER'S NEWSPAPER IDEALS

Tenth Anniversary of School of Journalism Founded by Joseph Pulitzer Celebrated —Possibilities of Publicity.

VANDERLIP SPEAKS ON STANDARDIZATION

Says Newspapers Resemble a Ford Factory and Pleads for More Stress on the Personal Note.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—American publishers and editors pay too much attention to the selling and too little to the making of modern newspapers,—Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, told graduates and undergraduates of the Columbia School of Journalism gathered at the Hotel Commodore tonight to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the founding of the school by Joseph Pulitzer.

"Never before has the public expected so much from the press," declared Ralph Pulitzer, son of the school's founder. "You will find that the public's criticism is not directed at the technical efficiency of journalism, but at its strength or weakness judged by ethical standards. And you will find that in its new and fine humility, the self-searchings of the press are directed toward ethical, and not technical, improvements."

Vanderlip, for many years a reporter and financial editor, in comparing modern newspapers with those of 35 years ago, declared:

"The difference between them is like that between a ready-made and a tailor-made suit. There is too much standardization. Publishers seem to pay too much attention to wood pulp and not enough to brain pulp. In their efforts to cover the news of the world, newspapers now resemble a Ford factory. And what a vast amount of inconsequential stuff—morsels for moralizers—is printed in the modern journal. Despite its wide scope, it frequently seems unedited in comparison to years ago when newspapers were less of a waste paper basket for copy."

Praises World Editorial Page.

Declaring that the New York World "has the best editorial page in America," Vanderlip said:

"The editorial pages of a great many newspapers might be discontinued without great harm. Many of them smack too much of editorial assignments and round table conferences. They do not bear the passionate conviction that should be the distinguishing feature of the true editorial.

"Washington needs to be journalistically discovered," continued Mr. Vanderlip.

"I should like to start a daily or a weekly there that should tell the truth about the vast amount of news that is untouched—a sort of glorified Town Topics. Because of the 'hand-out' that comes so easily, the Washington correspondent is not what the old reporter used to be. Sometimes I wonder if we haven't gone as far as we can go with the present type of newspaper that attempts to give the news of every ant hill.

"What we would welcome, I know, would be greater expression of the personal note in journalism and analysis of the news of the day, not the standardized newspaper, made necessary by the influence of the business office, which seems to be a distinctive character of modern American journalism."

Dr. Talcott Williams, the school's first director, in whose honor a bust was unveiled in the lobby of the building today: Frank Ward O'Malley, R. E. MacAlarney, Melville E. Stone of the Associated Press and Dr. John W. Cunliffe, the present director of the school, were the other speakers.

Speech of Pulitzer.

Asserting that Joseph Pulitzer believed neither in a "journalistic jitney" nor in a "journalistic joy ride," Ralph Pulitzer said:

"We have come together to celebrate the tenth anniversary of an experiment in applied idealism. For I am sure you all know that Joseph Pulitzer's aspirations for the School of Journalism went beyond the successful learning of newspaper technique, devoted though he was to the craftsmanship of his profession.

Journalism as Public Service.

"'Forever unsatisfied' was his motto, and he would have been unsatisfied, indeed, if this school had been able to pride itself on nothing higher than the proficiency of its graduates. His cherished hope was that these graduates would carry with them into the press of our country not only a fresh enthusiasm for the power and dignity of journalism as a profession, but an abiding pride in the obligation of journalism as a public service.

"The journalism which sought no higher task than the buying of news from its reporters and the selling of it to its readers, he would have dismissed along with other forms of brokerage as an honest enough way to earn the daily bread, plainly no crime, but certainly no career. He was, I believe, the first journalist fully to recognize the stupendous possibilities of publicity as a public force. He realized, as any one not a hypocrite must realize, that publicity is the property out of which journalism makes its profits.

"But to him publicity was infinitely more than that; it was the power which could rough-hew justice, leaving the later, detailed chiselling to courts and legislatures. Public opinion could, in an instant, bring praise to the humble and censure to the arrogant; food to the poor and fear to the powerful.

Use and Abuse of Publicity.

"But Joseph Pulitzer realized the abuses as well as the services of publicity; that it could be handled with the reverence of a priest or the greed of a parasite; that it could be used to elect a President or fill a circus. He believed that that great engine of publicity, the newspaper, had, on the one hand, a higher function than that of a journalistic jitney, and on the other hand, a nobler course than that of a journalistic joyride.

"It was because he believed in the responsibility that should go hand in hand with the power of the press that he wanted to recruit its ranks each year with young men who had not only been given the technical equipment for their profession, but who had been imbued with enthusiasm for that profession, who did not, as unfortunately many men regard it apologetically, as a mere pot-boiling makeshift to sink into and to scramble out of as nimbly as possible, but should dedicate themselves to it with pride in its opportunities, not only for professional distinction, but for unselfish public service.

Ethical Improvement Sought.

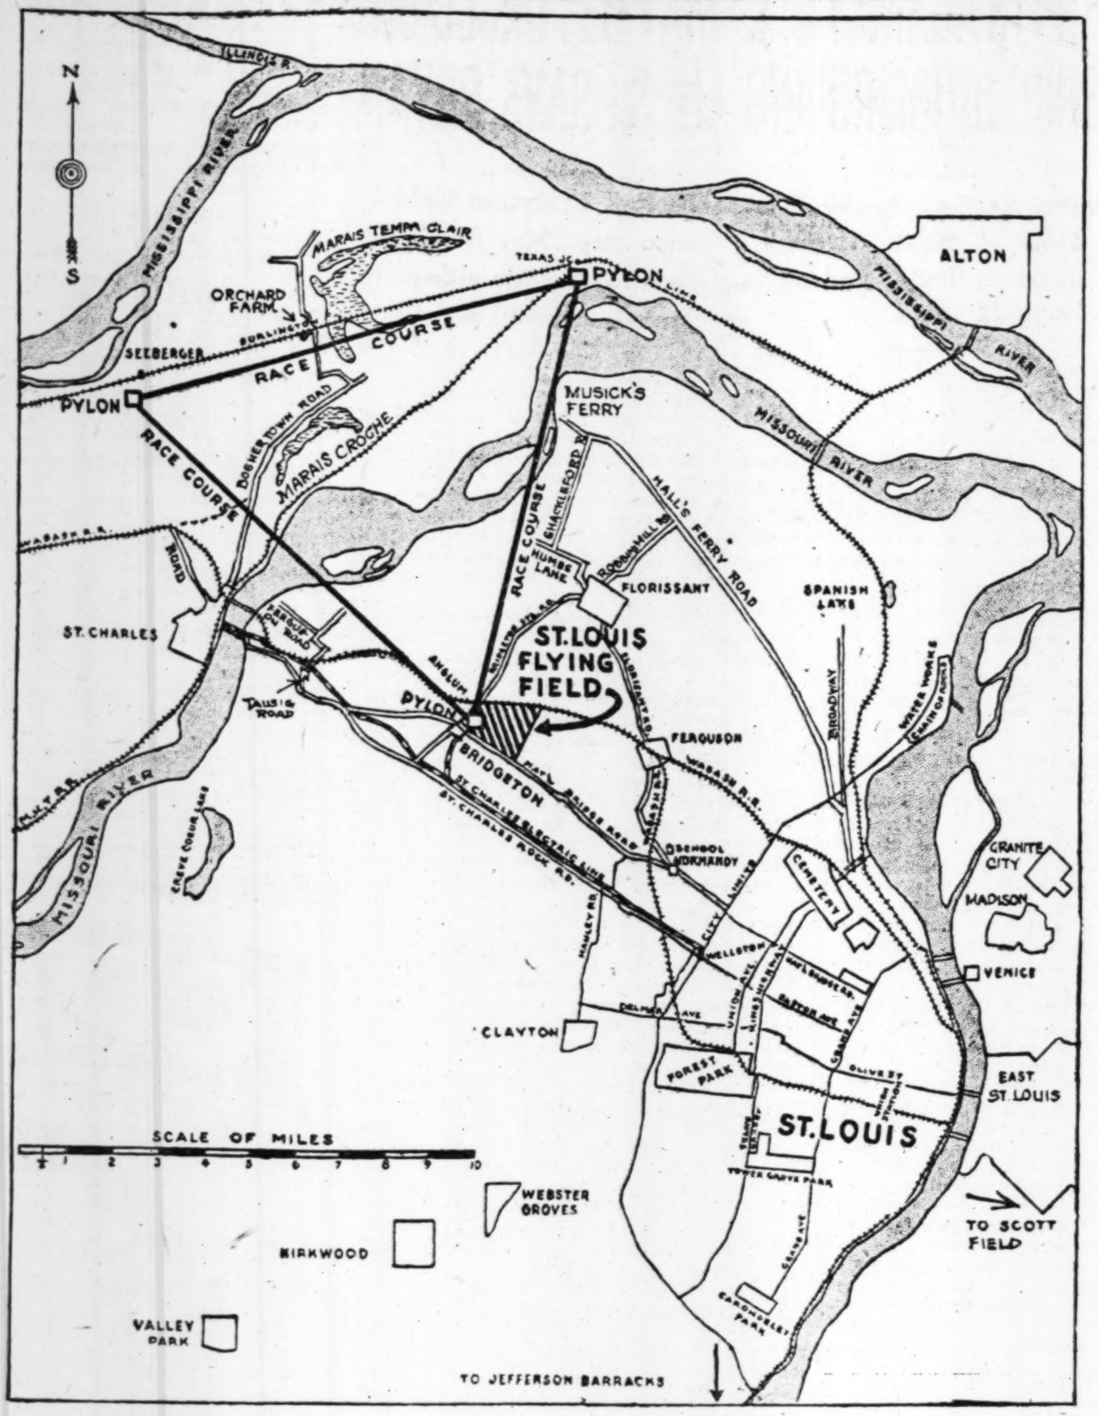
"It is this spirit which is your chief value to the press. Your technical training is highly creditable to the school and to you, but it is of negligible importance except as it serves to carry into journalism those aspirations and those ideals for ever-increasing honesty, decency and courage which should be yours. The time is curiously ripe for you. Never before has the public exepected so much of the press. Never has the press expected so much of itself. And you will find that the public's criticism is not directed at the technical efficiency of journalism, but at its strength or weakness, judged by ethical standards. And you will find that in its new and fine humility the self-searchings of the press are directed toward ethical and not technical improvements.

"It is in this spirit that the new National Society of Editors has organized and begun its work with an effort to standardize journalistic ethics into a specific code. It is to reinforce this spirit that you received your training.

"This is what Joseph Pulitzer cherished in his heart when he planned for the School of Journalism, which started 10 years ago. These 10 years have been amply long enough to prove that the preparatory technique of journalism can be ably taught and well learned. You undergraduates have alumni of whom you have a right to be proud. You alumni have an undergraduate body whose promise is worthy of your patronage.

"But 10 years is a short time for principles to prove that they are more than policies and for practices to grow into traditions. Ten years is a lifetime for ideas, but only an infancy for ideals. And it is by the failure or success of its ideals that in the next 10 years the School of Journalism will finally prove itself a failure or an inspiring success."

Map Showing Official Triangular Course for the Airplane Races to be Held Here Next October



MANY readers will wish to preserve this map of the course for the International Air Races, to be held here Oct. 1, 2 and 3, in order to pick vantage points in the surrounding country to park their automobiles and watch the flyers. The map is copied from the official program issued yesterday, and shows the relation of the course to the city.

The center of activities, naturally, will be St. Louis Field at Bridgeton, where thousands of spectators are expected to attend by trolley car and automobile. Nearby roads, which likely will have the heaviest traffic, from which views of the racers may be had, are the Natural Bridge, St. Charles and Bridgeton Station. Humes lane and Shackleford road, extending beyond Florissant, are near the course.

The best direct road to an excellent spectators' location is Hall's Ferry road to Musick's Ferry, Missouri River. This is a hard-surface road which starts at Broadway, Baden. The Boshertown and Marais Temps Clair road, running north from St. Charles, crosses two legs of the course, but is rough in stretches. There are other rough roads north of St. Charles which the more adventurous may traverse. The Taussig and Ferguson roads, branching from the St. Charles road, east of the Missouri River, also approach the route.

The course, an equilateral triangle, lies as follows: North from St. Louis Field across Florissant Valley, for several miles along the Missouri River and turning close to the junction of the Burlington and M-K-T railroads; southwest, paralleling the Burlington, past Portage des Sioux and Orchard Farm, turning beyond Seeberger; southeast, close to Boshertown, across the Missouri River, to the field.

The course is 50 kilometers, or 31.07 miles, long, each leg being slightly over 10 miles. It will be flown in a counter-clockwise direction, as a horse race is run. A pylon of wood, 60 feet high and surmount- three turns of the course.

On page 4 of the Editorial Section of today's Post-Dispatch will be found a full description of the events that will be decided over this course.

GIRL OF 14 DROWNED IN RIVER NEAR CARTHAGE, MO.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, Mo., May 26.—The flood waters of Spring River claimed their first victim this afternoon when Pearl Baker, 14 years old, was drowned after a horse drawing a buggy in which she and her grandmother and an aunt were riding, backed off a bridge approach at the northeast limits of this city. The two older women escaped, the water not being over their heads, but the girl was washed away by the current. The body was recovered at 5 o'clock 100 yards below the bridge an hour later.

The child was a daughter of Harry Baker, a local garage employe. The mother is dead and the girl lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Minerva The river had receded from its high flood stage of Thursday night and was running bankful.

FATHER VRANIAK REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN NEAR SEDALIA

Brother of Missing Priest and Detective Investigating Reports—Story of Salesman.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., May 26.—Frank J. Vraniak, brother of the Rev. Father J. A. Vraniak, missing Virden (Ill.) priest, and J. W. Diamond, Springfield (Ill.) detective, today were told that a man wearing the garb of a priest who said he was from Virden, Ill., was in this vicinity May 4 and 5.

The information was obtained at Odessa from Jesse Van Winkle, a motion picture film salesman. He said he "picked up" the man near Fayette recently and gave him an automobile ride to Boonville, and later gave the same man a ride from Pilot Grove to Sedalia.

Vraniak and Diamond have been here for a week investigating reports that the Rev. Father Vraniak has been in this vicinity. They said today they believe information they have obtained may prove of value. Father Vraniak was last seen in St. Louis or Venice, Ill., March 5.

TRAFIC AT BORDER HALTED

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., May 26.—Mexican immigration authorities halted traffic across the International Bridge connecting El Paso and Juarez, Mexico, at 8 o'clock tonight. They acted on orders from Mexico City. The authorities said the order resulted from alleged resumption of open gambling with the consent of Juarez municipal authorities.

Americans in Juarez returned to the American side without interference. Shortly after the bridges were shut, gambling was closed and at 10 p. m. Federal authorities reopened the bridges.

INQUIRY REQUESTED INTO LIQUOR RAID BY FEDERAL MEN

Prohibition Agents Said to Have Violated Law in Search of Basement Used by Miss Anna Jud.

SEIZED STOCK WILLED TO HER BY FATHER

Raid Made Following Seizure of Hootch in Saloon Adjoining Property—Higgs Asks Investigation.

Formal request for an investigation to determine whether prohibition enforcement agents violated Federal laws in an alleged illegal search Friday of a basement at 2003 Pestalozzi street, used by Miss Anna Jud, who resides in a flat above, and the seizure of liquors willed to her by her father, who died in April, 1910, will be requested of United States District Attorney Curry by Vance Higgs, attorney for Miss Jud, Higgs said yesterday.

Higgs outlined the circumstances as he understood them to Curry yesterday, orally, and was advised by Curry that the matter would be "looked into," if complaint was made in writing. Higgs said he would do this.

Federal statutes provide punishment by either a fine or a jail sentence for prohibition enforcement agents or others who make searches and seizures other than in manner prescribed by law and when authorized by a warrant.

Warrant for Saloon Property.

When city detectives entered the saloon of Oscar Adwell, 2001 Pestalozzi street, Friday afternoon, they found three men drinking from mugs what appeared to be home brew. This incident was reported to Federal prohibition enforcement agents and a warrant was issued authorizing search of the saloon, the basement under it, a hallway leading from the saloon and rooms adjoining the hallway.

In the portion of the basement under the saloon officers found what they described as 369 pint bottles of home brew; eight gallons and 45 two-ounce bottles of "moonshine" whisky and 40 gallons of wine.

Miss Jud, attracted by the commotion, arrived in the basement as the search was in progress. Officers, asking her purpose there, were told she wanted to make sure no damage was done a large quantity of canned fruit she had stored there.

She was asked about the contents of a locked cabinet. "It contains my property," she said. The officers asked if she had a key. She produced it and opened the cabinet. In it were found about two cases of gin, bonded whisky and kimmel.

Produces Will Giving Her Liquor.

Miss Jud said the liquor was willed to her by her father, Jacob Jud, and exhibited the will containing a special provision that a stock of liquor go to Miss Jud and her three brothers and sisters. She said he had not used any of the liquor, but that some had been given from time to time to her mother, 72 years old, an invalid.

The enforcement agents confiscated the liquor. Higgs maintains that this confiscation was illegal because Miss Jud had established lawful ownership. Higgs also says that search of the cabinet was illegal as the search warrant did not refer to that part of the basement.

As the enforcement agents left the basement they directed Miss Jud to appear before the United States Commissioner yesterday prepared to make bond under a warrant charging violation of the prohibition law. She did appear, in company with Higgs. No warrant was issued. Government agents retain possession of the liquor.

Warrants were issued against Adwell and against Joseph Schmidt, his bartender.

EX-POLICEMAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS HIMSELF WITH PISTOL

Lester W. Speed, Wounded When Showing Automatic Bought for Wife, in Critical Condition.

Lester W. Speed, 26 years old, of 4555 Lucky street, a salesman, accidentally shot himself in the left breast below the heart while exhibiting a .25-caliber automatic pistol at the home of Arthur A. Benda, 4727A Greer avenue, whom he was visiting with his wife, at 9:45 p. m. last night. After the accident, Speed drove to the Missouri Baptist Hospital, where he collapsed. His condition is critical.

Speed was showing the automatic, which he had bought for his wife, and had taken the magazine clip out, when the pistol discharged, following his manipulation of the barrel. Speed, it is said, thought there were no more cartridges in the pistol.

Speed is a former motor cycle policeman. He joined the force in 1919 and about a year later suffered an accident while chasing a speeder which resulted in a permanent injury to his leg. He left the force at his own request because of physical inability resulting from the accident.

Bones of Saints, Sealed for a Century, Exposed

Thousands of Excited Pilgrims Attend Ceremony as Traditional Reliquary of Virgin's Mother Is Opened.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, May 26.—The golden reliquary of the Saint Marys-of-the-Sea at Camargues has been opened for the first time in a century.

In the presence of a great crowd shouting supplications and almost delirious with religious ecstasy, the mitred heads of three archbishops inclined slowly over the opened caskets and reverend fingers lifted into view blackened thigh bones and fragments of ribs believed to be as old as the Christian religion.

They are worshiped as relics of Mary, mother of the Virgin, and of Mary, mother of the Apostles James and John.

According to tradition the two women were set afloat by the Jews after the crucifixion with their black servant, Sarah. According to legend their boat grounded at Camargues where the Rhone flows into the Mediterranean.

It is ten centuries since the bones were placed in the church. It is customary to examine them publicly every century or two and verify them with a historical list.

The faithful of South France, devoted to the two Marys, came in rustic wagons and on foot. Gypsies, who worship the dark-skinned Sarah as their patron saint, came from all over Europe in rickety caravans, beflagged and decorated with flowers.

The reliquary was lowered slowly from the roof arch of the chapel, where it hung by two cables. A surging mob struggled beneath, reaching up in passionate anxiety to touch the descending coffers.

"Vive les Saintes Maries," cried the white-skinned worshippers. "Vive Sainte Sarah," growled the gypsies, their brown faces twisted with emotions.

For 24 hours the closed reliquary was surrounded by a sobbing mass of humanity, confiding to the saints their anguishes and desires. Meanwhile, the Archbishops went in solemn procession to bless the waves, as is customary. Then, at 4 p. m., the reliquary was hoisted again into the arch.

A wild festival followed. Wines flowed, worshipers were merry and the police begged well-dressed sightseers to take themselves and their valuables away.

WOMAN AND MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF ARSON

Fire in County, Which Constable Was Investigating When Shot to Death Figures in Case.

Mrs. Hattie Quaintance, 48 years old, of 4476 Cook avenue, former rooming house proprietor, and Joseph Weisman, 46, of 4320 Washington boulevard, former proprietor of the Alamac Hotel and an ex-convict, are held at police headquarters for St. Louis County authorities under warrants charging arson in the third degree. Search is being made for another man, whose identity is known, wanted on the same charge.

Weisman was arrested yesterday and Mrs. Quaintance was taken into custody Friday night. The charges against them result from a fire in a residence at 8003 Gravois avenue, March 7, last, several days after Mrs. Quaintance moved from the place. Firemen found a bowl of gasoline at the foot of the stairway in the front hallway. A line of gasoline-soaked bed clothing led from the bowl of gasoline up the stairway and through the hall on the second floor.

Subsequently Mrs. Quaintance made claim for $11,115 damages to personal effects under a fire insurance policy for $10,000, which she had taken out Oct. 21, 1922, less than five months before the fire.

Deputy Constable Edward P. Neu of St. Louis County was investigating to determine how the bowl of gasoline was placed in the house and by whom, when he was shot and killed the night of April 3 in front of a parish house at 8240 Gravois road by an unidentified person from one of two automobiles which he had stopped. An occupant of a car took Neu's revolver from him and shot him with it.

Her Effects Found at Weisman's.

Attention of investigators centered upon Mrs. Quaintance and Weisman when they learned that some of her personal effects had been moved from the Gravois road house to Weisman's residence several days before the fire.

Weisman admitted this to detectives yesterday. He said that on March 3, the Saturday before the fire, Mrs. Quaintance sent seven trunks and a hat trunk to his residence by an expressman at 11 p. m. Weisman said that three hours previously a man, who now is being sought by police, drove to the Weisman residence in Mrs. Quanitance's automobile, bringing two wash tubs and a basket filled with personal articles, including china, cut glass and linens. The man told Weisman, according to the latter, that Mrs. Quaintance was going to California and wanted to store her goods.

Weisman said that on March 4 he and three men, with Mrs. Quaintance and her daughter, Marie, motored to Chicago. Weisman said he returned on the train the next day and shortly afterward sent the trunks to various storage houses. Warehouse receipts for the trunks were turned over to police and the trunks were taken to police headquarters.

Refuses to Identify Articles.

They were examined yesterday by detectives in the presence of Mrs. Quaintance. She refused to identify articles listed in her insurance claim as having been destroyed in the fire, which were found in the trunks, police declare. She did, however, identify some articles which were in the trunks but had not been listed in the insurance claim.

Mrs. Quaintance denied knowledge of the fire. She said she first learned of it two days afterward when she called up a man on Gravois road, near the house which burned, from Chicago to ask for the address of a mutual friend in that city. She said he volunteered information about the fire. She returned from Chicago a week later.

HYDE JOINS MOVE TO INCREASE WHEAT PRICE

Governor Enumerates Farmers' Troubles in Call for Conference.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 26.—Gov. Hyde today cast his lot with the Governors of Kansas, Minnesota, Ohio, Oklahoma and Illinois in a campaign to increase the price of wheat, the first step in which will be a conference in Chicago June 19 and 20. In his call for this conference Hyde declared that higher prices for the grain can come only with increased demand.

Besides the Governors enumerated, the call is signed by United States Senator Capper of Kansas, Senator-elect Copeland of New York, former Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union; Sherman J. Lowell, master of the National Grange, and E. O. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The call is as follows:

"More than 10,000,000 men, women and children of the United States are directly interested in the production of wheat.

Cause of Dissatisfaction.

"The dissatisfied condition of a large portion of our agricultural population today is very largely due to the price of wheat, which, measured by the cost of production or by the purchasing value of the farmer's dollar, is lower today than it has been in half a century.

"Failure to bring relief to the farmer from his present situation will have a serious effect upon every other industry and upon the consuming public, for permanent prosperity of the whole nation depends upon conditions being satisfactory upon the fields and farms that support the nation's physical life. A fair price for the wheat crop means purchasing power to the farmer, smoking chimneys for American factories, a full dinner pail for American workers.

"The disparity between our land values, taxes and labor, our standards of living and those of other wheat producing nations of the world makes it impossible for us to sell our supplies profitably in the open markets of the world. It is not a market we need for our wheat, but a profitable market. Realizing that higher prices for wheat can come only through increased demand, an outlet for our surplus production must be found in the United States by educating the public taste to consume more wheat and the companion product of farm production which accompany it in consumption.

Conference June 19 and 20.

"To the end that we may find a satisfactory solution for the situation which now confronts the United States, seriously imperilling the structure on which our prosperity is built, we call a national wheat conference to be publicly held in Chicago, June 19 and 20, 1923.

"To said national wheat conference we invite representatives of organizations of agriculture, commerce, elevators, railroads, millers, makers, retailers, also of educational bodies, and of all other industries related to the production, manufacture and consumption of our wheat crop, together with individuals interested in the solution of economic questions affecting the nation."

TROUBLE COMES AS 'JOHNNY' JONES GOES ON HIS WAY

East Alton's Multiple Job Holder Leaves Note Assigning Assets to Building and Loan Co.

When "Johnny" Jones, civic leader, church man and proprietor of the village grocery, found himself beset by financial difficulties and could not see his way out he put his two little girls in his old automobile and drove away, leaving the Johnny Jones store without a head, the East Alton Building and Loan Association without a secretary, the Board of Education without a president, the Baptist Church without a deacon and treasurer and the Sunday school of the same church without a superintendent.

He has not been seen or heard from since he went chugging out of town Thursday night and nobody knows where he has gone, but it is conjectured that he may be on his way back to his old home in England, where his motherless girls can have the care of relatives and he can make another start.

There was genuine concern in East Alton Friday morning when it was discovered that "Johnny" Jones was gone. He had long been the town's most useful citizen and it was not easy for the residents to see how they were going to get along without him. For, in addition to the numerous offices that he filled, he was the friendliest man in East Alton, always willing to give credit at his store, or loan money or go security or do any of the unwise things which fall to the lot of a town's friendliest man, to his ultimate undoing.

Sold, but Didn't Collect.

Jones had been in business for years and was rated as a good business man. That is, he could make friends and sell goods. But he was not a good business man in the matter of making collections. His laxness in that respect made him more friends. He could not bring himself to press these friends for what they owed him and things went from bad to worse.

Early last week E. L. Dunlap of the State Auditor's Department dropped in to look over "Johnny's" books as secretary of the building association. His books were in bad shape. It is doubtful if he knew how his accounts stood, but he knew he would be called upon for an accounting which he did not have the courage to face.

Before Dunlap concluded his examination he was called away for a day or two. Jones seized the opportunity to get away. He locked up his store Thursday night and went home and wrote a letter to Hank Feldwisch, asking him to take charge of the store, return goods to wholesalers, collect what he could, pay the debts and turn over the balance, if there was one, to Jones' brother, Albert. He also wrote to Dunlap, expressing confidence that his assets would make good any discrepancy that might be found in his building association accounts.

Tells of Hopeless Fight.

In the letter to Feldwisch he spoke of his hopeless fight against ever-increasing debts and of his determination to leave everything and make another start somewhere else.

After posting the letters, he placed his daughters, Naomi, 11 years old, and Ester, 13, in the automobile, and drove away. His housekeeper thought they had just gone for a ride, but they did not return.

Next day it was found that he had mortgaged his home for $2000. When this became known George Smith, president of the building association, obtained an attachment on his assets for $8000 to cover his liability to the association. The George M. Ryrie Wholesale Grocery Co. of Alton obtained an attachment for $1100, and the Haas-Lieber Grocery Co. of St. Louis one for $500.

Elks in Charge at Cemetery.

The Rev. L. R. Call will officiate at the church service. The service at Bellefontaine Cemetery will be in charge of St. Louis Lodge No. 9, B. P. O. Elks, of which Mr. Steigers was past exalted ruler.

Mr. Steigers, who was 77 years old, and who had been connected with the business department of the Post-Dispatch almost continuously since the late Joseph Pulitzer founded the paper in 1878, died of arterio-sclerosis, Friday afternoon, at his home in the St. Regis apartments, after an intermittent illness of more than a year, in the course of which he suffered three apoplectic strokes. In two intervals of partial recovery, he was able to attend to business. He is survived by a niece and nephew, Miss Clotilda Brown and Norman S. Brown, and a cousin, Mrs. J. N. Stegall, all of whom were at his bedside when the end came. Miss Brown had made her home with Mr. Steigers since the death of Mrs. Steigers a year ago.

FORMER PROHIBITION OFFICIALS ARRESTED

Arrests Follow Indictments Against Man Who Was Ohio Director and Agent.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., May 26.—Fred Counts, former Federal prohibition agent for the Cleveland district, and his brother, Attorney Frank Counts, were arrested today at the order of United States District Attorney A. E. Bernstein on secret indictments by a Federal grand jury charging them with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act and to defraud the Government by obstructing prohibition enforcement. At almost the same time Government operatives for Bernstein seized Joseph A. Shearer, former Federal prohibition director for Ohio, and Samuel A. Hoskins, politician of Southern Ohio, as they arrived here from Columbus.

Shearer and Hoskins are charged in the same secret indictments with participation in the same alleged conspiracy to violate the Volstead act and furnish protection to others, according to Bernstein.

The Counts brothers are involved in the indictments with allegations of "protection" extended to members of the Auerbach Alcohol Ring, allegations which refer to tens of thousands of dollars said to have been paid by the "ring" for the approval of the permits for withdrawal of alcohol.

In the overt acts listed under the first count of the indictment, Attorney A. Frank Counts is charged with receiving approximately $5000 from Louis Auerbach, through two other men named as Benjamin H. Schwartz and Samuel Selker, "on or about May 25, 1920."

From that date to the middle of the following June, he is charged with receiving approximately $15,000 from the same source at the rate of approximately $4000 a week. Another $40,000 was paid him in the same manner and at approximately the same rate from June 25 to Jan. 11, 1921, it is charged.

KU KLUX KLAN HOLDS NIGHT SESSION NEAR EAST ST. LOUIS

Many Persons From St. Louis, Including Women, Present at Gathering Around Illuminated Cross.

Members of the Ku Klux Klan of St. Louis, East St. Louis and towns in Southern Illinois near East St. Louis held an open air meeting, presumably an initiation, last night on a farm near Schmidt's Mound, about seven miles from East St. Louis on the Collinsville road.

The klansmen went to the place in street cars and automobiles, many of the latter bearing Missouri license tags and containing women. They drove through a private drive eastward from the road about 500 yards, to an eminence upon which shone an illuminated cross. The entrance to the farm was guarded by eight men who challenged those who sought to enter.

The road near the farm was congested with automobiles for several hours.

FRENCH HONOR GOOD-WILLERS

Hundreds of Children With Flowers Bid U. S. Delegates Farewell.

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE, May 26.—Hundreds of school children gathered at the quay, with their arms full of flowers, early this evening, to bid farewell to the American Good-Will delegates when they sailed for home on the steamer Paris. The Americans were presented with a written address just before they boarded the steamer. Earlier in the day the Good Willers were bade farewell at Paris by the American colony and the State officials.

MANY VISITORS VIEW FLOWER SHOW EXHIBITS

Entrants at Garden Club's Amateur Display Total Nearly One Hundred.

The purpose of the Garden Club of St. Louis in giving a competitive flower show each year in the Missouri Botanical Garden is to teach city dwellers that back yards can be enchanted places—that the closest approach to wonderland for grownups is the land of growing things.

The measure of the club's progress toward accomplishment of its purpose is the number of the show's entrants and the attendance. By either gauge, the annual show, which opened yesterday in the garden, had a seven-league stride. The number of amateur gardeners who put their blooms in competition last year was about 30. The number this year approaches 100. The exhibits of nonmembers of the club nearly doubles those of members. The count of visitors during the afternoon—the show opened at 2 o'clock—was not out of comparison with that of the garden's own shows which keep the turnstiles a-click.

So numerous are the entries that the absence of background given to previous shows by massed exhibits of commercial florists is not noted. The 1923 show is exclusively amateur.

Angert Wins Medal.

The city's chief seasonable blooms are iris, peonies, Oriental poppies, columbines and Delphinium (larkspur). Accordingly, the most coveted prize of the show, the Garden Club of America's bronze medal, is the award for the best exhibition of these varieties. It went to Eugene H. Angert, Clayton and Kent roads, St. Louis County. Angert's Oriental poppies, remarkable for length and sturdiness of stem and dimensions and intensity of blooms, won first in their class, as they did last year. He also won first with his iris, of which he had about 30 named varieties, and with his Delphinium. Mrs. Edward Simmons of Hanley road, St. Louis County, captured the blue ribbon among the peonies and Mrs. Clinton W. Whittemore of Forsythe road among the columbines. This competition was open only to members of the Garden Club.

There also was competition in the same five classes among non-members. Mrs. John H. Overall of Kent road, St. Louis County, won the ribbon for the best six peonies of the same variety—festiva maxima, great, shaggy, white blooms, touched at the heart with a vivid pink.

Blue ribbon among the iris went to Dr. Henry Schwarz of 440 North Newstead avenue; among the poppies and Delphinium to Mrs. Robert Lee Morton of Webster Groves and among the columbine to Mrs. E. M. Funston of Hampton Park.

The other coveted prize, the St. Louis Art League's award for the best display of cut perennials, went to Mrs. Sam Fordyce, who exhibited a huge bowl filled with 30 different varieties of outdoor flowers. Mrs. Sam Fordyce won another ribbon with an unusual display of single peonies.

Increase in Other Entries.

Expansion of the show was easily marked in another class—arrangement of flowers in bowls as table or living rooms decorations. Last year there were 24 entries. This year there are 57. The competition is divided into four classes according to the uses to be made of the bowls. The winners were Mrs. F. C. Sharpe of Clayton road with a low bowl with yellow iris, buttercups and headed grass; Mrs. A. Brooker of Cella road with a dining table centerpiece of blue iris and spiraea; Mrs. Eugene H. Angert, a luncheon centerpiece of blue iris and tamarack, and Mrs. J. F. Shoemaker of Country Club Lane, a dainty arrangement of pink larkspur and blue queen's lace flower.

Amateur landscape architects vied in a new competition—that of design for garden and grounds surrounding a residence. There were two classes, one for adults and one for children. Mrs. John Anderson won in the first-class and W. J. Polk Jr. of Florissant in the second. There were 10 entries.

Model Flower Garden Displayed.

The gardeners of the Missouri Botanical Garden have set up just to the east of the floral display house in the out-of-doors a model for a flower garden designed to fit into limited space and conform to the further restriction of small expense. A small oval grass plot is surrounded by a hedge of red cedar. A path that cuts through the center is terminated at one end by a gazing globe and at the other by a bird fountain. On either side of the walk are two regular beds filled with pink geraniums and two beds of ageratum (catspaw) bordered with white sweet alyssum. The garden was created in one week.

The Botanical Garden also is displaying near the entrance of the floral display house 150 named varieties of iris.

Effort to attract competition in vegetable-growing has not had the same success as the flower competition. The blue ribbon for range of products and soundness and size of specimens went to Mrs. Charles Rice of Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue.

Judges of the flowers were Ernest Strehle, superintendent of park greenhouses, Julius Bourdet and W. H. Kruse.

The garden will be opened today at 10 o'clock and will remain open until 10 p. m.

HARDING ITINERARY COMPLETED, THREE WEEKS' STAY IN ALASKA

President to Attend Boys' Picnic in Seattle—Return Trip Through Panama Canal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Harding plans to become a boy again for a few hours while visiting Seattle, Wash., in July after his trip to Alaska.

The chief executive today accepted an invitation extended through former Representative Humphrey of Washington, to attend the fourth annual boys' picnic given by the Elks' lodge of Seattle. The finishing touches were put upon the itinerary for the President's trip today by Walter F. Brown, chairman of the Departmental Reorganization Commission, and Admiral Hugh Rodman, U. S. N., retired, in consultation with the executive, but announcement was withheld until next week.

The completed itinerary is understood to provide for a stop of a day or two in Zion National Park after the visit to Salt Lake City; for a stay of the same in Yellowstone National Park; for embarkation at Seattle for the Alaskan voyage; for return to Seattle after the Alaskan visit, and for embarkation at Los Angeles for the return trip through the Panama Canal and by way of Porto Rico. The major features of the trip are much as have been disclosed from time to time, except that the stay in Alaska has been lengthened to nearly three weeks instead of the two weeks' visit originally planned.

5 POWERS RAISE POINTS AGAINST U. S. SHIP LIQUOR RULING

Representations Are Made by Great Britain, Spain, France, Italy and The Netherlands.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON May 26.—The views of five foreign Governments with reference to the recent Supreme Court decision prohibiting liquor on foreign ships in American territorial waters are before Treasury officials for their consideration in framing regulations for application of the decision.

The substance of the representations of the five Powers were transmitted by the State Department which had received from Great Britain and Spain written communications, and from France, Italy and The Netherlands verbal statements of their views.

Discussions Probable.

Whether the course of Treasury officials in framing regulations would be modified materially by the representations was not apparent, but it was indicated that before final approval was given any draft there would probably be discussions with State Department officials and with representatives of foreign Governments in Washington in the hope of meeting the wishes of all concerned as nearly as possible. The hope that the United States would discuss the matter with the maritime Powers was expressed in the British note received late yesterday.

Officials declined to discuss the representations received to date in the light of a course understood to have virtually been decided upon—that of granting the privilege to foreign liners to bring in liquors for rations for their crews as medicinal supplies—but indicated that they would do all consistent with their authority to meet the points raised.

June 10 Date of Application.

Whether additional time would be required beyond June 10, the date now set for application of the court's decision, it was understood, would only be determined by developments within the next few days.

All five countries, in explaining their position to the State Department, have taken approximately the same position, holding that freedom of international commercial intercourse is threatened if considerations of comity between nations are disregarded in the application of the decision.

None of the communications has been made public but it was said at the British embassy that the note it had submitted expressly refrained from contesting the jurisdiction of the American port authorities over vessals within the three-mile limit. The main purpose of the note it was added was to draw attention to "the fact that the extent to which each country should compel observance of its laws on the ships of another was a matter of primary importance in the intercourse between nations and to express the hope that the United States Government before departing so materially from the common practice of all nations would discuss the matter with the maritime Powers."

Spanish Communication.

The Spanish note in addition to calling attention to the "inconvenience" which would be imposed by the Court's decision is understood also to have discussed an earlier decision of the Supreme Court construing the application of the Volstead law to the transportation of liquor in bond through the United States. The Court held that such transit was forbidden even if only a transfer within the maritime belt from one foreign ship to another bound for a foreign port.

This decison is applicable it is said to steamers of the Spanish Royal Mail Steamship Co. which carry wines from Spain to Cuba and Vera Cruz but stop at New York to discharge cargoes which do not include liquors. The 'in-transit decision," it was contended, if enforced without considerations of comity would make such business impossible. The hope was expressed that some means would be found of averting this blow to the Spanish mercantile marine. The Spanish company is considering abandoning its New York service if some solution to the problem cannot be found.

RAIL OWNERSHIP MAY BE FORCED ON U. S., SAYS BRYAN

Tells Rail Valuation Conference Steps May Be Necessary to Provide Adequate Transportation.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Railroad valuation is an economic problem of fundamental importance to every interest in America, speakers today told the conference on railroad valuation, composed of members of the "progressive bloc" in Congress, railroad labor leaders, sponsors of Government ownership of railroads and spokesmen for farmers' organizations.

The conference completed its organization meeting, outlined a tentative program of activity and adjourned subject to the call of the permanent commissioner, Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

William Jennings Bryan, the principal speaker at the public session this morning, preceding an executive meeting of invited delegates, told the assemblage he thought Government ownership of the carriers might be forced upon the country by the apparent impossibility of providing satisfactory regulation. He did not relish the thought, he said, because he was "afraid of the centralization of power in Washington:" but Government ownership seemed inevitable because "God never made men good enough to withstand the temptations of one put at the head of a private monopoly."

Bryan spoke also on his experiences as a reformer "made happy by the triumph of reform during the last 25 years;" his political philosophy: "the Wall street bloc"—which never has gone by that name, but which, he said, nevertheless has always been a reality in Congress; the need for a "national bulletin to supply the people with the facts on all the great public questions;" the powers of governments to regulate whatsoever may need regulation in the eyes of the people; and the general trend of human destiny.

He was followed on the platform by Gov. Blaine of Wisconsin, who told of the relation of rail valuation to rates; Gov. Ross of Wyoming, who said he had come unprepared to speak; G. S. McFarland, a Boston attorney, who declared that railroads of whatever valuation may be decided upon as fair, should be Government owned and operated; and finally by W. C. Lansdon of Kansas, national lecturer of the Farmers' Co-operative and Legislative Union, who discussed the relation of transportation charges to agriculture.

Officers Elected.

Besides Senator La Follette, officers chosen were: First vice chairman, Congressman George Huddleston of Alabama; second vice chairman, Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma; third vice chairman, Edward Keating of Colorado; secretary, Congressman W. T. Logan of South Carolina; treasurer, William H. Johnston, Washington, D. C. The six officers were authorized to act as an Executive Committee, and to appoint a chairman for each state, the chairmen to organize state groups.

In resolutions the conference called upon the Interstate Commerce Commission in making valuation of the railroads to pay particular attention to the reporting of original cost, donations and methods of valuation and refrain from issuing any further tentative valuations or final valuation "until the commission has so complied with the law." Legal action against the commission was threatened in the resolution unless the commission complies with the valuation act.

Another resolution declared that commission has never adequately exercised its power to define the rules for fixing reasonable rates and recommended that the organization take up this matter and such other aspects of the transpartation promiem "as may be found advisable to advise and protect the public interest."

The set of questions presented to the conference yesterday through the Chicago Association of Commerce, which claimed to represent shippers' interests, was termed a highly impertinent set of dishonest inquiries," emanating from the "usual sources of railroad propaganda."

Lansdon said the railroads of the country were making money every year, and that with the consequent increasing capitalization of the lines, transportation charges sometime would be greater than business could stand. The railroads were charging the public interest on the public's money, he said, and in addition were charging more for service than farmers could afford. Recent figures published showing apparent improvement in the economic condition of America's farmers, he characterized as "humbug which neglects the reduced purchasing power of the dollar." Most of the farmers' money went for interest, rent or taxes, he said, while the railroads and insurance companies "added millions of surplus every year."

Bryan spoke for almost two hours, beginning by congratulating the conference on the fact that the men present were those "whose hearts are on the right side," and concluding with an emphatic declaration that the interests of "God-made man are above the interests of the man-made giant."

His belief that the best method of achieving reforms was a step-by-step process was not shared by Senator La Follette, who rose immediately to say that with him it was not a case "of half a loaf now and the rest later; but rather the whole of right and justice now. Wisconsin was "a living proof," he said, "of the soundness of the doctrine of no compromise." He also differed with Bryan on the latter's suggestion that years ago it might have been well to value railroads at their reproduction cost instead of the replacement cost.

Burned When Repairing Light Fixture.

Melton Rall, 28 years old, of 4021 North Twenty-second street, a repairman employed by the Laclede Gas Light Co., was burned about the head, face, arms and hands at 9:15 last night when working on a combination gas and electric lighting fixtures in a house at 4064 Washington boulevard. He said he believed a short circuit in the electric wiring ignited gas that was escaping from a leak he had been sent to repair.

PITTSBURG, May 26.—A winning streak was shattered and a losing streak broken today simply because one player "hit the dirt" in two desperate slides, whereas another declined to leave feet and throw himself at the base he sought. Jim Bottomley, Cardinal first baseman, reached third base and home in the ninth inning of the final game with the Pirates today by hairline decisions following perfect slides. Wilbur Cooper, Pirate pitcher, came in to the plate standing up in an earlier inning and was out on a close play when a slide would have scored a run.

The Cardinals, with Jess Haines pitching, won by a 5-to-4 score because the run Cooper carried never crossed the plate. The victory stopped the Cardinal losing streak at six straight and closed the Pittsburg run of consecutive successes at seven. The two teams wheeled into the ninth inning tied at three all. Bottomley, first up, drew a pass. Rickey, who played the sacrifice hit all day, ordered another and Stock's perfect bunt sent Bottomley to second. From there on the victory revolved around Bottomley's speed and his ability to slide.

Myers tapped to Cooper, who ignored the batter and threw to Traynor to get Bottomley at third. Runner and ball arrived in a cloud of dust and Umpire Wilson's outstretched palms proclaimed that Bottomley had beaten the throw. It was close, very close, and the Pirates launched into an unavailing protest.

Bottomley Slides Home.

The infield crept in on the grass for a play at the plate and they got just what they expected. Freigau tapped a bounder to Maranville and Bottomley streaked down the base line from third. There was another desperate slide and another cloud of dust, but again the umpire, this time Klem, spread his palms downward and the Cardinals took the lead.

That gave "Tubby" Clemons a chance to bat—an opportunity he would have missed had not Bottomley "beaten" two close plays—and "Tubby" shot a double down the right field line that scored Myers with the fifth Cardinal run. Haines and Blades were easy outs but Jim Bottomley had "hit the dirt" twice too often to allow the Pirates to pull out of the mire.

Pirates Rally in Ninth.

Pittsburg flared up in the ninth and had the Cardinals holding conferences before a man had been retired. Grimm singled through Freigau and Rawlings shot a single to center. McKechnie called for a sacrifice and Schmidt bunted down the third base line. Milton Stock rushed in, scooped up the ball, and lined it to Freigau for a force-out of Rawlings at second. That helped, too, although the Pirates still had Schmidt on first and Grimm on third with one out.

Russell batted for Cooper and lined to Blades in deep left, Grimm scoring. Maranville worked Haines to two strikes and two balls and then fouled off four. The Pirates figured the next pitch would be over and Schmidt ran with Haines' arm. But the toss was a pitch-out and Clemons rifled the ball to Freigau in plenty of time to catch Schmidt for the final out.

It was as far back as the fifth

California First in Only Two Events, Wins Title for Third Time

Golden Bears, Represented by 13 Athletes, Score 39½ Points in Defeating East's Best in Intercollegiate Meet — Western Field Performers Prove Stars.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—A small but sturdy band of far westerners, carrying the Blue and Gold colors of the University of California, today swept aside the best that the east could offer and captured the third successive year the intercollegiate track and field championship at the 47th annual I. C. A. A. A. A. meet on Franklin Field

The husky squad of 13 Golden Bears, captained by "Brick" Muller, all-American football star, scored 39½ points, one less than their winning total of last year, but enough to win decisively over Princeton which finished second with 33 points. The Tigers battled pluckily to overcome the tremendous advantage of the Westerners in the field events, but their best efforts were not good enough to repel the brawn of the invaders.

Yale, which with Princeton, shared the hopes of the East, failed to come up to expectations in the deciding events and despite the large number it qualified, the Blue collected but 23 points, winning third place by a half point from Pennsylvania.

Cornell Gains Two Firsts.

Cornell, by virtue of two sensational victories, one by Kirby in the mile and the other by Lovejoy in the 220-yard dash, landed fifth place. Pennsylvania State and Syracuse tied for sixth place with 13 points apiece. Johns Hopkins finished eighth with 12 and Dartmouth ninth with 10 points.

Ideal track and field conditions prevailed for the finals of the two-day meet, but although sensational performances threatened records, no new marks were established.

The two intercollegiate championship records set in the trials yesterday—the javelin throw of 199 feet 1 inch, by Storrs, of Yale and the hammer throw of 181 feet, 6½ inches, by Tootell, of Bowdoin—both stood for first places in the finals today.

Thirty-one colleges, represented by close to 900 athletes, competed for the title but due to eliminations yesterday, only 24 were represented today and of these but 19 placed men in the finals.

Bears High in Field Events.

California's versatile squad of field performers scored enough points alone for the Golden Bears to win. The Westerners tallied 36½ points in six field events, Becker earning three points and their only place on the track with a third place in the 120-yard hurdles. Saxby, California's only other track qualifier, failed to score in the quarter mile.

Bill Neufeldt, a brawny "native son," was the individual star of the meet, scoring 11 points for California with a first place in the discus, second in the javelin and fourth in the shot put.

Norris was the only other Californian to land in first place and he was forced to share honors in the pole vault with Owen, of Pennsylvania, both clearing the bar at 12 feet, 9 inches. Muller helped the winners with places in both the high and broad jumps while Witter landed a second place in the shot put.

The meet was one of the few on record which developed no double winner, but in addition to Neufeldt, three other individual stars stood out, each with nine points. They were Ralph Hills, giant Princetonian, who won the shotput and placed second in the hammer throw; Allen Woodring, crack Syracuse runner, victor in the 440 and second in the 220 yard dashes, and J. Coard-Taylor, another Princeton star, who won the 220-yard hurdles and finished second in the quarter mile.

Leconey Is Badly Beaten.

It was a bad day for champions in several of the feature track events. Al Leconey of Lafayette, winner of both the 100 and 220 yards sprints last year, was badly beaten in both events. "Boots" Lever, Penn captain, flashing to the front in the century in 9 4-5 seconds, while F. K. Lovejoy, Cornell captain, surprised with a spectacular triumph in the furlong. Leconey was third in the 100, inches behind Clarge of Johns Hopkins, and fourth in the 220, where he was also beaten by Woodring and Clarke.

It was the last intercollegiate championship race for both Lever and Leconey and the little Quaker's victory, the first he has scored over his Lafayette rival, was one of the outstanding performances of the meet.

Walter Higgins of Columbia, 1922 two-mile title holder, and victor in the international race at that distance at the Penn Relays a month ago, was off form and withdrew at the start of the last lap after he had fallen into the ruck. Booth of Johns Hopkins, a "dark horse," swept to the front in the last lap to win by 35

Sisler at Hospital, "Resting Easy" After Tonsilitis Operation

GEORGE SISLER, first baseman of the Browns, who has been kept out of baseball this season by illness which has impaired his vision, underwent an operation for tonsilitis Friday morning at St. Luke's Hospital, it was learned last night. At the hospital it was reported that Sisler was "resting easy" and that his condition was "satisfactory."

The operation was the second performed on Sisler since the start of the baseball season. In April he underwent a sinus operation. Since then he has been a daily spectator at the Browns' games, sitting in the upper grandstand behind third base. His general health has been reported good, but his eyes have not responded after the sinus operation as quickly as it was hoped.

Yesterday it was noted that he was not in his usual seat at the Browns' game and inquiries disclosed that he was in the hospital.

KELLEHER'S HOME RUN WINS FOR CUBS, 5 TO 4

CHICAGO, May 26.—The Cubs defeated the Reds today, 5 to 4, in a nip-and-tuck ball game. Rixey went the route for the Reds, but Osborne was taken in the sixth for a pinch hitter. In the ninth, Johnny Kelleher hit the first ball served by Rixey into the left field bleachers for a home run. George Burns also had a home run, lifting the ball into the left field bleachers in the fifth.

Fight Fans Can't 'Hop' From Shelby To Willard Fight

Interval Between Title Bout July 4 and Firpo Contest on July 7 Is Too Short.

While promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight, scheduled at Shelby, Mont., are reaching out through the Chambers of Commerce of various cities of the Middle West trying to arrange for the sale of large blocks of tickets, fans have been wondering what obstacles they may expect to encounter in transportation, housing and dietary matters.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, through Shelby business men, have been asked to dispose of a block of tickets to St. Louisans. But local fight followers before investing want to know what to expect.

The Shelby Chamber of Commerce in reply to queries announces that the following provisions may be relied upon:

TRANSPORTATION — Absolutely efficient service from the Great Northern Railroad.

HOUSING—Several hotels are under construction; a tent city to accommodate 10,000 persons, has been planned. Railroad trackage for 1200 Pullmans will be provided.

FOOD SUPPLY—The Chamber of Commerce is handling this problem, which involves feeding 50,000 persons, an increase in population of 47,000. Sanitation, lighting, water and other problems have been taken up with the railroad officials, who demanded to "be shown" before indorsing the project.

How to Get There.

If present plans are all carried forward the problem of the Middle West fight fan will be merely one of finding the time and the price to make the trip.

Shelby is 1100 miles from St. Paul, 30 miles from Canada, in the northwest part of Montana. It is 90 miles from Glacier Park and 60 miles from Great Falls.

Fohlmen, Held to Four Hits, Win in Ninth on Walk, Bunt and Error

Jacobson Draws a Pass, Williams "Lays One Down" and Uhle's Great Pitching Goes for Nought When O'Neill Makes Wild Throw.

By Dent McSkimming.

It has been said that the breaks in the game of baseball go to the team or the player who is willing to take a chance. Possibly they do, but not always.

In the ninth inning of yesterday's game between the Browns and the Cleveland Indians, Steve O'Neill, ordinarily a most reliable catcher, took a chance and the spoils of battle, a great battle, went to the other fellow.

George Uhle had turned the Browns back for eight innings in a most consistent manner. He had allowed but four hits and he had not walked a batter. His control was perfect and his curve was baffling. He had not given the Browns a solitary hit since the third inning. He had fanned four of six men who faced him in the fifth and sixth innings and, on the whole, he was pitching one of the most masterful games that ever a Brownie fan has had the good fortune to witness.

Vangilder, for the Browns, had been turning in a performance little below the class of Uhle's pitching.

And then arrived the ninth.

Jacobson, who had not hit the ball out of the infield on three previous trips to the plate, coaxed and bluffed and waited until he drew a base on balls, the first and only pass issued by Uhle.

The Break and the Game.

Williams, doing exactly what the situation demanded, bunted the first ball for an attempted sacrifice. Never were the Browns more favored by fortune. The bunted ball hit the rubber home plate and, lively as it is, bounded 10 or 12 feet into the air. O'Neill and Uhle were under the ball when it finally came down. Williams had had time to get close to first and nothing but a rifle-like throw could retire him. O'Neill, having no chance to halt Jacobson at second, took the fleeting chance for a play at first and shot the ball to the bag.

But, there was no Cleveland infielder there to take the throw. The ball sailed all the way to the right field pavilion and before Summa could return it to the plate, Jacobson had scored the winning run.

It may be that Bill Wambsganss was a bit slow in anticipating O'Neill's throw to first. Perhaps O'Neill's throw was to the wrong side of the bag. In any event, the play seemed to warrant the chance he took.

George Uhle, victim of one of the worst conceivable breaks, stood helpless as Summa raced to recover the ball, and he stood tense and anxious as O'Neill swung around to try to get Jacobson at the plate. Then, the battle over, without any apparent feeling of resentment toward the fellows who had tossed his great game away, he turned and strode slowly toward the dugout.

Vangilder There in the Pinch.

Although the performance of Vangilder in holding the Indians to five hits and four walks was not as striking as that of Uhle, it is true that Van was called upon to extricate himself from situations more trying and more exacting than those encountered by Uhle.

Two occasions arose when the Browns' pitcher soared to real pitching heights in retiring the side with a runner on third. In the second inning the bases were loaded and Jamieson, a dangerous left-hand batter, was crowding the plate, trying to coax a walk. Vangilder put added speed on his sharp breaking curve and retired the Cleveland man on an easy tap to the pitcher's box.

Again, in the ninth, Brower was on third and Lutzke on first when O'Neill was forced to tap to the pitcher for the third out.

The fielding on both sides was remarkable. Schliebner was one of the particularly bright spots in the Browns' defense. He stretched and scooped and otherwise converted close plays into easy outs. In the sixth inning, Speaker, first man up, hit a bad hopper to Gerber. The shortstop fumbled momentarily and Speaker was within a half foot of the bag when Schliebner stretched far out to reach the throw.

The only extra-base hit of the game was a two-bagger by Lutzke. He hit the ball over Williams' head.

Threatening weather held yesterday's crowd down to 5000.

Ruth's 9th Homer Helps Yanks Beat Athletics, 10–8

Rally Off Ed Rommel's Curves in the Eleventh Decides Exciting Contest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—The Yankees and Athletics gave 30,000 fans plenty of exciting baseball of all descriptions, this afternoon; but the ace of Conie Mack's pitching staff, Ed Rommel, was pounded hard in the eleventh and Huggins' men scored two runs that gave them a 10-8 victory.

Both managers used three pitchers and Mack used four pinch hitters to Huggins' one, Whitey Witt, a former Mackman, who puched out the single that scored the winning run for the Yanks. It was Pennock, who also was a member of the Athletics when they had their famous machine of a decade ago, who stepped the Macks in the final innings and receives credit for the victory.

Babe Ruth hit his ninth homer in the third inning with two men on base.

Washington Half-Mile Relay Team Sets Record in Valley Meet; Nebraska Again Captures Title

Three Other Marks Shattered in Competition at Ames — Bier of Pikers Wins 440-Yard Dash — Cornhuskers Place in All but Two Events.

AMES, Ia., May 26.—For the third consecutive year, the University of Nebraska's well-balanced team today won the Missouri Valley Conference Track and Field championship. The Nebraskans placed in all but two events, and scored forty points, ten more than their nearest competitors, the Kansas Aggies.

The University of Kansas was third with 24½. Other teams finished in this order: Missouri, 21; Washington University, 19; Ames, 15¼; Grinnell, 11; Drake, Kansas Normal and Oklahoma, 5 points each.

Conference records were shattered in the javelin throw, high jump, half-mile relay, pole vault and in other numerous events performances were close to conference marks.

Ben Lingenfelter of Drake won the only points for his school when he broke the javelin record with a heave of 179 feet 7 1-5 inches. This was the second time he bettered the record in two days, his throw in the preliminaries yesterday surpassing the mark set by Hamilton of Missouri last year—173 feet 1½ inches.

Piker Team Sets Record.

The Washington University team proved the class of the field in the half-mile relay. The St. Louis team, composed of Anderwert, Hoagland, Blanchard and Bier clipped one-tenth of a second from the mark set by Nebraska a year ago, covering the distance in 1:28 3-10.

A high jump record that had stood since 1908 was broken by Poor of Kansas, with a leap of 6 feet 2¾ inches. The old mark was 6 feet ⅝ inch, held jointly by F. Osborn, Missouri, and C. Rice, University of Kansas.

In the pole vault, Rogers of Kansas added six inches to the record set by Wilkin of Ames. Rogers' height was 12 feet 6⅞ inches. The previous mark was 12 feet 1 inch.

Irwin, the red-headed flash of the Kansas Aggie team, was the individual star of the meet. He won first place in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes and also ran on the relay teams. Riley, his teammate, and Taylor, Grinnell, were tied for second honors, with 8 points.

Riley won the 220-yard low hurdles and took second in the 120-yard high hurdles, while Taylor captured the 120-yard high hurdles and placed second to Riley in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Bier Wins in Last 100.

The prettiest and most spectacular race was the 440-yard dash, with Bier of Washington and Layton of Nebraska, as the principal contestants. Layton led all the way until the last 100 yards, when the Piker runner put on a brilliant spurt and finished ahead. They had another chance to meet each other in the mile relay and although Layton led for most of the distance, Bier came from behind and beat him to the tape.

The work of the Washington relay teams created the most comment. They won both the half and mile relays in exceptionally good time. The following men ran in the mile relay: Hoagland, Ducomb, Crowder and Bier. The time was 3:22.6. Nebraska and Missouri started the race with a rush and left Hoagland behind. Ducomb and Crowder made up some of the loss, but Bier, the last man, had a two-yard handicap when he started. He put on a brilliant finish and won the race.

California Scoring Heavily in Field Events Wins College Meet yards from Elmer McLane, Penn star, who tired after leading a pack of 22 distance runners for a mile and three-quarters.

Kirby's victory for Cornell in the mile was another upset, the Ithacan finishing in the remarkably fast time of 4m. 17 4-5s., to defeat Jimmy Connolly of Georgetown, and Mal Douglas of Yale, the two favorites.

Kirby Comes With Rush.

Kirby, after laying back most of the way, shot out in front at the gun for the last lap. Douglas clung to the flying Conellian's heels for a furlong, but dropped back as Connolly made his last bid. The latter's challenge, however, was not good enough and Kirby widened his margin to 20 yards as he sprinted down the finishing stretch.

Allan Helffrich and S. C. Enck of Penn State, heroes of the world's record breaking two-mile relay performance at the Penn Carnival in which Oxford was beaten, staked a pretty duel in the half mile, the former winning by a few feet in a driving finish.

Woodring stood off a spirited challenge by Taylor of Princeton, to win the quarter mile race, in which the failure of Walter Koppisch of Columbia to place was an outstanding feature.

Princeton carried off honors in both hurdle events and might have scored more heavily in the 120-yard had not Scattergood been disqualified in the semi-finals for knocking over three hurdles, after finishing second. Taylor repeated his 1922 triumph in the 220-yard low hurdles while Thomsen led his field in the 120-yard high hurdles.

FIGHT FANS WILL NOT BE ABLE TO WITNESS BOTH FIGHTS IN JULY

tions are encountered, the fight fan could depart the night of July 1 and arrive in Shelby the morning of the fight.

No special rates have been announced for the round trip from St. Louis, but the cheapest might be figured at close to $125, with Pullman.

Fight fans or fanatics who figured on hopping from Shelby to New York to view the Willard-Firpo fight July 7 will be doomed to disappointment. Short of an airplane journey the trip can not be accomplished. Leaving Shelby on the night of the bout the fan would arrive in St. Paul the morning of July 6. The run to Chicago is 14 hours and from Chicago to New York is 20 hours more.

Some comment has been aroused by the failure of the Eastern promoters to arrange for a later date, so that fans might witness both events, especially as the winners of the two contests undoubtedly will be matched for the title on Labor Day.

Dempsey is at Great Falls training while Gibbons is at Billings, Mont.

Exciting Finish in 100-Yard Dash Between Harvard and Princeton Runners

C. B. McKim is shown breasting the tape first in the century dash, at the Harvard-Princeton dual games, held at Harvard. McKim negotiated the distance in 9 4-5 seconds, ranking him with Leconey, Paddock and other leading sprinters of the country. Behind McKim are R. D. Howard and V. Chapin, both of Harvard, finishing second and third, respectively.

CARDINALS END LOSING STREAK WITH VICTORY OVER PITTSBURG, 5 TO 4

inning that Wilbur Cooper forfeited a run by his failure to slide. Of course, some modernists take the view that a pitcher is not supposed to slide, run bases or hit. But a run is still a run in any game, regardless of what the pitcher is expected to do.

Cooper's Failure to Slide.

With one out Cooper singled to left. Maranville lined to Blades and then Carey lined a long double to right center. Cooper raced for the plate while Myers rifled the ball to Toporcer. Then George Threw high to Ainsmith at the plate. The Cardinal catcher jumped and as he came down with the ball, Cooper crashed into him standing up. Ainsmith could not possibly have brought the ball down to tag a man sliding but Cooper eliminated any doubt on that score by allowing Bottomley to get all the close decisions.

It was a game that the Cardinals threatened to lose by failure in the pinches. Fourteen men were left on bases and it seemed that 13 hits, fiv bases on balls and a hit batsman were to go to waste. The Pirates on the other hand had only five men left on the bases.

The Cardinals scored in the second on Stock's single, a sacrifice and Haines' single. They added one in the third on Mann's double, a pass, a sacrifice and Myers' infield hit. Then the Pirates rushed into a tie in the fourth, much to the delight of the 22,000 crowd, with Bigbee's double, Barnhart's triple and a sacrifice fly. Pittsburg went into the lead in the sixth on Bigbee's third double and Traynor's single only to have the Cardinals tie it in the eighth on Ainsmith's single and Mann's triple.

Mann Hammers the Ball.

Mann is a murderer's row in himself against southpaws. He made a single, double and triple in five times at bat. Myers also got three hits. Haines couldn't get Bigbee all afternoon and the Pirate made three doubles and a single in four trips to the plate.

The Pirates had won nine straight games at home until yesterday. It was their first defeat of the season at Forbes Field. The Cardinal victory was Haines' sixth of the year. He has won one-third of the Cardinal victories and has lost only two games.

The Cardinals departed last night for Cincinnati, where they play one game tomorrow before returning home Monday for a long stand.

Bobby Knode, Michigan U. first baseman, was here today to confer with Rickey. He is a brother of Mike Knode, a former Cardinal infielder.

JAYHAWKERS DEFEAT KANSAS AGGIES 6 TO 2

The Aggies threatened to score in the sixth but fast fielding tided the visitors over the danger.

THREE RACES ON CARD OF DRIVING CLUB TODAY

A program of harness racing comprising three events, trotting, pacing and special, will be presented by the Creve Coeur Lake Driving Club at Creve Coeur Lake this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Downward Swing in Drive Should Be Sweeping Motion, Says Sarazen

Distance Is Gained Through Speed of Stroke, Not Through Exercise of Great Strength, Champion Golfer Declares—Pivot and Follows Through Essential to Success.

By Gene Sarazen,
World's Champion Golfer

Having brought the driver back with the utmost care and deliberation, the next thing to do, naturally, is to swing it downward in a proper manner. I have described how the ball should be addressed, how the club should be taken back, and the proper position of the hands, arms, head and legs at the top of the back swing. We now come to the downward stroke on the drive, which is fully as important as any of the other parts of the stroke.

If you have taken the club back slowly and as directed in my previous articles the downward swing will to a large extent take care of itself. I want to impress on you first of all that distance is obtained by the speed of the club-head and not by any strong-arm stuff.

A little man can drive a ball farther than a big fellow if he times his shot properly. In other words, the longest driver is the man who swings the club so that the head meets the ball with the greatest possible speed.

The next time you have an opportunity to see Jim Barnes or Jock Hutchison or any other star in action, note the manner in which they take the club back—in a deliberate, easy, rhythmical fashion—but when they start the downward swing they speed up the club terrifically.

Speed on the back-swing is of no use—rather it is a hindrance and is likely to destroy any rhythm and to lessen the speed in the down stroke.

There are a number of good players, it is true, who seem to swing back rapidly and yet get good results, but you must remember they have probably been playing this game a long time, have developed their style and that their swing is more or less mechanical. Nevertheless, the proper way to get speed in the down swing is to take the club back slowly.

Stay Down on the Ball.

The principal thing to remember in using the driver or the brassie is that the stroke is more of a sweep than a direct hit such as is made with the irons. I might suggest to all novices that in developing the stroke for the drive they take the club back only a short way, with both arms held rather stiffly—especially the left—and that they simply sweep the ball straight out in front of them. Many players—mostly old men—use this style with remarkably good results.

Gradually you can bring the club back to a higher plane—although I don't advise the club going beyond the horizontal position in the back-swing; a little short of that is better. But if you will keep that left arm straight all through the stroke and, leading the club on the downward swing with the left hand, swing it so that it sweeps the ball from the tee evenly, you will get plenty of distance and good direction.

There is more to the downward stroke than this of, of course. In the first place, after the ball is struck the club must not be stopped too abruptly. Think of hitting right through the shot and of finishing with the hands well above the left hip.

But remember, too, to shift the weight to the left foot so that at the finish of the stroke the entire weight is practically on the left foot and the whole left side of the body in a straight line.

In other words, you must always stay down to the ball. This I think is a detail that is overlooked by a great many.

They take the club, back well enough and start it down properly but in their anxiety to see the flight of the ball they jerk up the head, which naturally causes the right shoulder to come up also and they finish with the weight of the body still on the right foot. That is entirely wrong.

Joe Kirkwood has a habit of ducking his right knee as he comes into the ball which might well be copied by many players. As a result of this Kirkwood never tops a drive although he may lose some power and distance as a consequence. Better, however, to lose distance and make sure to get the ball up and away.

Unison Is Necessary.

Now when you are at the top of your swing your right leg is braced and the left knee is inclined towards the ball with the weight of the body mostly on the inside of the ball of the left foot. As you start the downward swing you naturally turn or pivot back into the position you were when addressing the ball and this is practically the position you are in when the ball is struck.

As the club-head is about to meet the ball or just before, it is well to bend the right knee in towards the shot and to shift the weight at the same time to the left foot, which receives the impact of the shot. This should all be done in unison, of course, and constant practice in swinging the club as directed will enable you to do all this with the same motion.

After the ball has been struck and the club-head has passed on through you should be facing the flight of the ball with the right shoulder, hip and knee well around. If you find you are having trouble in getting direction try finishing the stroke with the hands well out in front instead of in close to the body.

At the impact of the club-head and ball the wrists get in their work. No definite directions, however, can be given as to how to control the wrists during this part of the swing except to say that they should be tightened, somewhat. This will come to you naturally as you develop your swing.

Above all, remembers to KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL UNTIL IT IS STRUCK.

GIANTS WIN SEVENTH STRAIGHT BEATING PHILS

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Giants made it three straight over the Phillies and seven straight in their present run of victories by beating the Quakers today, 4 to 3. About 20,000 attended.

Philadelphia took the lead in the first on doubles by Mokan and Tierney and an error by Bancroft. The Giants passed them in the fifth on a double by Bancroft and hits by Snyder and Frisch. Tierney tied the game with a homer, his second in two days, in the eighth, but a double by Young and a triple by Kelly gave the Giants the winning run in the last half.

MOGRIDGE VICTOR OVER BOSTON RED SOX, 3 TO 2

BOSTON, May 26.—Washington made it two out of three over the Red Sox today when George Mogridge piloted the Bushers to a 3-to-2 victory over Howard Ehmke, with 10,000 looking on.

Joe Harris' batting was much better than his fielding. His home run over the clock in the seventh gave the Sox their first run. In the ninth, after Burns had dropped down a scratch single and reached second on Mogridge mad peg, it was Harris who singled, scoring Burns.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Closing In on the Fox.

THE American League hounds appear to be closing in on that old fox, Harry Frazee, of the Boston Red Sox, who for six or seven seasons has defiantly flaunted his brush in the face of hot pursuit.

Ban Johnson, a little heavy for fast riding, but dogged on the trail, is about to hole Brer Harry and says the operation will take place within one week, when a Columbus syndicate expects to buy the outfit.

We'll believe that when they nail Frazee's pelt on the barn door.

Even is they round up Frazee we still will suspect that not all the honors of war will be with the victors. In fact, when the Red Sox are finally sold, Frazee will probably be chuckling in the well-known sleeve—the one in which he has hidden that extra ace for lo, these many years.

For Harry will receive his price, $1,250,000, which is one-fourth of a million greater than he asked six years ago. In addition, Harry has sold the baseball jewels out of his diadem and they now adorn the crown of the New York Yankees.

Thus the old fox, far from being mangled, is likely to escape with all that he originally asked, and about $500,000 more in players sold to New York—not to mention the last laugh.

Only One Thorn Remains.

HOWEVER, Byron Bancroft will achieve his main purpose—that of removing a thorn that has festered in the side of the American League since before U. S. entered the war.

Another of Big Ban's thorns was plucked out when Huston sold out to Ruppert. So that there is only one other jarring note in the harmony of the American League—or will be when Frazee goes—that will be Charles A. Comiskey of the White Sox. Alone and old, that veteran leader and fighter of other days is almost fangless. An opposition of 7 to 1 can block any purposes inspired by long and bitter animosity against Johnson.

The Year's Great Horse.

GREY LAG's victory in the Metropolitan Handicap at one mile with 133 pounds up, reminds us that Exterminator will not be without a capable successor, in the handicap field.

Grey Lag has been asked to do many things and has come up to all requirements. He is game, a weight-carrier, can run at any distance and usually is winning or knocking at the door. When the season closes, if no mishap occurs, it will probably be found that this one will have proved himself the horse of the year.

Grey Lag's bad luck in being taken ill just before the Derby of 1921, cost him the honor of winning the Kentucky classic. Grey Lag at his best easily could have cared for the Behave Yourself-Black Servant combination that dominated the event.

DICKERMAN WINS FIFTH GAME BLANKING BRAVES

BROOKLYN, May 26.—Leo Dickerman won his fifth straight game for Brooklyn today when he shut out the Boston Braves, 5 to 0. The only game Dickerman has lost this season was to the Braves on April 29 by 2 to 1.

Rudolph started for the Braves and was in good form, but somewhat wild, until the third inning when five runs were scored on four hits and three errors. Only one of the runs was earned.

Algonquin Course All Dolled Up for District Tourney

Greens Are Like Velvet but It Will Take Some Fancy Putting to Win Title.

WOLFF TO DEFEND CROWN

Competition Will Start Next Saturday With 18-Hole Qualifying Round.

By J. Roy Stockton.

If any golfer competing in the St. Louis District championship tournament which opens at the Algonquin Golf Club next Saturday is heard to complain over any condition of the course of tries to alibi for missing a putt by attributing his failure to poor greens, that golfer should be shot.

Always a beautiful course, with fairways of natural beauty and greens picturesquely placed, the Algonquin course will wear its best clothes when the district's star golfers shoot at Clarence Wolff's title next week. While the weather this spring has been very unseasonable and has caused many complaints from straw hat merchants and dealers in palm beach suits, the plentiful supply of rain and the mildly warm weather has done wonders for the golf courses in the district.

At some of the clubs the duffers have wailed loudly and at length because it is so easy to lose balls in the rough. The grass has grown so rapidly that at most of the clubs the mowing machines have had all they could do to keep the mid-fairways cropped and the result has been that the rough is unusually thick, juicy and troublesome. It takes a powerful swing to chop out of the thick grasses and scores, for that reason have been high for the golfers inclined to hook or slice.

There'll Be Some Fancy Putting.

But at Algonquin everything is trim and sleek. The greens are smooth and velvety. While the greens are banked to help the approach shots, in most instances the putting surfaces are undulating. Some are wavy, some are convex and in rare instances will the putter be shooting without having to worry about the roll of the green. In other words the Algonquin greens require scientific putting. It will require more than drawing a straight line to the cup to sink the old ball.

Much work has been done in preparing the course for the tournament. The fairways are as good as the greens on some courses and yet a flock of workmen still find enough to keep them busy day in and day out.

Virtually all of the leading lights of the district's links are expected to compete. Clarence L. Wolff, who broke the Bellerive course record last year in defeating Jimmy Manion in the district final, will defend his crown and there will be much stiff competition.

Jimmy Manion will be a hot favorite, as will Eddie Held, national public course champion, now a member of Algonquin. Dick Bockenkamp always is dangerous.

The Forest Park Golf Club will be represented, 12 golfers from the public course having qualified in a recent elimination tournament.

Course Open for Practice.

Tomorrow the Algonquin course will be thrown open to tournament players for practice. Members of the club who are not entered in the tourney will be barred from the course tomorrow, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Wednesday, being Decoration Day, will be celebrated by the club with a closed tournament and the course will not be open for practice that day.

Saturday the tournament will open with a qualifying round of 18 holes and match play will start on Monday. Matches will be at 18 holes in the first, second and third rounds, with the semi-finals and finals at 36 holes. The finals will be played Saturday, June 9.

There will be four classes—Championship, A, B and Consolation.

The annual club team championship will be played on qualifying day, teams of four men each representing each club in the district, the qualifying scores to count, and the lowest aggregate medal score winning.

The following clubs comprise the District Golf Association: Algonquin, Bellerive, Kirkwood, Log Cabin, Midland Valley, Normandie, Glen Echo, St. Clair, St. Louis Country, Sunset Hills, Triple A, Westwood, Rock Springs and Riverview. The Forest Park Golf Club is listed as an associate member.

Only Fighter to Gain Title By Ballot Will Risk It This Week

Pinkey Mitchell, Junior Welterweight King, Will Battle Benny Leonard Tuesday—A World's Championship Contest Is Scheduled for Decision at New York Saturday.

By John E. Wray,

This will be a big week for pugilism in the United States—and a big summer will follow it, according to the calendar. Next Tuesday, at Chicago, where the "bootleg" boxing game is in danger of being snuffed out, Pinkey Mitchell, the only champion in the world ever elected to a title in the pugilistic history, will tackle the buzz saw, Benny Leonard, in a 10-round no-decision bout, the courts permitting. It is said the bout will be permitted in order to test the legality of Chicago boxing conditions.

No-decision bouts are not always the inocuous things most fighters try to make them. Charley White found that out at the hands of the same Benny Leonard a few years ago at Benton Harbor, when Benny's right and a journey to the canvas overtook Charley in the ninth round.

So that, in effect, Pinkey is risking his newly-found title, defended but once since he acquired it. Pinkey gained his honors through a popular vote conducted by a Minneapolis boxing publication. He defended his crown against Tim Droney on Derby eve at Louisville by knocking out his clumsy foe in five rounds.

Benny Kayoed Pinkey's Brother.

Next Tuesday Benny may find his foe tougher than the brother, Richie Mitchell, whom Benny snuffed out at New York. Pinkey can fight as well as box, and the bout should be extremely interesting at the weight, which is 140 pounds. Pinkey's title is "junior welterweight champion." Leonard would like to add it to his own collection.

Next Saturday will be the second big occasion of the week. This time the pugilistic scene shifts from Chicago to New York, where the French war hero, Eugene Criqui, will face the ageing American champion, Johnny Kilbane, now past 32. Criqui is European champion at the featherweight limit. Despite a jaw made over by grafting on to a part of a sheep's jaw bone to replace what had been shot away in battle, Criqui has shown no weakness there. He has a long string of knockouts to his credit and there are good judges like the veteran Joey Fox who think Criqui was a fair chance to beat Kilbane.

Age No Fatal Handicap.

Those of us who know Kilbane discount this. Kilbane is crafty, experienced and owns a knockout punch of the first water. He may have slowed, with time, but his standard is so far above that of Europe that, like Jess Willard, age means little against him, owing to the lack of class opposing him. With all due respect to Criqui, we will have to be shown French ring class as compared with American.

Following in the train of these two bouts this week will be the Jimmy Wilde-Pancho Villa battle, June 16, the Firpo-Wilard fight, June 30; the Dempsey-Gibons bout, July 4, and the Dempsey-Willard (or Firpo) show, Labor day, provided neither runs out of the match.

A Dempsey-Wills match also is in the making; and if Georges Carpentier beats Joe Beckett, he will fight Mike McTigue in this country, July 14, the anniversary of the fall of that dear Bastile.

This is a program calculated to state the lust of combat of those who pay big to look at it.

Benny in Shape.

The Leonard-Mitchell bout being nearest is attracting most attention. Judging from his gymnasium work Leonard seems to be in as good condition as ever; but whether his stamina is as good is another question. The champion is a master of ring craft, but he will not find Pinky as easy to draw into openings as Brother Richie. The latter was a fighter and would mix on the least provocation; but not so with lanky "Pink." That is what makes the junior Mitchell more dangerous to the lightweight champion than Richie, although the latter came within an ace of putting Champion Benny away during the famous New York battle.

The best way for Benny to get Pinkey started is to sting him a few times, for the tall lad has a temper of his own and will not hesitate to retaliate with interest. This is where the younger Mitchell will have a chance to even matters for Richie's two defeats. Will Pinkey be equal to the occasion?

Leonard's manager, Billy Gibson, has mapped out a busy summer for his champion. Following the May 29 match in Chicago he has practically arranged for a match with Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia challenger, to be held in one of the baseball parks in New York. Should there be a hitch with Tendler then it will be Charley White of Chicago who will get the chance.

Should he defeat Mitchell the Chicago promoters plan a match with Sailor Freedman of Chicago with Rocky Kansas and Johnny Dundee as second choice. The latter, however, would demand 135 pounds, which Benny is none too anxious to make, except in a championship battle.

However, there is one match that will probably be made a bit later and which will attract a lot of attention—that is between Leonard and Mickey Walker, welterweight champion. It seems to be Benny's ambition to annex the welter and he will not be content until he has had a try at it with Walker. Willie Ritchie, ex-champion, wants to make a comeback and try Leonard again, but outside of giving Benny a hard fight it does not seem possible that he would have any chance to get the verdict.

Kaiser and Flanagan On Title Fight Card; Test Case to Be Made

CHICAGO, May 26.

A LAST minute change has been announced in the card of bouts supporting the Benny Leonard-Pinky Mitchell battle here, Tuesday night.

Peewee Kaiser of St. Louis, who was to have met Harold Smith, the sensational Stock Yarder, will oppose Charley Glaser of Chicago instead.

Glaser recently knocked out Jimmy Dennis of St. Louis in two rounds.

The complete card now stands:

Leonard vs. Mitchell, 10 rounds.

Patsy Flanagan vs. Joe Burman, 10 rounds.

Peewee Kaiser vs. Charley Glaser, 8 rounds.

Harold Smith vs. Lew Hurley, 8 rounds.

Sammy Mandell vs. Frankie Garcia, 8 rounds.

Not only have the city authorities announced they would not interfere with this program, but the Athletic Committee of the City Council has been ordered to take charge as a sort of an unofficial commission and see that it is conducted in the right manner.

Promoter Jim Mullen who is to be arrested as a test of the old anti-prize fight law, has made all arrangements for the occasion. The actual arrest will take place in his office before the program starts. He will furnish bond and then will run off the bouts. Mrs. J. Ogden Armour is one of the patronesses, the profits go to the West Side Boys' Club.

Untidy Is Victor In Kentucky Oaks

Sweetheart Second and Gadfly Third—Anna M. Humphrey Is Unplaced.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 26.—Untidy, a bay 3-year-old filly, the property of Mrs. Payne Whitney and coupled with Gadfly as the Green Tree stable and H. P. Whitney entry, triumphed here today in the forty-ninth renewal of the Kentucky Oaks, over a distance of a mile and a furlong exclusively for 3-year-old fillies. Sweetheart, the Western-owned flash belonging to Brownell Combs finished second, while Gadfly was third.

The winner's share amounted to $10,000, while $1500 went to the second horse and $800 to the third.

Outside of Untidy and Gadfly the other Eastern representatives in the race were Sun Fey, the property of Willis Sharp Kilmer, and Dot, the speed marvel belonging to J. Byer. Much was expected of the last named filly, but at no stage of the race did she show an inclination to run.

Jockey Corcoran did not get the best of the break from the barrier, for he was off sixth in a field of eight starters. Untidy gradually worked her way up and won handily under a mild drive. Sweetheart set a fast pace the early part of the journey, but tired near the end. Gadfly broke poorly, but made up much ground after she once got started.

Tiptoe Inn was shuffled back soon after the start and was never prominent. Alice Blue Gown suffered interference which knocked her out of any possible chance. Anna M. Humphrey, favorite in the mutuels, tired soon after the start and finished sixth six lengths behind Alice Blue Gown and four lengths ahead of Sun Fey.

The winning entry paid $9 straight, $4.40 place and $4.60 show.

Skeezix was sold today to G. Drumheller at a private sale by C. C. van Meter, acting for F. J. Kelley. While the purchase price was not announced, turfmen believe it was in excess of $15,000. Skeezix looks like one of the best 3-year-olds at the Downs.

Johnston Meets Washer in Final

Belgian Defeats Cochet for Chance—Mlle. Lenglen to Play Miss McKane of England.

By the Associated Press.

ST. CLOUD, May 26.—William M. Johnston of California and Jean Washer of Belgium, will meet in the final of the men's singles of the international hard court tennis championship tournament—the last tournament at which the world's hard court champion will be decided.

Washer earned the right to play Johnston by his defeat today of the young French player, Henry Cochet, by a score of 6—1, 3—6, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

The same Belgian in 1921 met William T. Tilden in the finals, but went down to defeat in three straight sets.

The same old story of the hard court championships and Riviera tennis of the past two years will obtain so far as the women's singles are concerned, as Suzanne Lenglen defeated Mrs. Beamish of England today, 6—1, 6—1, while Miss McKane had little difficulty in overcoming Mme. Golding of France, 6—2, 6—2.

Mlle. Lenglen and Cochet will play against Miss McKane and J. B. Gilbert of England, in the finals of the mixed doubles, while Mlle. Lenglen and Mme. Golding may bring another championship to France, when they meet Mrs. Beamish and Miss M. McKane of England in the final of the women's doubles.

J. Brugnor and M. Dupont already have won the men's doubles for France.

Horseshoe League Schedule.

The Buster Browns, last year city champions and at present leaders in the Municipal Horse Shoe Pitchers League will meet the Numethods team in the regular league game this morning at Fairgrounds Park. The Aycocks will meet the Fairgrounds while the Lucky Ringers are scheduled to play the Lenhardt and Clark team. All games scheduled to start at 10 a. m.

11 Records Are Set in National High School Meet

Goodwillie, 17-Year-Old Chicago Athlete, Proves Individual Star.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—A blonde, spindle-legged youth named Eugene Goodwillie, regarded by his admirers as the only rival of Charley Paddock, the world's fastest human, today raced into the athletic hall of fame when he established a new American record in the 220-yard dash, tied the record for the 100-yard event, and practically unaided, won the nineteenth annual national interscholastic track meet for University High School of Chicago.

University High, with a total of 20 points, captured the honors in the high school division of the meet, while St. John's Military Academy, of Delafield, Wis., won the Academy section with a total of 60 points.

In the high school division Sacramento, Cal., and Cedar Rapids, Ia., tied for second place with 14 points; Hollywood and Huntington Beach, Cal., tied for fourth with 13; Wilson, Kan., fifth, with 11½, while Oklahoma City, Ok., and Red Bluff, Cal., were tied for sixth place with 10 points each.

Second place honors in the academy division went to Lake Forest Academy of Lake Forest, Ill., with 49½ points, with Allen Academy of Bryan, Tex., third with 35½.

The meet, conducted under the auspices of the University of Chicago, drew a record-breaking list of more than 750 schoolboy athletes from more than 30 States, making the event the greatest interscholastic meet ever held in America.

Eleven Records Shattered.

In addition to establishing two new American interscholastic records, the tying of another, eleven records for the meet were shattered. Goodwillie, the 17-year-old flying marvel, ran the 220-yard dash in 21 2-5, the fastest time the event has ever been run on a curved track. He tied the American record for the century, when he broke the tape five yards ahead of Joe Dicenzo, one of the fastest stars in the West, in 9 4-5, within one-fifth of a second of the world's record jointly held by Paddock and others.

Hamm of Lonoke, Ark., smashed the American international record for the broad jump when he leaped 23 feet 8½ inches beating the former high school record of 23 feet 7 1-5 inches.

Harry Smith, San Diego National interscholastic champion in the pole vault, with a record of 12 feet 11⅞ inches, easily won his event with a leap of 12 feet 6 inches.

Individual stars were numerous in the day's competition, but the best of them undoubtedly was the lanky Goodwillie and Kuck of Wilson, Kansas, the highest individual point winners. Kuck amassed a total of 11½ points, winning first in the shot-put, second in the javelin, and tieing for third in the discus. Goodwillie contributed 10 points to his team's total by capturing two firsts besides his remarkable running in the relay, which went to University High.

50 Starters in Mile Run.

One of the most thrilling races of the day was the one-mile run which went to Phillips of Rushville, Ind., who broke the tape ahead of 50 starters in 4m. 30 3-5s., Stevens of Santa Barbara, Cal., threw a shoe and continued to run for half a mile until his coach forced him to drop out of the race. Phillips won in the last three jumps, collapsing in the arms of his coach at the finish, after a neck-and-neck race with Platt of Eagle Grove, Ia.

The University High won the meet as a result of Goodwillie's great racing and the performance of the relay team and Fuqua, who won the second section of the 440-yard event.

Yeatman Defeats Soldan, 9-1, and Wins High School Baseball Title

Cleveland Pushes McKinley Into the Cellar by Scoring Three Runs in the Ninth for 6-5 Victory—Stremmel Pitches Fine Game for North Siders.

Yeatman High School won its first major sport trophy since 1918 yesterday by capturing the Interscholastic League baseball championship. The North End nine humbled Soldan by a 9 to 1 score. Cleveland forced McKinley into last place by winning a 6—5 verdict by means of a ninth-inning rally.

Yeatman was never hard pressed. The pitching of Mal Stremmel was of the steady sort, and although he allowed Soldan to hit his delivery hard, he managed to scatter the six hits over five innings. The Yeatman defense was of high order and not one error was chalked against Stanley Hill's aggregation. Soroghan at third base was a real stone wall and several raps along the third base line bearing all the earmarks of safeties were converted into put-outs by the guardian of the far corner.

Soldan's lone counter came in the opening inning. A walk to DeStaeler, followed by Halwe's long single was responsible. From that point Soldan was helpless and but one man, DeStaebler, inthe sixth inning, reached second base.

Crause started the hurling for Soldan, but gave way to Beckett in the first inning when he walked three men after retiring the first two. As he was leaving the hill the ball was on the ground and Hannegan scored from third base. Beckett then retired the next hitter, closing the inning. But the North Enders came back in the next frame and pounded his shoots for three runs. Hits by Hannegan, Soroghan and Mulvihill, a walk to Harding and Selucky's bobble of Henderson's roller gave Yeatman the runs. Two more came in the third, Soroghan and Blumenkamp scoring on Henderson's single to right. Yeatman then played fast ball, fearing an interruption from rain, and contented themselves with holding off the Soldan attack. But as the elements subsided the North Enders resumed the attack and added one in each of the seventh and eighth innings.

In the second contest Cleveland managed by means of a ninth-inning rally, to pull McKinley into the mire of the cellar. The final score was 6 to 5.

The closing inning was full of excitement. McKinley, the "visiting" team came into the final with a lead of two runs, the score being 5 to 3. Reinhardt, suffering from a split finger, had relieved Ponach in the latter portion of the eighth inning. He started the ninth by walking the first man, who was caught stealing on the next pitch. The second man walked and was picked off first. The third man was hit by a pitched ball and the next two were walked. The inning was ended when Ehrlich rolled to Reinhardt and was thrown out at first. Thus five men reached first base in succession but not a run was scored.

McKinley had broken a tie which lasted for five innings, in the eighth by scoring two men on four hits and a walk. The Cleveland attack which had been held to four hits in the eight frames, broke loose in the ninth. Bowersox and Spreck singled. Kaiser forced Bowersox and scored with Spreck on Plowman's single, with Spreck on Plowman's With Beck on second and Plowman on first, Musgrove drove to the centerfield fence and Beck crossed the pan with the winning count. A double is the official allowance for Musgrove.

COLUMBIA COLLEGE WINS INTERSTATE TRACK MEET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Columbia College of Dubuque, Ia., with 58 points to its credit, won the first annual track and field meet of the Western Interstate Collegiate Conference, composed of small colleges of the Middle West, at Depau University today.

Wisconsin State Normal of Lacrosse, was second with 40 points and Depaul with 20 points was third. Of the six colleges in the conference, only the three entered and participated in the 13 events.

The fastest time in the meet was made by Willey of Columbina who negotiated the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat. Tonessani of Wisconsin State Normal ran the 440-yard dash in 50 2-5s. Next year's meet will be held in the new stadium of Columbia College at Dubuque.

Old type windshield cleaner—cleans only small semi-circular space. Gives false sense of safety.

WAYCROSS AUTOMATIC CLEANER—CLEANS entire height and width of glass. Clear vision everywhere, all the time.

YOU WOULDN'T DELIBERATELY BLIND ONE EYE—yet in effect that is just what you are doing when you use a windshield cleaner that clears less than half the windshield. Safety and consideration call for a clear view through all of the windshield, all the time.

The illustrations above tell the story and the advantages of the WAYCROSS AUTOMATIC WINDSHIELD CLEANER in rain, snow and heavy mist, and will no doubt be obvious to the careful, considerate automobilist. Quickly, easily attached by anyone and operated without cost by the motor's vacuum, it glides noiselessly, smoothly, automatically back and forth the full width of the windshield, clearing it completely, thoroughly. Unobtrusively located on outside of windshield it remains at extreme end, out of the way when not in use. Sizes for all windshields.

Butch and Kabby Only Local Ring Stars Remaining

Lure of Chicago Has Taken Flanagan, Kaiser, Osner and Bandy Away.

Unless Chicago's "bootleg" boxing game comes to a standstill for want of the needed injunction, the entire St. Louis ring colony may be transferred to Chicago ere long.

In recent months five of the best boxers in this vicinity have placed themselves under the management of Chicago men, Harry Kabakoff being the only local boxer of first water to continue his St. Louis affiliation.

Patsy Flanagan, Kid Bandy, Frankie Osner, George Butch and now Peewee Kaiser have gone to Chicago for bouts and have all made quick connections. Bandy hurt his hand and has not fought recently, and Butch is returning to St. Louis for a bout at the Coliseum next Tuesday. But the others are still camping abroad.

Flanagan has fared better than any of the others and has accumulated over $10,000 in cash as a result of frequent fights in the Chicago district. He was well received and has had matches with the very best men in the bantamweight division.

Former Rivals Now Stable Mates.

One of the queer phases of the Flanagan-Kaiser situation is that where once there was friction between their former managers of so keen a nature that they could not be brought together, now they are hobnobbing under the same tent.

Kabakoff, a boxer of more than usual promise, will get another chance to exhibit his present fine form at the Coliseum Tuesday night, when he opposes Tony Caponi.

Caponi, bouts with high-rank featherweights show, is a boy of considerable ability. Few of the leaders of his class have had decisive advantages over him while a long list of victories indicates he can step a bit faster than most of the good ones. His knockouts have been few and apparently he relies on skill rather than on heavy artillery to win his battles.

Kabby's recent fine display against Babe Herman, showed St. Louisans what the "Ghetto Ghost" could do when right.

Butch to Box Conway.

George Butch, one of the prodigal wanderers, who has returned at least for the moment, will face the stylish-stepping Frankie Conway of New York. Conway reminds one of Billy Cole of a few years ago, in that he always left the impression, even when being worsted, of having something in reserve. Conway made a fine impression in the first few rounds of his fights here with Johnny McCoy of Cleveland. But both bouts deteriorated into Waltz-Me-Around-Again-Willie stunts and the public was not particularly entranced.

He ought to know too much for George Butch, but that aggressive young man's lively attack will keep Conway busy defending himself, in all probability.

Jimmy Kerns will meet Johnny Lucas in the third 10-round bout on the program, which appears to be one of the best arranged by the Coliseum since the reopening of the game.

Stars Oppose Nashville.

The St. Louis Stars will open a three-game series with the Nashville (Tenn.) Elite Giants at Star's Park, Compton avenue and Market street, this afternoon.

Zev, Winner of Derby Is Victor In the Withers

Jockey Sande's Overconfidence Almost Results in Defeat of Sinclair's 3-Year-Old.

MARTINGALE IS SECOND

Coming Strong at Finish and Would Have Passed Winner in Few More Strides.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Harry F. Sinclair, owner of the Rancocas stable, comfortably stretched out, no doubt, in a steamer chair on the steamship Homeric, received the following wireless message about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

"Zev led all the way. Martingale second. Mile 1:37 2-5.

(Signed) "SID."

This concise message, sent by Mrs. Harry F. Sinclair, accurately described the forty-eighth running of the historic Withers before another big and distinctive crowd at Belmont Park today.

It did not tell, however, of the loss of a heart-beat to thousands when Earl Sande began taking up in the last few strides and Clarence Kummer, quick to see his chance, almost stole the rich prize with J. S. Cosden's Martingale. It did not tell that the victory put Zev in that select list of horses which have won $100,000 or more.

Finish Drawn too Fine.

Zev won eased up by a scant half length—some called it a neck, but the boy drew the finish so fine that Martingale, soundly beaten at the last sixteenth pole, would have won in another stride or two.

Earl Sande makes few mistakes in race riding but he made the grievous one of too much confidence today and deserved a sharp reprimand from the stewards. Too much was at stake for the boy to take so much for granted.

Sinclair, called abroad on business, now has missed seeing Zev run two of his greatest races. He did not go out to Louisville on the previous Saturday to watch him win the Kentucky Derby and $53,600 from Martingale, Vigil and a host of others. He was on the Atlantic today when the son of The Finn-Miss Kearney added the historic Withers and $18,300 to his credit. This brought his total of earnings to $104,465.

Second Victory Over Martingale.

He has the satisfaction, however, of knowing that he owns a horse which is likely to be the best three-year-old in the country. At this moment only Wilderness of the R. T. Wilson stable can be suggested as a rival for the honors. Martingale is not far away and may yet turn the tables in some race before the season is over but Zev has now twice beaten him decisively and for the present the line is clear.

Zev's time today was the fastest ever recorded at the track for a three-year-old.

Zev's victory matched that of Aristides which after winning the first Kentucky Derby in 1875, captured the second running of the Withers. Sir Barton won both the Derby and Withers in 1919.

Olympic Soccer Team Should Be Tested on Field

Municipal Recreation Head Willing to Pit All-St. Louis Eleven Against All-Americans.

Plans of the United States Football Association to select an all-America amateur soccer football to represent the United States in the Paris Olympic Soccer games is all wrong, in the opinion of Rodowe Abeken, superintendent of Public Recreation in St. Louis and the guiding spirit of the Municipal Athletic Association. His criticism is constructive in that he offers what he considers a better plan for the determining of the eleven that is to represent the United States abroad.

"All-America teams mean little," Abeken said today. "It is obviously impossible for a man in New York to say authoritatively that this St. Louis center forward is better than that Boston man, without having seen either in action. The same applies to each position and to the entire eleven. An eleven chosen in this manner might be inferior.

All-U. S. vs. All-St. Louis.

"My suggestion would be to have sectional teams chosen, and the best eleven as between these decided by elimination play. In default of this, inasmuch as St. Louis amateur soccer is far ahead of that in almost any other section, I would suggest that the authorities go ahead with the selection of an All-America eleven and then pit it against an All-St. Louis team.

"That would give the All-U. S. stars a real test. Merely selecting a team hap-hazard and trusting that it will be O K is not the right way to give America its strongest representation."

Municipal Body Recognized.

Abeken yesterday announced the glad news that the Municipal Soccer League had been granted "direct and separate" representation on the United States Foball Council. This was contained in a telegram from Father J. J. Thompson, one of a committee of three who attended the U. S. F. A. meeting in Cleveland.

This was taken to mean that the local body will henceforth be independent of the Missouri District.

The St. Louis municipal organization will have one vote for the first 25 teams and one vote additional for each 30 teams, above the first 25.

POLO GAMES BETWEEN TEAMS OF COUNTRY CLUB AND WAUKONDA TODAY

The second of a three-game polo series between the teams of the Waukonda Club of Des Moines, Ia., and the St. Louis Country Club will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Country Club grounds.

No admission will be charged and parking space for automobiles will be provided.

The first game of the series scheduled for yesterday afternoon was postponed on account of wet grounds and the third will be played Wednesday afternoon.

No time has been set for the playing of the postponed game, but it is probable that it will be played next Sunday.

Dempsey Will Box Ten Rounds Today

For the Remainder of the Week He Will Go Trout Fishing and Rest.

By the Associated Press.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 26.—Tomorrow promises to be the busiest day Champion Jack Dempsey has had since he opened a training camp here in preparation for his world championship fight with Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, July 4. He will box 10 rounds, two each with the giant Negro Godfrey; Jack Barke Pittsburg heavy; Harry Draake British welter, Billy Wells the English welter and Frank Powers, the New York middleweight.

With two rounds of shadow boxing and two rounds with the bag, this will be the heaviest work done by the champion since his camp was established here.

Monday Dempsey will rest in camp without work and Tuesday will go trout-fishing. The entire week will be a lay-off for the camp and there will be no work outs of any kind until about June 4 for Dempsey or his aides.

Jack Kearns, manager for Dempsey left this morning for Salt Lake where he will remain a week.

The usual routine was observed at the camp today. Dempsey took the usual morning run of eight miles and boxed six rounds with Godfrey, Draake and Burke.

The boxing took on the nature of real fighting and Dempsey landed a number of rights and lefts which left his partners, gasping, particularly in the case of Draake and he received a number of hard wallops in return.

Stanley Baldwin, Britain's Premier, Is Spirit of New Political Times in England

Rise From Obscurity Hardly Without Parallel —A Rich Man and Employer of Labor, He Is Not Idealist Dazzled by Dreams.

By Sir A. Maurice Low,

(Washington Correspondent of the London Morning Post.)

WASHINGTON, May 26.

STANLEY BALDWIN is the spirit of the new political times in England. The Conservative party, offered their choice between Baldwin, the manufacturer, and Curzon, the Peer, turn to Baldwin. Ten years ago that would have been impossible.

During the long reign of Queen Victoria Prime Ministers whether Conservatives or Liberals, were either noblemen or commoners of old families: Viscount Melbourne, for instance, courtier and statesman. Gladstone, who had no title but descent. It is true the business man was not excluded. Disraeli showed his good sense and judgment when he made Cross, an unknown Lancashire bank director, his Home Secretary. Later William Henry Smith, the great news vender of England, was made famous -Gilbert's "Ruler of the Queen's Navee," but the premiership was reserved for those men who could claim it by right of birth.

STANLEY BALDWIN.

f Stanley Baldwin is the spirit the times, he is no less the spirit England. It is the Baldwins who made England, who made er might and power, who carried her flag to e four quar s of the earth, o created her ealth and laid e foundation r her solid rosperity. Most f them unknown they have done more for England than er generals and dmirals. The Baldwins of today are the spir ual descendants the merchant dventurers of e spacious days Elizabeth. rewd, sound, rageous, with dacity tempered by restraint, ey worked for e enrichment d strength of gland.

Stanley Baldwin's father became lthy by making iron and steel. as a fortune honestly acquired went into Parliament as so ny men of his class do. The glishmen takes his responsibili seriously. One of the obliga s imposed on wealth is that its essor shall take part in the ernment of his country and not ely vote on election day or e a campaign contribution.

He showed not only marked ncial business and ability but still retained his seat in the se, debating strength and parliamentary skill. The political divergence between Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin is no greater than their dissimilarity in temperament, manner and methods. Lloyd George has the eloquence that comes from the vivid Celtic imagination. He knows his power to sway multitudes by his voice and more than once used it to silence opposition or often hostility. Baldwin is denied that gift. He is no orator. He could not make an impassioned appeal if his life were at forfiet. He can convince men, but he cannot emotionally move them. He is direct, honest, clear. That is power. After listening to one of Lloyd George's flights men often asked what he meant. No one ever asked that after Baldwin spoke. What he said needed no interpretation. There never was any doubt as to his sincerity. His statements were always lucid; his speeches were not brilliant but they were never dull; in the running debate of the House or replying to questions, which is the test of a minister's intellectual stature, he was quick and always good tempered; and there flashed from him at intervals a dry humorous retort that confounded an opponent or ended a tense moment in a laugh.

Marked for Higher Things.

He was marked for higher things. He entered the Cabinet as President of the Board of Trade. which roughly corresponds with the American Department of Commerce. There he increased his reputation but if any one at that time had asked Lloyd's, which will gamble on anything from a fine day at a cricket match to the chances of war, to write a policy that Stanley Baldwin would be Prime Minister in the next five the policy would have been written at odds to suit the most suitable plunger.

There were many Conservatives who conceded that Lloyd George was the essential man for Premier during the war, but considered him no longer necessary after the armistice. England does not love a coalition, it accepts one in a national emergency, but the Englishman takes his politics straight and a government of all parties confuses him. Baldwin was one of the Conservatives who believed the time had come to return to straight party government. Last year, as a result of this agitation, some of the most important members of Parliament in both houses banded themselves together to drive Lloyd George out of power. These men were dubbed in derision by their adversaries "Die Hards," but instead of resenting it and apologizing they boldly accepted the name and the rebellion that had been

Stage World Stirred by Threat of Actors' Strike for 'Closed Shop'

Producers' Association and Actors' Equity Deadlocked Since Last August Over Issue—Contract Which Ended Last Strike Expires Next Year.

Augustus Thomas, Managers' Spokesman, Sees Effort by Players to Control Theaters—Actors' Organization Affiliated With American Federation of Labor.

By KENNETH ANDREWS

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 26.

A NEW actors' strike is a decided possibility; there can be no doubt about it now. Since last August conference committees of the Producing Managers' Association and the Actors' Equity have striven conscientiously and as quietly as possible to reach some sort of compromise. No compromise has been reached. It is difficult to see how any can be reached except the kind that means unconditional surrender on one side or the other. The issue at stake is whether the closed shop shall be established in the theater. Equity prefers to call it "Equity Shop," but for the sake of clarity let me use the other term here and explain later Equity's insistence on its own description. Equity is positive that irreparable disaster will result if the Equity shop is not established. The Producing Managers' Association is positive that irreparable disaster will result if it is. The time for reasoning quietly together has apparently passed. From now on it is to be open warfare.

A curious warfare it is to be; not quite like other battles over this familiar question. You don't find—as yet—much bitterness or recrimination. You feel that the men on both sides are sincere. More than that, you feel that they are honestly afraid, afraid that precipitate action on their own part or on the part of their opponents may cause serious damage to the theater, for which they have a real affection and for whose welfare they are unaffectedly, and even unselfishly, concerned. This fight, if it comes, will have all the passion and all the apprehensiveness of a civil war in some small country more inclined to peace than war.

Will Shake Theater To Its Depths

It cannot fail to shake the theater to its depths. If there is a decisive victory it cannot fail to affect profoundly the American theater of the future. The resources of power are pretty evenly divided. The strength of the managers is being concentrated in the P. M. A. (Producing Managers' Association), the strength of the actors in the Equity. The issue has been raised now, and these two must fight it out to a finish. Conflicts on the closed shop principle between employers and employes are not new. But the reasons why the managers and actors take such unalterably opposed stands go to the very heart of the theatrical situation in the country. This article will attempt merely to set forth what these underlying reasons are.

The last actors' strike was settled at a meeting held in the Hotel St. Regis, Sept. 5, 1919. The agreement which was finally accepted by both sides took the form of a basic contract which the managers promised to offer to all members of Equity. This contract was generally regarded as a victory for the actors, since it included most of the provisions which they had demanded during the strike. Nothing was said in it, however, about the closed shop. This question has been a big factor in the strike, but the managers refused to arbitrate until Equity promised, in writing, not to bring it up. The agreement is, according to its terms, to remain in force until June, 1924. It became evident months ago that when June, 1924, came around Equity would certainly revive its fight for the closed—or Equity—shop; and the prospects for a peaceful settlement of the controversy were no brighter than they had been four years ago. Therefore Augustus Thomas, executive chairman of the P. M. A., and Frank Gillmore, executive secretary of Equity, have been trying to reach a settlement now, a year in advance, so that theaters will not be closed and actors thrown out of work, so that the managers can make appropriate plans for next season, so that negotiations will not be hampered by the animosities sure to be aroused by a strike.

Augustus Thomas' View

Augustus Thomas, speaking for the P. M. A., believes the present contract has proved a success and that it should be renewed. Thomas represents the managers but he has never been antagonistic to Equity. Indeed, the very name of the organization was his suggestion. He told me that the actors had had many legitimate grievances when they struck and he said that it is essential that they have some sort of organization to safeguard their interests, since differences between managers and actors will be unavoidable so long as human nature remains human nature. The problem, he considers, is to find a way of settling them with justice to both sides and to the public which supports the theater.

In his view the present contract does provide machinery for an equitable adjustment of any difficulty. Both sides accept the principle of arbitration by that agreement. Under it, both are equal before any council of arbitration. Undue pressure cannot be brought to bear by either party to any controversy. That is true enough. He does not think it would be possible if Equity could wield the almost unlimited power which a closed shop would place in its hands. "If Equity," he said, "is able, in effect to deprive the manager of the right to employ the actors he may want, if it is able to stop any performance when in its own opinion it is justified in doing so, are they not taking absolute control of the theater?

Affiliation With A. F. of L.

"By insisting on the closed shop, Equity is denying the principle of arbitration. It is seeking the power ruthlessly to impose its will on any board of arbitration. You are a tenant, I am a landlord. We have a lease. You accuse me of violating the terms of my lease because I have not kept the water hot. You have three ways of getting satisfaction. You can take the law into your own hands and hit me on the nose; or you can bring the matter into court, or you can talk things over with me and reach a mutually satisfactory adjustment. That is arbitration, a sensible substitute for an expensive court action. But in case of such a disagreement you do not get a group of your friends together and take possession of my building and force me to accept your terms of settlement. That is virtually what Equity proposes to do with the theater by means of the so-called Equity."

Thomas, who has not only been a man of the theater but also a "master workman of organized labor," believes that Equity's affiliation with the American Federation of Labor is largely responsible for its determined fight for the closed shop. It committed itself to that principle when it allied itself with organized labor, he is convinced, and now labor is demanding that it come through. We must let the attorney for the defense put in a word here, however. Frank Gillmore, touching on this phase of the row, said the American Federation of Labor has no mandate over Equity any more than it has over any union affiliated with it. The A. F. of L. can suggest, not compel, he said. Each local union must vote on any question of policy and decide for itself what action it can take.

"If the American Federation made acceptance of this principle a condition of our alliance with it," he added, "why did it not compel us to insist on it at the time of the strike?" Thus, even on incidental point, they don't exactly agree.

Equity's refusal to renew the agreement is not due to dissatisfaction with the contract itself but to dissatisfaction with the way the managers have lived up to it, according to Gillmore.

"If they had really kept their pledges I am not sure that we would take the position we do. It is true that because of the peculiar nature of our profession there are sound economic reasons for Equity Shop which might ultimately have forced us to hold out for it; I don't know. But our experience with P. M. A. during these last four years has made it clear that the very life of our organization depends on it; and we know that the bettered conditions which our actors face now, won after such immense effort, would speedily disappear if Equity went out of existence.

"P. M. A. makes no effort to see that its own members keep the pledges they have made under our agreement. There have been obivious breaches of faith, but did P. M. A. do anything? Never. The action always had to be started by us. We had to tell the members of P. M. A. what their duties were, in addition to seeing that our own members lived up to their contracts. And this we have done. We have reimbursed managers whenever Equity members have caused them losses by 'jumping their contracts.'

Cites Case of the Extra Matinee

"On the other hand we have had difficulty in getting justice even after the representatives of P. M. A. had decided that we were in the right. For instance, one of the best known managers in New York, when his production was playing in Cincinnati, announced that there would be an extra matinee one week. He refused to pay his actors for it, as he is required to do by our contract. We—not P. M. A.—set about enforcing the ruling which a joint debate of our representatives had reached. This manager tried every possible means to avoid paying the award; but finally he said to his actors, 'All right, here's your money, but you've got to sign a new contract with me or leave my company.' That new contract entirely vitiated the Equity clauses about extra matinees. Two members of the company refused to sign. They were discharged the next day without notice, which was in direct violation of our agreement with P. M. A., but they did nothing about it. We did. The production in question was to open in Chicago at a Christmas matinee. Through our representatives there we told the manager that if he did not take these two persons back and carry out his contract with them his curtain would not go up. He took them back. But why did Equity have to do this? Why did P. M. A. not enforce its own decision on one of its own members? Such things happen frequently. They illustrate what we mean when we say that we cannot possibly be sure that the terms of our contract with the managers will be kept if we do not have a strong organization behind us to force them to keep their word. We cannot have a strong organization—indeed we cannot have any organization long—without the Equity Shop."

One reason why Equity believes its very existence depends on the Equity Shop is the fact that the actor's profession is an itinerant one. The 12,000 members of Equity are scattered from one end of the country to the other. Actors, too, are inclined to be a blithe, happy-go-lucky, folk. When they get away from New York they simply forget that the protection they now enjoy was procured for them by Equity after a bitter fight. So, according to Gillmore, they do not join, or allow their memberships to lapse. With continued peace such as has been enjoyed during the last four years, Equity's membership would steadily diminish, he believes. Only when an Equity Shop is established can negligent, disloyal members and dues-dodgers be prevented from receiving the benefits of Equity without supporting the association which makes them possible. And just as Equity Shop would enable the association to protect itself against irresponsible actors, so it would enable it to protect the industry against irresponsible and dishonest managers. Under the provisions of Equity Shop, no manager can

"Producers Not Our Enemies," Declares Secretary of the Actors' Fidelity League

By HOWARD KYLE.

"Secretary of the Actors' Fidelity League, which is the organization formed by some of the actors who refused to join the Equity Association. The chief reason for the Fidelity members' split with Equity was the latter's affiliation with organized labor."

"The Fidelity League is a group of men and women who have devoted most of their lives to the theater. We try to look a little beyond our own interests, beyond the interests of any one group as opposed to those of some other group. We feel that the theater itself is infinitely more important and infinitely in greater need of protection just now than any one faction in it. We think that the Actors' Equity Association in trying to establish the Equity Shop is actually trying to gain full control of the theater. We feel that they are putting the selfish interests of the actor before those of the institution to which they profess loyalty. Indeed, a prominent member of Equity told me so in so many words that once the Equity Shop was enforced they would, as he put it, 'run the business.'

"Fidelity has proposed what seems to us a fair and efficient compromise arrangement. We believe that there might be established a central exchange, through which all actors might receive their engagements. The large sums of money now spent to support the P. M. A. and the Equity could be used to maintain this exchange. In addition, the fees, which now go to individual agents, would find their way, if needed, into the common treasury. It would be a mutually supported organization. There would be devised thoroughly adequate agencies for arbitration of any disputes. We feel that this would safeguard the dignity of our profession. It would eliminate the deplorable class antagonism which has been developing. It would rid the theater of the idea that an employer is an enemy of the people he employs."

Views of Public Men and Business Heads on Plans to Curb Supreme Court

Many Oppose Any Alteration in Arrangement by Which Majority Can Declare Law Unconstitutional—Others Would Require Two-Thirds Vote.

BECAUSE of the number of cases in which the United States Supreme Court has overturned a law of Congress by a majority of one, a strong effort is to be made in the next Congress to limit this power. Widespread discussion of the idea already is under way. The Post-Dispatch and New York World, as a public service, are endeavoring to sound sentiment on this question.

The proposals already offered are:

(1) Require a decision by the United States Supreme Court nullifying a law enacted by Congress and the President to be at least 7 to 2; sponsored by Senator Borah (R., Idaho).

(2) Require a decision to be at least 6 to 3; sponsored by Senator Fess (R., O.).

(3) Require a decision to be unanimous; sponsored by Representative Frear (R., Wis.).

(4) Allow Congress by a two-thirds vote to override such a decision of the Supreme Court; sponsored by Senator La Follette (R., Wis.).

Men and women, leaders of all shades of opinion, have been asked to answer the question. Their opinions follow:

JONATHAN M. DAVIS, Governor Kansas (D.).—I am firmly of the opinion that there should be some limitation of the power exercised by the United States Supreme Court to nullify a law of Congress, by requiring at least a 6 to 3 vote and by allowing Congress by a two-thirds vote to override such decision.

In cases such as the nullification of the Child Labor Law and the Minimum Wage Law, the wishes of the people, as expressed by their chosen representatives after instructions and mature deliberation are thwarted.

The remedy advised could in no sense be considered as a policy of departing from the Constitution that has carried us so satisfactorily thus far on our path of progress, but, even so, the Constitution could hardly be deemed superior to the will of the people who made it.

ALEXANDER LEGGE, President, International Harvester Company—My judgment is to leave the present arrangement alone. It is pretty generally conceded that the framers of our Constitution were wise beyond their time in the work they did. Certainly it has stood the test of time as well as can be hoped for any of the work of the statesmen of the present day. We do not always like the decisions of the judicial body referred to, but that is no proof that they are wrong.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, President, American Federation of Labor — Of course it is unthinkable that the American public should continue to allow the expressed will of the people to be nullified by five to four decisions of the Supreme Court, or for that matter by majority decisions of the Supreme Court. I am unable to see a cure for the evil in requiring two-thirds decisions. It is quite conceivable that two-thirds of the wrong kind of a Supreme Court would give us just as many bad decisions as we have at present.

We must have a remedy, and therefore let us have an effective remedy. In its last convention at Cincinnati in June, 1922, the American Federation of Labor recorded itself emphatically in favor of giving Congress the power to veto a decision of the Supreme Court. By this means any law declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court could be re-enacted by Congress, and therefore the Supreme Court would have no authority to declare the act unconstitutional.

Let us not trifle with the evil. Let us apply a full-fledged cure and achieve at the same time a restoration of representative Government.

A. L. HUMPHREY, President, Westinghouse Air Brake Company—The principle of the right of a majority to govern is essentially fair and fundamentally American, whether applied to a vote of the electorate or of the Supreme Court. I am, therefore, opposed to any change in established provisions regarding judicial decisions, not only because of a personal confidence in present procedure even though sometimes resulting in five to four decisions, but because no remedy is suggested; that is, losing interests would be no better satisfied in actuality with a seven to two vote or a six to three division as proposed by some Senators.

Is it not obvious that the only real effect of these proposals would be to increase the power of a minority to delay and obstruct in proportion as we abandon straight majority decisions.

With all the power of a conviction growing out of a lifetime of observation and experience, I believe in the fundamental balances set up by the original framers of the Constitution of the United States as between the legislative, the executive and the judicial functions of government.

THOMAS H. HERNDON, President, The American Cross of Honor: It would be unwise to limit the powers of the Supreme Court if by that action it destroyed that balance wheel in the American scheme of government, but the Constitution itself points the way to its solution when it lays down the rule that if a bill is vetoed by the President, Congress may pass the bill over the veto by a two-thirds vote, and it becomes law.

The two-thirds rule is laid down in amending the Constitution and in impeachment proceedings, and if the Constitution can be thus amended it seems reasonable to require a two-thirds vote of the Supreme Court to declare an act of Congress unconstitutional.

JOHN M. PARKER, Governor, Louisiana (Dem.): Legislatures and Congress pass some marvelous bills. Political pressure or popular outcry often results in dangerous legislation. The Supreme Court of State and nation are safeguards for constitutional rights.

With abiding faith in the Constitution of the United States, with the certainty that the Supreme Court is infinitely better qualified than Congress to interpret our Constitution, no change should be permitted in the method by which we have lived and prospered for nearly 150 years.

ALVAN MACAULEY, President, Packard Motor Car Company: The Constitution is one of the wisest documents ever written; it has been a splendid guide and guardian of the liberty and happiness of the people. The Supreme Court, with its present powers, stands as a bulwark against unwise legislation. It has, on the whole, kept us headed right for a century.

Limiting or curtailing the powers of the Supreme Court would have the effect of nullifying the Constitution, or to make it a weak instrument that could be swept aside by an act of Congress, hasty, impulsive or ill-advised.

GEORGE W. P. HUNT, Governor, Arizona (Dem.): In my opinion there should be no question of the advisability of a limitation being placed upon the policy of the Supreme Court of the United States in declaring the acts of Congress unconstitutional.

Before a bill becomes a law, two other branches of our Government, the executive, and the legislative, equally responsible with the court for the interpretation of the Constitution, decide that the law is constitutional when they pass it, and if the court is able to overrule the interpretation of the executive and legislative branches, which far outrank the court in numbers, and, in the case of Congress, usually in eminence of the lawyers, their action is indefensible.

Crime Under Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FIGURES of Hospital Commissioner Dr. G. A. Jordan of St. Louis, showing an increase in the number of alcoholic cases of approximately 100 per cent in the fiscal year of 1922-23 over 1919-20, there being 3434 cases in the former year as against 1716 cases in the latter year, are not near so astounding as are the figures showing increases in major crimes under prohibition, as reflected in the annual police reports the fiscal year, of which ends with March 31. Prohibition became effective Jan. 16, 1920.

In pre-prohibition days city misdemeanors invariably exceeded arrests for State crimes and misdemeanors, but in the year ending March 31, 1922—the last year in which a report has been issued—State offenses jumped clear over city cases, reversing the usual order. In the years 1917-21, inclusive, arrests for city offenses exceeded those for State offenses by 26,343, an average per year of 5268. But for the year 1922 State cases exceeded city cases by 11,712. State arrests numbering 34,753 and city arrests 23,041.

It is urged that the increase in crime is due to the backwash from the war. If so, why was not this backwash felt more in 1919-20-21 than in 1922? Arrests for all causes in 1922 were 57,794; in 1921, 43,152, an increase of 14,642, or 33 plus per cent. Of this abnormal increase, however, only 483 were in city cases, the remainder of 14,159 being in State cases, major crimes and misdemeanors, an increase over State crimes for the former year of 68 plus per cent.

Is it any wonder that law and order leagues are being formed to support the officers of the law under the circumstances?

If the gross showing of increased arrests for major offenses is alarming, an analysis of the specific crimes responsible for the increase certainly furnishes food for profound thought in the minds of thinking people.

Now, let it be said in all seriousness, an entry, "Dramshops Opened and Changes Made," appears in the 1922 report which does not appear in the 1921 report. Of course, there were to be no more dramshops under prohibition, but this news will be reassuring to those who know conditions as they actually exist, that the police have commenced to again designate bars under this well known pre-prohibition phrase, opposite this entry appearing the figures "13" (see annual report of the Police Department for year ended March 31, 1922, page 59).

It is not to be wondered at, taking into consideration the figures as above, that President Harding, in his message to Congress of Dec. 8, 1922, speaking of lax enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, said: "In plain speaking, there are conditions relating to its enforcement which savor of nation-wide scandal. It is the most demoralizing factor in our public life."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ALLOW me to congratulate you on your excellent editorial entitled, 'Borah's Buncombe." You are absolutely right when you say "in dealing with the practicalities of the situation his views are frothings from the ferment of prejudices, vagaries and intangible fancies. He doesn't think straight."

A Rotten Practice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SUCH an affair as the shooting of a Deputy Constable by a supposed-to-be speeder, the other day, is to be regretted. But the practice in the county of putting its deputies on a fee basis is one of the reasons for the affair happening. The more arrests, the more fines and costs and payments to the deputies. I know it to be a fact that they stretch a point in order to make an arrest. Every deputy gets a fee for his arrests. No salary is connected with his position.

A certain county citizen told me that night deputies were compelling lady passengers to get out of cars that were stopped for an infraction of the laws, and ride in the deputy's car to the courthouse in Clayton. He himself said he would do some shooting if his car was ever stopped when his wife was with him.

I know of another case when a man was served with a summons for passing another car on the road. The deputy told him that to pass another car on that road was careless driving, and he was so charged. It cost him $7.50 in Clayton the next morning. While in the hall outside the deputies' room, he heard one say, "Well, I got 16 yesterday."

The men should be paid a stipulated amount, and they will then not be compelled to make unnecessary arrests to make a living.

STANDARD OIL'S STORY.

The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, in the May number of its house organ, The Lamp, discusses the findings of the Senate's investigation of the petroleum industry.

A summary of the inquiry, prepared and given to the press by Senator La Follette, chairman of the committee, charged the various Standard companies with excessive profits; with extravagant management, especially in the matter of executive salaries; with dominating the oil industry through control of pipe lines by which the producer's price of crude oil at the well was fixed, as well as the price of gasoline to the consumer. The further charge was made that the Standard companies did not compete with one another but had apportioned the United States among themselves, each respecting the others' territorial rights. The Supreme Court's decree of dissolution against the original Standard Oil Co. in 1911 had ostensibly been complied with, but, in actual effect, it was charged, was ignored. It was conceded that a pretense of competition was maintained and present marketing methods were more diplomatic than the old brutal, strong-arm practices of the parent company, but the Standard's grip on the industry, it was insisted, was as firm as ever. The continuous discovery of new oil fields, it was explained, retarded price manipulation, but the prediction was made that, when new sources of supply are no longer discovered, prices will soar—a dollar a gallon for gasoline being a not distant prospect.

The Standard of New Jersey denies those charges categorically and in detail. The absurdity of the sensational dollar-a-gallon prophecy is thoroughly exposed. The charge of managerial extravagance is convincingly answered. Otherwise, in our opinion, the La Follette indictment remains fairly well intact.

In any event the charge of excessive profits has not been met, and, after all, that is the crux of the proposition. Those profits cannot be concealed by self-laudatory descriptions of financing methods, nor by specious accounting.

As an example of the latter the New Jersey company says that its stockholders have averaged but 4.4 per cent in dividends since the original Standard was dissolved. This company's earnings from 1912 to 1921, inclusive, were $775,163,260—an average in round numbers, say, of $77,000,000 a year. A few days ago the company reported its last year's earnings as $46,000,000. But it omitted to say that last October it declared a stock dividend of 400 per cent, which means that the stockholders' dividend last year, instead of being 4.4 per cent, was 17.6 per cent.

The stockholders of other Standard companies have fared about as well as the New Jersey's. Indeed, the stockholders of the Standard of Indiana have had fabulous fortune. In the investigation the findings of which the New Jersey company protests the famous stock dividend of 2900 per cent declared by the Indiana company was inquired about, along with a subsequent dividend of 150 per cent and still another of 100 per cent. It was finally ventured by an inquisitor that the holder of one share of Indiana Standard stock in 1912 would now own stock having a market value of $37,200, and Chairman Stewart of the Indiana's board of directors admitted that the calculation was "arithmetically correct."

It is a golden story, the history of Standard Oil. It is the biography of Midas reincarnated. And no audit, however plausibly contrived, can reduce those torrential profits into rivulets of modest earnings. Standard Oil essaying a hard luck tale is droll and impudent.

THE BIBLE AND THE 12-HOUR DAY.

The news columns Friday presented Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation with Bible in one hand and the 12-hour day in the other. The learned Judge discussed the Bible eloquently and expatiated on the necessity and wisdom of religion. And as spokesman of a committee of the Iron Institute that investigated the steel industry he reported it impracticable at this time to abolish the 12-hour day because of the demand for steel products, because of the increased prices which would follow and because of the labor shortage. The investigating committee further reported, through Mr. Gary, that "the 12-hour day was not detrimental to the employes, physically, mentally or morally."

The report is disappointing. Frankly, the public will question both its sincerity and honesty. No committee, however distinguished, no institute, however authoritative, can make the public believe that the 12-hour day is not injurious, physically, mentally and morally. The plain truth is that the 12-hour day is barbarous. Industry itself has condemned it and, under enlightened, efficient management, has abolished it. In adhering to it the United States Steel Corporation affronts public sentiment, arouses antagonism and foments the dissatisfaction which Mr. Gary so piously deplores.

In popular terminology Mr. Gary is trying to sell the public the Bible and the 12-hour day at the same time. He can't do it. He cuts a sanctimoniously sorry figure in attempting it.

FARM BUILDING VALUES.

An Eastern advertising company calls attention to an encouraging aspect of present agricultural conditions. Its point, though of limited significance, is well taken. It should figure largely in the calculations of those interested in farm property, either as buyers, sellers or holders.

The point is this: Farm buildings have appreciated in value since the war in the same percentage that city building values have increased. Every $1000 invested in building before the high-price era is equivalent to an investment of approximately $2130 today. This does not directly profit the farmer who does not expect to sell. It does counsel the inadvisability of selling at pre-war figures and moving to town or city where the new resident can buy or rent only on the basis of present building material values.

On the other hand the buyer who can secure a farm with good buildings at pre-war figures is getting a snap. The present depression is only temporary. With the normalizing of foreign markets or the inevitable readjustment of conditions which must take place if Europe fails to recover short of a generation, the price situation from the farmer's standpoint must and will improve. Agricultural land, with the buildings necessary for cultivation, is the source of human existence. The possessors of it should not let temporary discouragement undermine their judgment.

TYRANNY IN THE COURTS.

There is something offensive to democratic ideas in the power of a Judge to sentence persons for contempt of court. The process deprives the accused of his right to trial by jury, and often denies him the right of offering a defense. Contempt of court savors too much of lese majeste. And when a Judge exercises that power to punish persons for expressing opinions, he goes far beyond the bounds which should limit the employment of the power. A case that shows the practice in its worst light was the fine of $300 imposed by Federal Judge Ross upon the editor of the Memphis Press for protesting against the arrest, also upon a contempt charge, of a labor editor who had criticised the Daugherty injunction in the shopmen's strike. In this connection it is fitting to quote the following utterance of a great American:

> To suffer the civil Magistrate to intrude his own powers into the field of opinion and to restrain the profession or propagation of principles on supposition of their ill tendency, is a dangerous fallacy, which at once destroys all liberty; because he, being, of course, judge of that tendency, will make his own opinions the rule of judgment, and approve or condemn the sentiments of others only as they shall square with or differ from his own.

These are not the words of a present-day radical leader; they were uttered by Thomas Jefferson, who, better than any other man, foresaw the deadly perils of suppression and censorship. The theory that a Court can do no wrong is as false and tyrannical as was the theory that the King could do no wrong. It took blood and violence to overthrow the latter. In a representative government the former can be overthrown by peaceful means, but it must be overthrown if liberty is to survive.

MR. BRYAN REVIVES THE PLEDGE.

Four years after the legal and constitutional annihilation of the liquor traffic we find Mr. Bryan, with pen in hand, importuning his brother Presbyterians to sign the pledge of abstinence! It is interesting to note that he is beginning with the ministers and every officer of the church and then will go down the line to every member. What Mr. Bryan would have said of any man four years ago who previsioned such a picture we leave to the reader's imagination. That he was a mouthpiece of the brewers would have been the mildest accusation to be applied by prohibitionists to such a prognosticator.

The pledge is an honest, fair and legitimate weapon of temperance. But we are somewhat surprised at its revival. It is old-fashioned. Its use began before our generation. It may be said to have had a fair trial and, though effective in individual cases, to have failed to eradicate the evil of excessive drinking. There are more modern and successful methods of fighting intemperance without attempting to enforce it by law and making criminals out of decent people.

What Mr. Bryan is doing, however, is not starting the temperance movement over again. He is rather patching up the open bungholes in prohibition which, he admits, are present in the most decorous, even the most pious, strata of society. His latest inspiration is all but an open confession of the hypocrisy and disrespect for law which have been fostered by prohibition. Who would dare openly to accuse the officers and members of his own church of violating the eighteenth amendment? Mr. Bryan, by inescapable inference, has made that accusation.

A sentence of Mr. Bryan's in another connection is significant: "You can't legislate morality into a man, no, but you can legislate to prevent others from crushing out the opportunity for him to acquire morality." Has prohibition done so? That is a question of fact on which Mr. Bryan would find formidable opposition even in official statistics. With the admission, however, that morality cannot be enforced by legislation and with Mr. Bryan circulating the pledge of abstinence among his good Presbyterian brethren, some progress has been made with the education of that prince of crusaders in the principle of human betterment by individual responsibility.

A TRUE DEMOCRAT.

Although a standpat Republican by birth, training and natural talent, former State Treasurer "Eddie" Miller, of Illinois, has proved himself a true democrat in action and at heart. He believes in the capacity of the people for self-government to the uttermost degree. He derides the doctrine that it is necessary to employ experts to carry on the State's business, even when the most complicated phases of high finance are involved.

In his official capacity he faced the duty of checking large estates to determine the amount of inheritance taxes due the State, and the added duty of passing upon the value of collateral offered by banks as security for State deposits. Some officials, under such circumstances, might have felt that the task was one for experts. But not "Eddie." No haughty bureaucrats nor spectacled accountants for him! Down with class distinctions! Away with the bogy of efficiency! Let George do it! Nay, let Tom, Dick and Harry do it! Aye, not alone Tom, Dick and Harry, but John, Joe, Fred, Bill, August, Cornelius, and their fathers, brothers and cousins, even to the fifth degree removed!

No selfish discrimination can be charged to him. He parceled out the jobs—and the $160,000 that went with them—with impartial hand. The beneficiaries included farmers, lawyers, business agents, switchmen, editors, bankers, grocers, reporters, saloonkeepers, barbers and perhaps chiropractors. There were men of business, of professions, of trades and of neither. If any line of endeavor or any character of leisure was omitted, it may be charged to inadvertence rather than to willful neglect.

Mr. Miller upheld the best tradition of Illinois. This is government of, by and for the people—particularly by and for. Senator La Follette talks of bringing the government back to the people. Let him gaze upon Illinois!

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
Mr. Bryan
Has us going
All around;
Looks as if The Bryan culture
Had the Opposition downed.
Once we used
To think it nothing
More than
Humor from the Platte.
But of late
We see it comes to Something vastly
More than that.

Think of one man,
By admission
In the course
Of sundry storms,
Putting over
On the country
Eight political Reforms!
Nor have we
The least assurance,
Awed by his Exultant roar,
That he does
Not mean to make us
Swallow six
Or seven more.

In the past,
My sweet Luella,
When our youth
Was in its glow,
All the seed
Of this mad harvest
Did we unsuspecting
Sow.
Mr. Bryan then
Amused us:
Many were
The quips we tossed
As to this
Or that proposal,
Little thinking
Of the cost.

No one raised
A voice to warn us
That for every
Bryan jest
He'd revenge
Himself upon us
With a little Added zest.
No one told us
That for making Jokes about
The cross of gold,
He would one day
Live to see us
All boo-hooing
In the hold.

So it happened,
Little girlie:
One time classing
Him with those Somehow born
To entertain us,
Now we shudder
To the toes.
He who formerly
Amused us,
Being least
Of all our dreads,
Is Caligula
Returning
For to cut off
All our heads.

No doubt you have been reading the Van Loon histories, gentle reader, and have observed the secret of that gentleman's success. If we take the history of mankind as a tragedy we have not enough tears for it; but if we take it as a serio-comedy, as Dr. Van Loon does, it becomes a fascinating and enjoyable story. One would imagine that all historians, discerning this, would let the humor of history pervade its every printed page; but historians are like everybody else. That is, they are recruited from all the moods of human temperament, and it is only occasionally that we have one in whom we discover that man, despite the seeming unbearableness of his lot through most of recorded time, has been far from borne down by his weight of woe. There has been more misery and more laughter in Ireland perhaps than anywhere else in the world. When the elder Cato, beyond his eightieth year, stood answering a charge against him, he said: "It is hard to live in one generation and be tried by another." It is hard; and we all need the kindliest judge we can get. How hard we first realized ourselves some years ago when there was brought to St. Louis and exhibited at the foot of Olive street one of the old prison ships in which England transported her felons to a penal colony in Australia. The people who made that trip were usually those whose undesirableness in England could be emphasized by the distance they were sent rather better than elsewise. That is, they included a good many social and economic heretics, such as simple-minded folk believing that what Christ says in the four gospels should be taken literally. Anyway, we went down to see the ship. It was a horrible old thing with dark cells under decks, with chains and manacles—in a word, frightful with man's inhumanity to man. Yet we dare say those ships sailed for Australia in the approbation of pretty much everyone, including people like ourselves, which shows how our viewpoint differs from one time to another, and how hard it is to live in one generation and be tried by another, precisely as Cato said. That this is not as well understood as it should be was proved to us a few days after we went down to see the prison ship. We received from one of our readers, probably the only one we have, a note. It said: "Dear Just a Minute: I saw you down at the old prison ship talking to the captain, whom you seem to know. I wondered if you could induce him to come out and look at my flat." We answered that with these words, which are in the vein of Dr. Van Loon: "Dear sir: The generations do not judge themselves, but one another. In a time to come, when the whole horror of our own time bursts on another, some enterprising showman will no doubt take your flat about the country and people will be glad to pay 25 cents to see it." There are as many histories of mankind as there are points of view. We like Dr. Van Loon's because ~~ours also~~ is the point of view of amused looking on. Humor is an elemental thing. We need it when we look on high places upon this world. But the world is not in good shape. It took us some time to find a point of view that made head or tail of it. We finally got one by recalling that most of us occupy our lives pretty much with accumulating heritages for our children to quarrel over. So it is with man. His heritage is the earth, and what a shindy there is over it! People like Wells and Van Loon know these warring heirs quite well. They know the lawyers on all sides and the great court in which from the time of the Old Testament this contest has been raging. It is a great story, and there are as many versions of it as there are look-offs.

CHURCH AND LABOR UNIONS.

REV. HENRY S. SPALDING, S. J., in the Q Work, St. Louis.

CATHOLIC ethicians teach that men have same right to unionize to protect themse as capitalists have to promote their inter Where unions do not overstep their bounds infringe on the rights of others, no legisla power is justified in opposing them. Like other associations, they are obliged to con to laws which are directive of the general but in the very nature of things they have a to exist. The principle of their exisence is changeable. No one will deny that member the human race may band together for poli or social purposes: in fact, it is evident that of the best qualities inherent in the very of man cannot be developed apart from and political institutions. Nor can all the in ests of the workmen be safeguarded apart unions. Without the union the workman is a to unlimited evils; he becomes a toy, a mach nay, more, a very slave in the hands of those whom he toils. Never can he master the te calities of law; unaided he cannot afford to cure the services of skillful pleaders to look his interests; unaided he cannot in any effe way present or press his claims. Just as it been found necessary to unite capital in ord achieve the great commercial successes of modern times, so too, has it been necessary the workers to unite, to pool their interest present their claims as one man, to have representatives, to demand collective barg to stand shoulder to shoulder and refuse to any injustice on the part of capital.

All these rights and claims have Cath icians conceded to the laborer. Every just mand of unionism has been sanctioned by writers of the Catholic Church. These can assure the laborer that the principles forth for his protection will not be bankrup a few decades, but are built upon the unch ing relationship of God with His creatures. cannot settle the labor problem or any other the social problems of our day and disregard or the spiritual nature of man.

INTERPRETING AMERICA.

From the Detroit News.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER is to a series of lectures in England. The emotion this fact will arouse in the American is one of pleasure. It seems fitting revenge for all that the British have said to us here and about us after returned home. But there is a serious Dr. Butler's lecture tour, which no cynical over the discomfiture of the British during his lengthy discourses can drive our minds. Dr. Butler goes to Great Bri interpret America to the English. Could thing be more absurd? Nobody could America adequately. President Harding conceivably interpret a side of America might Senator Borah, J. P. Morgan, Debs, Mary Pickford and Jackie Coogan. Ruth, in a completely inarticulate tour British Isles, could probably give the a fairly human appreciation of one side Americans. Dr. Butler can interpret a America to England, but the part he can pret is microscopic, and containing within un-American than American attributes.

No person can interpret all America

WHY ACTORS THREATEN TO STRIKE FOR CLOSED SHOP

force his actresses to spend practically all their salaries for costumes; no manager can play a production for two or three weeks, then "strand" the company, take what money there is in the box office and leave the actors without salaries. Such competition is not fair to the honest manager who will suffer heavy losses rather than break his word. Equity has largely eliminated these injustices; but, Gillmore believes, it can continue to do so only if securely buttressed by the Equity Shop.

Closed Shop Charge Denied.

Now Equity Shop, its defenders say, does not mean a closed shop. It means an open shop, open to everybody who receives money as an actor.

"Mr. Thomas lays great stress on the point that the Equity Shop would do away with arbitration," said Gillmore. "I beg to state that in this he is not correct. Let me quote from the proposition officially passed by Equity Council, indorsed by our members, and sent to the P. M. A. It proves that the contention of the P. M. A. that arbitration will be done away with is not sincere; since we are ready to pledge ourselves to the contrary. We told the P. M. A. that Equity 'will pledge itself to the principle of arbitration, thus obviating strikes, and will promise to agree both by contract, and, if necessary, by appropriate changes, in its fundamental laws, which changes shall remain fixed in the constitution during the life of the agreement, not in any wise, directly or indirectly to interfere with either the kind, quality or character of plays offered for production, nor with the casting thereof, nor with the remuneration to be paid to its members, and it will guarantee a continuance of its open door policy whereby anyone offered a part by a manager automatically becomes eligible and cannot be denied membership. Equity is willing, if required, to give any reasonable guaranty against a breach of these promises if the P. M. A. will give the same guaranty against any violation on its part.'"

Equity Shop does not mean that managers may not employ non-Equity members, Gillmore added; it means only that Equity members will not play in the same company with nonmembers. Nothing in the proposal, he insists, prevents a manager from employing an all non-Equity cast. That is Equity's answer to the charge that it is rejecting the principle of arbitration and that it is seeking absolute control of the theater.

Equity brings the counter charge that the Shuberts and Erlanger have pooled their interests in certain cities; and that they have proposed to organize a $60,000,000 theater-owning and producing organization and sell the stock to the public. "With that power concentrated in the owners' hands, the actors must have an organization to balance it," said Gillmore. "Without it the chairman of the Managerss Association would absolutely control the American theater."

Lack of Legal Protection.

Gillmore claims that because of the exigencies of theatrical life an actor has practically no protection under the law. If a man is playing in Denver and feels injustice has been done him, he may file suit against the manager; but the case will not be called for a month or so. The actor can't wait in Denver that length of time. A month later he may be in Chicago or New York. Even if he should stay in Denver, the manager would not be there. So how, asks Equity, can an actor get justice through the courts? With an Equity shop he can get justice.

Equity points to its recent successful fight against the Levy bill to legalize Sunday performances; to its present fight in South Carolina against a measure to place an additional 10 per cent tax on theatrical tickets; to its fight in Texas, where a ruinous tax on tent shows (the only form of entertainment in certain parts of the State) was defeated. Legislative attacks on the theater are constantly being launched. To withstand them means a big and constant expense. "It falls on Equity," says Gillmore. "How can we go through with it if the people who are benefited are not forced to support us? And our experience has demonstrated that only a strong Equity Shop can force them to support us. Four years ago Equity was a joke. We were laughed at by the managers. Their answer to us then when we made a complaint was simply, 'Well, what are you going to do about it?' That is changed today because we have the power to back up our complaints; and that power is ours because we already have Equity Shop in theaters not affected by the P. M. A. Their objections to Equity Shop are based on theories as to what might happen; our determination to have it is based on knowledge of what has happened."

"The actors and managers have the same muzzle velocity," declared Mr. Thomas, "but they have different trajectories. The actor thinks in terms of his next engagement. The manager thinks in terms of the life of his play, which may be two or three years. The actor thinks in terms of his salary; the manager must consider the problem of financing sometimes three or four productions, which means considerable capital. Now, the theater has always depended upon outside investors; to live, it must have their support and confidence. It would become extremely difficult to persuade outside capital to make necessary investments in the theater if we vastly increase the hazards. That's exactly what an Equity Shop would do."

Sees "Extended Shop" Menace.

Thomas is of the opinion that the Equity Shop would bring with it the menace of the "extended shop." In his view there is no reason for believing that organized labor would function differently in the theater than it does elsewhere; that is, if it were discovered that the costumes for a production had been made by nonunion labor. Labor could decree that union stage hands and carpenters and actors must refuse to work. Many different lines of industry merge in a theatrical production. Can capitalists risk their money, he asks, on an investment which may so easily be rendered worthless by a word from some central body?

Despite Equity's disclaimers, he is thoroughly convinced that Equity Shop would "bring about a condition under which it would be impossible for any actor to practice his profession unless he joins the Equity and brings himself to abide by any and all rulings of the Equity Council, no matter how ill-advised those rulings may be." That is quoted from the resolution adopted by the Dramatists' Guild, on Jan. 24, 1921; and, according to Thomas, the dramatists take the same position today. The resolution also stated that Equity Shop "would do away at once with any arbitration in the theater, for the reason that any policy of Equity Council could not possibly be opposed."

"I don't believe," Thomas wrote to Gillmore, "the public will stand for soviet control of the theater. I don't believe that being parties to individual contract and the State which is to review them it will look with favor on the interposition of a third responsible entry, however benevolent, whether that newcomer be a labor union, a Masonic lodge, the Ku Klux Klan, the Fidelity League or the Actors' Equity Association."

"Equity's stand is particularly deplorable now," he told me, "because at last we have a State law which gives legal and binding effectiveness to settlements reached by arbitration. Under our present contract with Equity both sides pledge themselves to arbitrate their difficulties. Now the results of these conferences are confirmed by the court and are enforceable precisely as if they were judgments in a court of law. Equity will destroy our machinery for arbitration, just as it gains complete effectiveness, if it insists on the Equity Shop. Yet it does insist on it. No concessions which the managers can offer—and they have offered some quite extravagant concessions, in my opinion—can swerve it from that purpose."

Concession Offered.

In those concessions P. M. A. offered to "refuse to engage an actor now a member of the Actors' Equity Association who is hereafter dropped from that association for non-payment of dues or who shall at the time of said engagement be in arrears of dues to the Actors' Equity Association. Later they offered to collect, "from all actors not members of any actors' association an amount of money equal to the Equity dues, to be turned over to any charity agreed upon," and also they offered to give "in all theaters of the United States under P. M. A. control on a one-day's drive a sick benefit to be applied exclusively to the members of the Actors' Equity Association." P. M. A. believes that this would remove Equity's fear that nonmembers will be able to get equity terms without supporting the association; and also guarantee Equity that its members would be assured advantages over nonmembers.

Equity refused these concessions on several grounds. First, it said, there is nothing to prevent the managers from disbanding P. M. A. and reorganize under another name. They could do that in two days and then any ageement would be voided. Equity with its large and scattered membership could not reorganize in five years. Second, the concessions make no provision for new members; they apply only to those in Equity now, and the profession might expand 20 per cent in a year. Third, nothing is said about resignations from Equity. Past experience has shown that actors can be lured away by the temptation of a better contract. Gillmore pointed out that the minimum salary clause for chorus girls had been grievously abused, with the result that 75 per cent of the members of the sister organization were weaned away. By extending such practices P. M. A. could smash Equity in 10 years. Gillmore emphasized the point that P. M. A. had openly refused to include new Equity members and resignations in the terms of its concessions. Finally Equity, he said, wants to kill forever any chance of paternalism. "We don't want charity. Equity can take care of its own members. We don't want a million dollar clubhouse. We'd rather have independence."

It is a pretty tight deadlock, you see. It may take a strike to break it.

BALDWIN SPIRIT OF NEW POLITICAL TIMES IN ENGLAND

smouldering in the coalition was now an open flame.

Baldwin had served Lloyd George, the Government and his country loyally and faithfully so long as there was no alternative, but his concept of duty had not swerved him an iota from his Conservative principles. He went into office a Conservative, and Conservative he remained. Late in the summer of last year the "Diehards" felt themselves strong enough to bring the issue to a test. Lloyd George accepted the challenge: He was defeated, the Liberal party split into fragments, Labor was recognized as the official opposition and Bonar Law came in as the head of the Conservative majority. In the new Government, which took office early last October, Stanley Baldwin was Chancellor of the Exchequer; thus in a little more than five years he passed from the obscurity of the rank and file to the second most important post in the Government only a few months later to become the head of the Government. With the exception of the younger Pitt, who, two years after he entered the House, became Chancellor of the Exchequer and Prime Minister the following year, there is, it is believed, no similar instance in English politics of such a rapid rise.

Resorted to No Device.

What will be Stanley Baldwin's policies and his methods of securing them? Americans who were brought in contact with him in Washington during the debt negotiations earlier in the year do not need to be told. At that time the act of Congress was in existence fixing the minimum interest at 4¼ per cent and requiring the entire debt to be liquidated in 25 years. "We want to pay this debt, we mean to pay it," said Baldwin quickly convinced that he was not possible." The members of the American Debt Commission were quickly convinced thathe was not the diplomat bargaining for terms but the business man talking business. In the minds of the Americans there never was any doubt regarding his sincerity. Every fact in his possession bearing on the subject he put before the commission. He made no appeals and resorted to no device. He knew what he could pay. He knew it would be dishonest to promise more than he could reasonably expect to meet. He understood the restrictions placed upon the commissions. He understood the debt, in America, was a political even more than a financial question. He came as a stranger among strangers and he went away leaving the bonds of friendship firmly established.

In the politics of Europe, he will, it is believed, follow the prudent policy of Bonar Law. He will engage in no brilliant but uncertain adventure. He wants to preserve the entente with France, but he will give no encouragement to the French to keep Europe in turmoil. He will not let Germany escape her just punishment, but he will temper justice with common sense. He will trade with Russia if Russia is worthy to be traded with, but he will not sacrifice self-respect in good faith for a mess of soviet rubles. He will not take Constantinople, but he will not take insult from the Turk. The prestige of England will not be lowered by his hands, but he will not seek to enhance it by unworthy means or reckless enterprises.

Hard-Headed, but Human.

In domestic politics he will be progressive. A rich man and a large employer of labor, he has sympathy with and understands labor. He will no more coddle the workingman than he will cringe to the capitalist. His ambition is a contented and prosperous England, an England busy buying and selling, the workingman honestly earning his wages and a sympathetic relation existing between him and his employes. Baldwin is no visionary, no idealist dazzled by his own impractical schemes. He is hard-headed, but human. He takes advice, but his decision is his own.

He is fond of books and pictures, music and the theater, and—pigs. He breeds pigs for fun. Perhaps it is the contemplation of his porkers that has made him a philosopher and convinced him of the folly of trying to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

VIEWS ON PLAN TO CURB POWER OF SUPREME COUR

I should favor a combination of proposals one and four.

J. G. SCRUGHAM, Governor, Nevada (Dem.): We must think of the Constitution first.

Under the Constitution the people elect the President and the Senators and these officers appoint and confirm the Supreme Court Justices. By calling the appointing power to account the people have an effective means of limiting the conduct of the court. Let us exercise that power. We may not do more, safely. Congress has power enough already since five Justices upholding a possibly repugnant law may dethrone the Constitution. To lessen this number would establish minority rule and make Congress supreme over the Constitution.

We are not yet ready for an unwritten Constitution. We are not yet ready to surrender the reserved rights of the States and the people to a central Government. Let us preserve the Supreme Court and the Constitution.

JAMES F. HINKLE, Governor, New Mexico (Dem.): I do not favor any of these proposals, for I do not think it wise or best in any way to restrict or modify the power of the Supreme Court. It is our one body not biased or influenced by political opinion, or future preferment, and should have the greatest power and unrestricted freedom in interpreting the law.

CHARLES A. TEMPLETON, Governor Connecticut (Rep.): The Supreme Court has no power to nullify a law of Congress. It maw declare that a law of Congress violates the Constitution and therefore is itself unlawful, and of course it must interpret the laws. Many laws are ambiguous. And when there are two sides to any question there should be a referee. The Supreme Court is such a referee.

It would be exceedingly dangerous to give Congress or any other body power to override the Constitution. The Constitution is not a perfect protection, but it is the greatest protection the poor man enjoys. It safeguards against oppression and wrong. Whatever weakens that protection opens the road to despotism on the one hand and to anarchy on the other. What Senator Borah and Representative Frear suggest would in effect do away with the umpire and leave it to the bystanders.

B. L. WINCHELL, President Remington Typewriter Co.: Possibly I could approve the second proposal requiring at least the vote of six of the Justices in any such case. In my oponion, to adopt No. 4, the proposal to allow Congress to override a decision of the Supreme Court, would change our form of government in a way that ought not to be tolerated by any good citizen.

THOMRS C. M'RAE, Governor Arkansas (Dem.): I regard the Supreme Court of the United States as the bulwark of American liberty. The power to determine the constitutionality of the acts of Congress has been vested in it, and I think it would be unwise to limit that power, and that it would be extremely dangerous to permit Congress, by any majority, to overrule any decision rendered by the Supreme Court.

MEETING ON GRADE CROSSING

Delmar Boulevard Controversy to Be Discussed Tuesday Night.

The West End Grade Crossing Association has invited members of the Board of Aldermen, the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and members of the Board of Estimate of the city to a public meeting for the discussion of the Delmar boulevard grade crossing controversy Tuesday night in room 208 at city hall. L. R. Bowen, engineer for the Board of Public Service, will explain the city's plan for the elimination of the grade crossing. Nat Brown, vice president and counsel for the Wabash, has been invited also to speak.

"Good Will" Luncheon Tomorrow.

A luncheon in honor of the Chamber of Commerce "good will" party which toured Illinois last week will be given at 1:15 p. m. tomorrow in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce Building. Members of the party will relate their experiences.

17 WOLF PUPS TAKEN ALIVE

Presented to Greene County, Ill., Supervisors for Bounty.

Seventeen wolves were captured alive in Greene County, Ill., last week, and were presented to the Board of Supervisors for bounty. The Board pays $25 for scalps of full grown wolves and $15 for young ones. A litter of 10 wolf pups was brought in from Woodville Township by Vernice Varble and Walter Richey, who caught them in the woods. After being exhibited as the largest single pack of wolves ever captured in the county, the pups were killed and their scalps deposited with the County Clerk, and the bounty of $150 was paid.

Jerry Rector of Rubicon Township found seven pups in a den in his pasture. Traps have been set for the mother wolf who was out foraging for food. At this time of year, wolves do not molest livestock, their favorite prey in the winter, but turn their attention to poultry.

Edwards to Address Traffic Club.

John B. Edwards, chairman of the Election Board, will talk on "The Workings of the Election Commission" at the Traffic Club luncheon tomorrow at Hotel Statler.

COURT LIKELY TO ORDER WIDER ROADWAY IN COUNTY

Width of 44 Feet for Half Mile on Clayton Highway Expected to Be Designated.

The St. Louis County Court is expected to make an order tomorrow fixing the width on Clayton road for a stretch of about a half mile long, west of Pennsylvania avenue, at 44 feet, thus ending the plan of companies opening two subdivisions in that locality to make it a 36-foot road.

The Court, at a hearing Friday, held at the instance of the Automobile Club of Missouri, stopped the installation of curbing in these subdivisions which would have made the road of the narrower width. The present dedicated width of Clayton road west of Pennsylvania avenue is 60 feet and east of that highway, which is about half a mile beyond the city limits, 100 feet, but the finished roadway is not that wide either side of Pennsylvania avenue.

There is a heavy volume of automobile traffic on Clayton road in this stretch. Presiding Judge Smiley of the County Court was of the opinion a 44-foot road might be wide enough to accommodate six lines of machines. That would be impracticable if the machines were moving fairly rapidly, automobilists say.

Eight Important Contests on Air Meet Program With $13,300 in Cash Prizes

Special Trophies Also to Be Given to Winners of Big Events—Pulitzer Race Carries Money Awards of $4000 Besides Cup.

Eight major contests for special trophies and total cash prizes of $13,300, will comprise the chief events of the 1923 meet of the National Aeronautic Association, which includes the Pulitzer Trophy Race, to be held in St. Louis Oct. 1—3.

The rules book and tentative program, issued yesterday by the Air Board and Flying Club of St. Louis, gives the official list of events to date as follows:

Sept. 20 to 30—"On to St. Louis," for St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Trophy, civilians only, $1000.

Oct. 1—Two seaters, 90 horsepower or less, for Flying Club of St. Louis Trophy, civilians only, $1000. Same day, observation planes for Liberty Engine Builders Trophy, military only, $1500.

Oct. 2—Light commercial handicap planes, 200 horsepower or less, for Aviation Country Club of Detroit Trophy, civilians only, $2000. Same day, large capacity planes for Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis Trophy, civilian and military, $2000, and a model race for the Mulvihill Trophy, members of the Junior Flying League, National Aeronautic Association, $300.

Oct. 3—Air Mail planes for Detroit News Air Mail Trophy, United States Air Mail Pilots, $1500. Same day, the Pulitzer Trophy Race, civilian and military, for Pulitzer Trophy and $4000.

Entries Close Sept. 1.

Free entries close Sept. 1. There will be a 25 per cent penalty on tries between Sept. 1 and 8, and a penalty of 50 per cent imposed on entries after Sept. 9 and prior to Sept. 15. After Sept. 15 entries will be accepted only with written consent of all other entrants.

In the first event, the Chamber of Commerce on-to-St. Louis race, for civilians, the planes must be flown from a point at least 200 miles away, air line, to St. Louis Field, near Bridgeton, St. Louis County. The awards will be based on average speed, arrived at by dividing the air distance by total elapsed time, with no award for speed of less than an average of 50 miles an hour. The first prize will be $500 cash and a silver loving cup; second prize, $250 cash; third prize, $150, and fourth prize, $100.

The St. Louis Flying Club trophy will be for low horse-power planes. The engine must be 90 horse-power or less and all planes must carry a total load of 340 pounds. The race is for civilians and will be three circuits of an inclosed course, a total distance of 150 kilometers, or 93.21 miles, beginning and ending at St. Louis Field. First prize will be a silver trophy and $500; second prize, $300, and third prize, $200.

The Third Event.

The third event, for observation planes, two-seaters, will be either around a circuit or from point to point, and will be judged on the points of safety and speed. It is for the military only and a silver trophy and $800 will be awarded the winner. Second prize is $500 and third prize, $200.

Detroit Aviation Country Club trophy is for the winner of a handicap race for light commercial planes, seating two or more passengers and piloted by civilians. Safety, efficiency and speed will be the factors on which the awards will be made. The cash prizes are $500 for first; $300 for second, and $200 for third, for winners of the speed event and prizes of like amount for the efficiency event in this class, the trophy to go to the pilot with the best average in both classes.

Merchants' Exchange trophy event is for civilians and the military—a race for large-capacity planes, capable of carrying a load of 2000 pounds or over. It shall be over a triangular course for a total distance of 300 kilometers, or 186.42 miles at a speed greater than 85 miles an hour. The prizes are the trophy and $1000 cash for the winner; $700 for second, and $300 for third.

Duration Race.

Mulvihill Trophy is a duration race for model planes, with the trophy and $100 for the winner, and six other cash prizes ranging down to $10 for other contestants. The planes must have a wing span not to exceed 40 inches; all models must be hand-launched, and the only motive power must be that derived from the use of rubber strands. The entries will be restricted to boy members of the Junior Flying League in good standing.

United States Air Mail Service planes will compete for the Detroit News trophy and first prize of $800; second $500, and third of $200. It will be a speed race with planes carrying a minimum load of 800 pounds and attaining an average speed in excess of 90 miles an hour. Only mail service pilots are eligible. The distance will be 300 kilometers.

Pulitzer Trophy Race.

The climax of the meet will be reached in the Pultizer Trophy Race, the last event of the final day, Wednesday, Oct. 3. It is a free-for-all, the winner to receive $2000 cash and the trophy, which is competed for annually. The second prize is $1500, and third prize $500. The event is for high-speed planes that must attain an average speed in excess of 175 miles an hour. The distance of 200 kilometers (124.27 miles) is to be over a trangular course, starting and ending at St. Louis Field.

There will be available for use of the contestants six standard hangars and shop space.

SON INFLUENCED MALLINCKRODT'S GIFT TO HARVARD

Younger Man Head of Alumni Committee That Reported on Need of New Chemical Laboratories.

ELDER MAN GIVES REASONS FOR ACTION

Says Chemistry Holds More Potential Benefits for the Human Race Than Any Other Science.

Announcement of the gift of $500,000 by Edward Mallinckrodt, wealthy chemical manufacturer, for construction of a new chemistry building at Harvard University, made Friday at Kansas City during the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs, followed presentation of a report of a committee headed by Mallinckrodt's son, Edward Mallinckrodt Jr., recommending an immediate campaign for funds for new chemical laboratories for the university, it was learned yesterday.

Edward Mallinckrodt Jr. was graduated from Harvard in 1900. He was named chairman of a committee of the Associated Harvard Clubs to study the needs of the department of chemistry, last year. The report of this committee was before the meeting in Kansas City when the gift was announced.

Tells Object of Gift.

The senior Mallinckrodt said yesterday at his residence, 16 Westmoreland place, that he hoped his gift would contribute to American progress in chemical engineering by giving American youth laboratory facilities equivalent to the equipment of commercial chemical plants. The reason for the choice of Harvard, he said, was his son's graduation there, that it is the oldest American university and that its chemistry faculty, headed by Theodore W. Richards, is notably excellent.

"Chemistry holds more potential benefit for the human race than any other science," Mallinckrodt said. "It is the foundation of medicine and biology. American youths have not had as great an opportunity for the study of chemical engineering as has existed for the youths of some other countries."

Dispatches from Cambridge, Mass., to the Post-Dispatch yesterday stated that the gift, characterized by President Lowell of the university as "a great light in the darkness," would be used to construct one of several buildings in a proposed chemical group.

Will Bear Donor's Name.

The structure will bear Mallinckrodt's name and it is believed at Cambridge that it will stand on the piece of ground between the new lecture hall and the university museum, near the Wolcott Gibbs and Coolidge laboratories. The entire proposed chemical group is estimated to cost $2,000,000.

The report of the committee headed by Edward Mallinckrodt Jr. stated that the dilapidatio nof Boylston Hall, the present chemical laboratory, "is almost beyond belief." Boylston Hall was inadequate 33 years ago and repairs, no matter how extensive, would only result in "a third-class laboratory with accommodations for about half the number of students who would be forced to work in it," the report continued.

"It is not a matter that concerns only the division of chemistry," the committee declared, "when as many as 35 to 45 per cent of the undergraduates are involved. The necessity of the occasion demands that every university man and every friend of the university should at once become interested in this most vital need. When the Associated Harvard Clubs and the alumni really understood this deplorable and impossible condition of the division of chemistry, this committee believes that they will not rest until the situation is cured."

Gave $166,000 to Washington U.

The senior Mallinckrodt gave $166,000 in 1916 toward a fund of $500,000, which, with $500,000 given by the Rockefeller Foundation, completed a $1,000,000 endowment of Washington University School of Medicine for research work in pediatrics, which deals with the hygiene and diseases of children. Mallinckrodt is a member of the Board of Trustees of Washington University.

He also gave in 1916 an endowment of $100,000 for the "Jennie Mallinckrodt Ward," in the St. Louis Children's Hospital, established in memory of his wife, who died in 1913.

Mallinckrodt, with an older and a younger brother, established a chemical manufacturing business here, following his graduation from the University of Berlin in 1867. The original factory was a building 40 by 80 feet. Both younger brothers died shortly afterward. The Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. now manufactures about 1000 chemicals. Mallinckrodt is 78 years old. His son is active head of the business.

UPWARD TREND TO STOCK PRICES IN LATE WEEK TRADE

How Far Rally Will Go Depends on More Than Technical Conditions, Is View Expressed—Effect of Austrian Loan Flotation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"While the factors underlying the rather impressive market rallies of the past week are diverse, it must be admitted that the improvement came at an entirely natural time and in an entirely natural manner. The preceding declines had been losing vigor. Weak and tired speculators on the long side had been rather thoroughly cleaned out and a large short interest had been built up. Prices had declined, furthermore, to a level which began to invite new buying. With the bear party finding that additional selling induced little fresh liquidation, with the commodity markets showing signs of turning against them, and with the threat of strong fresh buying appearing, the members of this party showed a plain desire to reduce their commitments.

Discount Rate Question.

"How far the rally will go is, of course, something which depends on more than technical conditions. It had already progressed sufficiently, however, to administer a distinct check to the theory, which had been gaining ground under the influence of declining prices, to the effect that business activity has turned definitely downward on a major swing. Such a theory was indeed premature. On the one hand the lull in industrial and commercial buying which furnished much of the motive power for the recent decline in securities, was a natural development of the season and of the phase of the cycle. On the other hand goods generally seemed to be passing into consumption at a satisfactory rate, while with the momentum which business already has attained and with the stimulating effect of fall trade still to be felt, a sudden decline in activity seems most unlikely. The fall season probably will furnish the test of the trend of business. At that time current wage increases will be exercising their full effect, while the railroads will be endeavoring to move the crops without slowing down the turnover in other products.

"Some interest has been aroused by the statement of the Advisory Council of the Federal Reserve Board that business is now progressing in a satisfactory manner and that an increase in discount rates is not called for at present. It is clear that the council's opinion as to rates is subject to limited application. Periods of declining markets are not, of course, appropriate times for increases in rates. If the present recession in business proves to be but temporary, however, and the advance is resumed, the matter will be reversed. Production is, after all, and as the board itself recently has stated, the real criterion of a proper rate policy. If more credit will mean not more production but higher costs and prices, the need of higher rates is positive. Under such circumstances the magnitude of reserve bank discounts is immaterial. If we were to assume that reserve ratios and rediscounts are the proper criteria it is obvious that the importation of another billion dollars in gold would justify an advance in commodity prices to perhaps three or four fold the pre-war level.

The Austrian Loan.

"Announcement that arrangements have been made for the flotation of an Austrian loan is an encouraging sign of the times. That substantial progress has been made in the rehabilitation of Austria was already known. The week's news shows that conservative bankers who have examined the position carefully are convinced that the time is now ripe for a major piece of financing. The leading governments of Europe apparently are prepared to underwrite the parts of the loan floated in their countries and plans evidently have been made to offer ample security for the issue. Thus, Austria is in the process of taking her place beside Czecho-Slovakia as one of the smaller European countries which is demonstrating its ability to restore economic and financial order. These achievements are the more convincing in view of the continuation of the Franco-German impasse. If these central European countries can recover their equilibrium with the main trade of the continent interrupted, they obviously can do much better when conditions are restored to normal.

"The course of prices in the short session gave little encouragement to bearish interests, for after a rather irregular opening active buying of a wide list of industrials started a resumption of the upward movement which soon extended to all parts of the list. Certain specialties such as California Petroleum and American Can continued to lead, but many of the standard stocks apparently were also well bought. With the exception of some of the specialties, however, gains were mostly moderate, and toward the close some reaction from the best prices of the day occurred. Trading was moderately active. Bonds continued firm.

Exchange Market Steady.

"Foreign exchange trading continues to be an uninteresting affair and today's short session brought even fewer than the usual week-end change in quotations. Whta few changes occurred were mostly on the down side, but they were small and the tone remains steady. Dispatches from London report rumors of favorabye developments in the Ruhr, but French francs with very little business done declined ½ to 6.60½ cents and Italian lire list 2 points at 4.78 cents. German marks again were weak, getting down to .0017⅝ of a cent. Sterling was unchanged at $4.62½ and most of the other leading rates held firm.

"Nothing new developed over night to change the course of the principal commodity market. More rains in the South and bullish week-end statistics encouraged some renewed support in cotton which proved to be sufficient to offset profit-taking. With much of the prominent bullish interest taking a less active part in wheat, the market kept within a narrow range. Weather conditions are better for the growing crop and consequently less buying was apparent. Quotations for the active futures were somewhat lower throughout the greater part of thetrading.

"Surplus reserve of the Clearing House banks as shown by the weekly statement was practically unchanged at $10,000,000. The statement discloses, however, a sharp decrease in loans and discounts, the recession amounting to $60,000,000 and bringing the total down to $4,632,000,000. Net demand deposits decreased $11,000,000, this item totaling $3,717,000,000. Other changes were unimportant except for a decline of nearly $2,000,000 in reserve in the Federal Reserve Bank of member banks.

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The short session today and Mayor Hylan's jubilee holiday Monday were factors in the quiet tone of today's dry goods market. Little business way transacted. Print cloths remained unchanged, at 10 and 11¼ for 64x60s and 68x72s, respectively.

With the season at cleaning out in raw silks, prices were unchanged here today. Yokohama reported a quiet market, with no change in prices or lessened activity.

STRONG TONE MAINTAINED ON NEW YORK CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Stocks maintained their strong tone during today's brief session on the curb, with active buying again in progress in the oils.

The upward movement continued in a number of special industrials, while the mining group displayed more activity than in some time, with most stocks reaching higher levels.

Advances in the Standard Oils were comparatively small.

Maracaibo among the independents reached a new high record on a large turnover.

Todd Shipyard was a strong spot in the industrial section, gaining 2 points before the rise was checked, while Universal Pipe preferred, after opening down 2 points, rallied somewhat. Independence Lead was a leader of the mining stocks.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, May 26.—The usual Saturday dullness prevailed in Summer street today. The chief bit of conversation was the sale of 2000 bags of fine noils Friday at around 69 cents. Fine noil prices have been around 80 cents lately and the difference in figures was more than interesting. It was contended today, however, that there has not been much business in fine noils and that in view of the large stocks on hand the price was not unusual.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review today, says:

"Each group in the foreign exchange market moved in an independent manner during the past week, the various fluctuations being governed by special factors and not by general influences. German exchange made a new low, marks dropping on Tuesday to .0017 without any unusually large dealings and Norwegian exchange continued its downward movement, crown checks on Christiania falling to 15.85, a new low for the year.

"Sterling held firm during the first half of the week when buying to remit importers' balances caused demand to advance to $4.63½ but towards the end of the week a supply attributed to security purchases caused a decline of over one cent from the high rate of the week.

"French became weak in the past three days, checks on Paris falling from 6.66½ early in the week, to 6.60 yesterday following the political developments in Paris. Canadian exchange followed sterling, yielding to 97.85. Danish was weak in the first three days when crown checks on Copenhagen dropped to 18.52, but both Norwegian and Danish rallied in the later trading. Poland made a new low record on a decline to .0019. Argentine dropped to 35.85, a new low for the year. Business even in exchanges which swung over a wide range, was small in volume. The extreme levels reached in sterling and French exchange were caused by selling through local bankers, but the possibility exists that the selling orders may have originated abroad."

"Foreign exchange trading continues to be an uninteresting affair and today's short session brought even fewer than the usual week-end change in quotations. What few changes occurred were mostly on the down side, but they were small and the tone remains steady. Dispatches from London report rumors of favorable developments in the Ruhr, but French francs with very little business done declined ½ to 6.60½ cents and Italian lire list 2 points at 4.78 cents. German marks again were weak, getting down to .0017⅝ of a cent. Sterling was unchanged at $4.62½ and most of the other leading rates held firm.

COTTON LIST HIGHER AT CLOSE OF TRADE

NEW YORK, May 26.—Further realizing for over the week end was very readily absorbed in the cotton market today and prices held generally steady on bullish weather and crop advices. After selling at 24.40, October rallied to 24.77 and closed at 24.69, with the general market closing barely steady, but from 12 to 20 points net higher.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 20 points on all months except March, which was two points higher. There was considerable scattered realizing and probably a little selling for a reaction promoted by complaints of a continued dull trade in cotton goods, so far as primary markets were concerned, and reiterated talk of increasing mill curtailment at Fall River. Offerings were comparatively small, however, and the market soon turned steadier on reports of continued showers or rains in the belt with prospects for their continuance over Sunday, and a bullish review of crop prospects in the Carolinas and Georgia, by one of the local authorities. According to this report, the scarcity of labor is serious and the percentage of crop condition in these three states as below last year's. There was also a report that one of the traveling men of a prominent local spot house had reduced his estimate of the Oklahoma State condition from 70 to 65 per cent, and a good many scattering telegrams came in complaining of crop conditions in Central and Eastern belt sections. These features restricted selling and rendered the market responsive to comparatively small buying orders which sent prices up to 27.25 for July and 24.27 for December, or about 20 to 27 points net higher on the active months. The close was several points off from the best under realizing. While no improvement was reported in the demand for cotton goods at first hands, there were indications that more seasonable weather has stimulated retail trade, and cable advices from Manchester said a better business was expected there following the holidays of this week. It was reported that 10 of the Fall River mills had decided to curtail operations for the next two weeks.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Under pressure of a more rapid increase in receipts, the butter market during the week ended today continued weak and unsettled, says a report of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Prices were considered too high and quality unsuitable for storing. Consumption, the only outlet, although considerably enlarged, was not sufficient to absorb the full increase in production.

Under these conditions it is not surprising that the market found little support. Receivers naturally were anxious to effect a daily clearance of arrivals, and this, together with more or less irregularity of the movement of butter to the markets, frequently caused periods of extreme weakness.

Despite the rather heavy declines, there was some indications that prices were nearing bottom. Probably the most important of these was the arrival of increasing quantities of grass butter on all markets, particularly at Chicago. Traders also gave their attention to the fact that this is the first week this season during which the "into storage" exceeded the "out of storage" movement.

The quality of receipts during the week was not so good. Wholesale prices of 92 score butter at Chicago closed at 38½c, a loss of 1½ points.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The raw sugar market was firm and prices were unchanged at 6½c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 8.28c for centrifugal. Business was less active, the only sale reported being a lot of 10,000 bags of Cubas for second half June shipments to an operator. The continued warm weather was looked upon as favorable for an increased consumption of sugar and led to renewed buying by both trade interests and commission houses in the raw sugar futures market today with closing prices at about the best of the day and from 3 to 8 points higher. Closing: July, 6.55c; September, 6.64c; December, 6.09c; March, 4.85c. In refined there was no change in list prices which range from 9.75c to 9.90c for fine granulated, but one of the higher-priced refiners announced that they would accept a limited business at 9.75c. The demand continued of fair proportions. In refined futures there was a sale of one lot for August delivery at 9.85c.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The market for coffee futures showed a further advance today. Buyers found no particular encouragement in the quotations from the Brazilian markets, but there was further covering and a scattering demand on yesterday's report that offerings of Valorization coffees had been withdrawn and the bullish view of the statistical position in the domestic markets. The opening was 7 to 13 points higher. After selling at 9.90c, July reacted to 9.85c, and September sold down from 8.95c to 8.85c, but prices firmed up again, closing at net advances of 5 to 15 points. Sales were estimated at about 25,000 bags. Closing quotations: July, 9.95c; September, 8.80c; December, 8.47c; March, 8.42c; May, 8.37c.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The advance in this morning's two-hour stock market was more rapid and better sustained even than that of the preceding days.

American Can and California Petroleum were the two outstanding features. American Can this morning was within less than four points of its highest.

Coca Cola was one of the features in the specialty list. There was said to have been short selling some time ago in this stock. Driving in of this mistaken short account was the cause of the jump to 80, it was said.

The rise in the share list was general but again it was unevenly distributed. Railway stocks apparently displayed no uneasiness on account of the pending conference at Chicago, but this class of stocks were relatively inconspicuous in the trading of the day.

Heavy profit-taking sales in the last quarter of an hour caused some decline from the best prices in certain directions. But in the main body of the list the buying movement was still going very strong at the close and the stock market left off for the most part well up to the best of the day.

The Bond Market.

The two chief points of interest in today's bond market was the reaction in Liberties and the firm tone in the foreign issues. As to the Liberties the decline, which was not large, was only what might have been expected after the almost continuous rise of the last 10 days.

As to the foreign bonds, while actual quotations were not much changed the underlying tone was called good.

Some of the South American issues were higher also today, notably the Bolivia 8s which have been selling the lowest in this class.

Railroad bonds were again very strong today both in the high grade and the speculative.

$10,000,000 NOTE ISSUE SOLD

The Associated Simmons Hardware Companies has sold $10,000,000 10-year-6½-per cent secured gold notes to a syndicate. The proceeds of this note issue will provide funds to call the present outstanding 7 per cent notes, due in 1925, and provide additional working capital.

The Associated Simmons Hardware Companies own practically the entire capital stocks (except directors' shares) of the Simmons Hardware Co., St. Louis, and other affiliated companies, including distributing corporations located in a number of cities.

GRAIN PRICES SLUMP ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 26.—Grain prices slumped today, losses extending to 2 cents on new crop months and more on current deliveries. Liquidation by tired longs was credited with being prime factors. Kansas report of increased corn acreage was a bearish factor in that market. Wheat was influenced by corn and lower Minneapolis cash wheat.

The State official forecast of Kansas wheat production this season, while smaller than the average for the last five years, proved to be several million bushels larger than some of the grain trade had expected.

Kansas corn acreage was reported as the largest since 1918.

In the local cash grain market Saturday wheat prices fell, No. 2 red being 3c off, No. 3 red 2c to 3c off and No. 4s from 3c to 4c off. There was scattered taking at the declines. Milling demand was limited. Hard wheat was 2c to 3c down. There was no dark wheat on the market. Some soft wheat was carried over. Cash corn dropped 1½c to 2½c. While the manifest was heavy, only a small portion was on sale. There was fair local and shipping demand. Cash oats were ½c to 1c lower. Demand was fair, being both local and for shipment. Offerings were about all taken.

Wheat futures ranged down more than a cent in the early trade with corn also substantially off. Liverpool opened unchanged and then closed ¼d lower on July and October wheat.

Receipts included 22 cars of wheat local and 32 through; 73 cars corn local and 7 through; 17 cars of oats local and 10 through.

July wheat opened at $1.14⅝-½, September wheat $1.12¾, July corn 80⅝c and September corn 77½c.

The three Northwestern markets combined today had 673 cars of wheat, compared with 555 a week ago and 724 last year. Minneapolis today receiving 145 cars, Duluth 160 and Winnipeg 368.

Local wheat receipts, which were 64,800 bushels, compared with 94,800 a week ago and 88,800 last year, included 22 cars local and 32 through; corn receipts, which were 104,000 bushels, compared with 15,600 a week ago and 75,400 last year, included 73 cars local and 7 through; oats receipts, which were 54,000 bushels, compared with 50,000 a week ago and 102,000 last year, included 17 cars local and 10 through; hay receipts were 29 cars local and 6 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 500,445 bushels of wheat, 205,503 bushels of corn, 259,388 bushels of oats; grain stocks comprised 58,943 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 348,655 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 38,145 bushels of No. 2 mixed corn, 89,586 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 75,343 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 223,621 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 7196 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 152,142 bushels of No. 2 rye, 26,652 bushels of kaffir corn.

SLUMP IN GRAIN PRICES IN TRADE ON CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 26.—A lack of confidence was exhibited in wheat market today and the sharp recessions in prices were the result of liquidation by discouraged longs and lack of supporting orders. It is believed that the vacillating action of the market the last two or three weeks was more of a factor in discouraging longs. There seemed to be no buying other than the usual run of resting orders. There was further pressure in the last 30 minutes, when Minneapolis cash wheat was reported 2@3c lower and unsalable. A report from Liverpool said that Russia will have 140,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export this season. Kansas State report, making the crop 99,500,000 bushels, had little effect as a market factor. Export demand was of the usual week-end volume. Milling trade was slow. Market closed 2¼@2⅝c lower. May $1.16½@1.16⅝; July $1.14½@1.14⅝; September, $1.13⅛.

Corn also suffered a sharp break. There was liquidation from the start, and this, it is believed, was due to the increase of 11 per cent reported in the Kansas acreage, with condition 3 points better. Later there was pressure based on the slump in the cash market, with premiums off ½c early and demand slow later. Shipping demand was low. Receipts showed a slight increase. Market closed 2⅛@2½c lower. May 77⅛c, July 76⅞@76¾c, September 75⅝@75½c.

Oats followed other grain, with September selling at a new low point on the crop. Shipping demand was slow. Market closed ⅞@1⅛c lower. May 41¼c, July 41@41⅛c, September 39⅛c.

Provisions were lower. There was some liquidation in evidence, while shorts covered on the break. Lard closed 7½c lower and ribs 5@7½c off.

Tallow and Grease.

TALLOW—No. 1 country in barrels or tubs at 6½c per pound, and No. 2 at 5½c. Cake tallow at 7c per pound.

GREASE—Country, in tubs: Brown at 5c; yellow at 6c and white at 7c per pound.

SHEEP RUN LARGEST OF YEAR AND PRICES OFF

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

Cattle and calves	25,840	19,769	21,739
Hogs	84,287	97,505	76,722

Horses and mules	995	882	890
Totals	130,174	128,756	110,580

With receipts the largest of the year, sheep and lambs suffered a sharp decline at the St. Louis National Stock Yards for the week just ended. Hogs also finished slightly lower for the period, also some classes of cattle. Improvement in the trade was confined largely to native beef steers and light yearlings. The advance in steers from native territory figures 25c and in some cases 40c. The run was of good volume and quality was attractive. The bulk of offerings cashed from $8 to $9.75, with a weighty drove making $10.40 per cwt. or the highest for the year in their class. Western steers, of which there were some 170 cars on sale, all from South Texas and offered on the native as well as the quarantine side of the market, ranged in price from $5 to $7.75. Values in this department broke 25c on an average. Light yearlings from local territory varied from steady to strong, with some of the more attractive droves registering a 25c advance. Sales were noted largely at $7.75 to $9.75, with top steers reaching $10 and $10.15. The abundance of Western steers had the usual adverse influence on the cow market and butcher grades dropped from 25c to 50c on the better kinds to 50c and in some cases 75c on the medium and common droves. The bulk sold from $5.25 to $6.50. Cutter cows at $3.25 to $4 and canners at $2.75 to $3.25 were not materially changed. Bulls dropped 25c and in some cases 50c under a restricted demand. The better offerings moved largely at $5.00 to $5.75.

In stockers and feeders the better steers remained steady, although a larger supply of the plainer kinds gave buyers an opportunity to force a 25c to 50c decline. Stock cows and heifers likewise closed on a somewhat lower basis. Veal calves were hit for $1 decline Monday, the bulk of best selling at $9.25 to $9.50. The market "came back." Preceding days, however, registering a $11 high at the best time. Another slump at the close of the week, however, reducd bulk to $9.50, or little better than the mean opening Monday.

Sheep Supply Liberal.

Each day the past week saw a liberal supply of sheep and lambs on sale so that the total receipts for the week are by far the largest received this year, being in the neighborhood of 19,000 head, made up largely of spring lambs although there was a good sprinkling of clipped lambs and sheep on sale. At the close of last week best spring lambs were going at $17@17.25, but this week similar grades sold at $15@15.25, showing a loss for the week of $2. Plainer lambs are selling at $13@14.75, culls $9@12.50. Those that are not fat are selling very slowly and at irregular prices. Clipped lambs are also much lower, but just how much it is hard to say as none were sold the last few days. Mutton sheep at the close of the week were going at $6 as against $7 the week previous. Heavy and plain ewes got down to $4, choppers and bucks $3@3.50 and canners $1@2. Breeding ewes are beginning to arrive and are selling at $7@7.50.

Hogs Slump, Then Rally.

Hog receipts for the week have been moderate, although runs during the first part of the week were heavy. For the last three days receipts fell off considerably and at the end of the week a total of approximately 84,287 head is shown. For the previous week a total of 97,505 hogs was received, this week showing a decrease of 13,218 from that time. Compared with the run last year for the corresponding time, receipts show an increase of 7565 head. Quality during the week just ended has been about on the average, with most of the offerings lacking greatly in weight. The demand this last week has been good for hogs from 200 lbs. weight and up, in fact, these weights have sold better than the lighter kinds. The pig supply was more than enough to fill the demand, and consequently prices of this class are lower. Prices of hogs during the fore part of the week reached a new low level for the year. The top one day stopped at $7.50, the lowest since Dec. 21, 1921. Lighter runs later in the week enabled salesmen to force prices upward, but the close found hogs still selling lower than last week. Heavy swine from 250 lbs. and up, when compared with last week, are 5c to 10c lower. The spread in prices between the heavy and light kinds all week has continued narrow. The lighter weights from 150 to 240 lbs. show little change, selling in much the same spread as last week's close. The pig market, although somewhat improved at the close, is still from 15c to 25c lower than the previous week. The strong-weight kinds at the close have met with a right good demand, although the lighter kinds are no better. Light lights from 130 to 140 lbs. weight are selling 15c to 25c lower and strong-weight kinds from 120 to 130 lbs. are also 15c to 25c lower. The medium weights from 110 to 120 lbs. and those from 110 lbs. and down are a flat 25c off for the week. Packing sows are 25c lower and stags also sho wa 25c loss from a week ago. The week's close finds the different classes of hogs selling at the following prices: Heavy hogs, 250 and up, $7.50 to $7.60; light and medium weights, 150 to 240 lbs., $7.65 to $7.75; light lights from 130 to 140 lbs., $6.75 to $6.90, and strong-weight pigs from 120 to 130 lbs., $6.50 to $6.75. Medium-weight pigs from 110 to 120 lbs. are selling at $6 to $6.50, and light pigs and peewees from 110 lbs and down from $5.25 to $6. Packer sows, $5.75 to $6, and stags from $4.50 to $5.

Horse and Mule Trade.

With slightly less than 300 head on sale in first hands for the week, horses ruled strong and active on the better kinds and slow, barely steady on the less desirable offerings. Buyers were looking for big work horses and thick heavy chunks weighing 1400 lbs. and over. Mots of the run sold at auction and a good clearance was made.

NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice drafts	$155@190
Medium to good drafts	115@135
Good to choice chunks	80@105
Medium to good chunks	45@ 80
Choice Southern horses	55@ 75
Fair to good Southern horses	30@ 55
Smooth mouthed Southerners	10@ 30

Mules, as horses, were in somewhat larger supply than the week previous. Better than 500 head comprised the showing out of first hands and as usual, the good big offerings were in the principal demand, leaving the other kinds with indifferent outlet. In-between and small stuff were especially slow, although a clearance was finally made of virtually all of the week's arrivals.

NATIVE MULE QUOTATIONS.

Draft mules, 16 to 17 hands	$185@250
Sugar mules, 16 to 16.2 hands	175@225

ONE OF "GOD OF VENGEANCE" ACTORS FORMER ST. LOUISAN

Morris Carnovsky, One of Those Convicted of Presenting Immoral Drama, Attended Washington U.

Morris Carnovsky, one of the actors in the play, "The God of Vengeance," who were found guilty in New York Wednesday of violating the penal laws forbidding presentation of an immoral drama, formerly attended Washington University and took a leading part in dramatic productions of Thyrsus, a student society. He lived with his family at 4159A Delmar boulevard.

The play, as has been told, deals with life in a brothel. Those connected with it have contended that its presentation was justified by the fact that it depicted such life in a manner to make it extremely unattractive. Sentence will not be pronounced on the convicted actors and the producer until June 22. The maximum penalty is a three-year term in the penitentiary and a $500 fine, but early release from prison terms could be obtained on parole.

SEES INDICATIONS BRITISH TRADE HAD A SETBACK

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, May 26.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post in review today, says:

"Wall street and the London Stock Exchange have a strong point in common; namely, inability to calculate how far international politics are likely to affect the course of prices in the immediate future.

"Our uncertainties naturally are increased by recent domestic political developments. It is conceivable that both locally and internationally those developments may be interesting, because Baldwin stands for straightforward business methods as contrasted with ordinary political tactics and even with slow international diplomacy. This partly explains why he has the respect of the Labor party, which greatly dislikes political maneuvering. Baldwin also has indomitable courage as amplified by his opposition to Lloyd George and the coalition last autumn when the changes favored his being smashed instead of as happened.

"Evidence accumulates of trade having suffered a recent setback despite our monthly figures of unemployment having diminished. Given, therefore, a continuance of international political uncertainties, comparatively stagnant trade and easy money may be expected for a while longer."

SWISS TO VOTE JUNE 3 ON PARTIAL PROHIBITION LAW

Authorities Alarmed by Rapid Increase in Private Distilling of Alcohol.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LAUSANNE, May 3.—Inspired by American prohibition, the prohibitionists of Switzerland are engaged in a campaign to reduce the consumption of strong alcoholic drinks, and on June 3 the people themselves by a referendum will decide the issue.

The private distilling of alcohol has increased so rapidly in recent years and the drinking of pure dregs of distilled liquor, which is given the popular name of "Schnaps," has become so widespread among the masses that the authorities have become alarmed. The medical profession has launched a movement for Federal intervention and control.

The consumption of alcoholic drinks in Switzerland has reached the figure of a billion francs annually for the population of four millions. The 1919 federation of Swiss physicians urged the Government to interdict the manufacture, importation and sale of all distilled beverages. This was held to be too radical, but the campaign now has been vigorously reopened in order to obtain at least partial prohibition.

The manufacture of alcohol is a state monopoly in Switzerland, and the government leases the right of distillation to private companies.

The proposed law, which parliament has already adopted, aims at a double object, the protection of the monopoly by the curbing of private distilling, and the reduction of opportunities for the consumption of alcohol. The local crusaders are collecting statistics of the good effects of prohibition in America to induce voters to support the bill.

A proclamation was issued yesterday—Memorial day—by veterans' observance of the custom of wearing a poppy on Memorial day as a symbol of honor to the soldiers, sailors and marines who died in the world war.

Poppies will be sold on the streets Monday and Tuesday under the direction of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, assisted by other veterans' organizations. Money derived from sale of the flowers will be used for memorial purposes and assisting disabled veterans.

Memorial Service Tomorrow.

The annual memorial service for soldiers who died in action will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at Battery "A" Armory, 1221 South Grand boulevard. It will be under the auspices of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, auxiliaries to these organizations, and Fathers of Veterans' Post No. 1. Henry S. Caulfield, former City Counselor, will be the principal speaker.

Dedication of a marble tablet bearing the names of more than 100 St. Louis and St. Louis County men who died in service with the Eighty-ninth Division, will take place at 9 a. m. today at Jefferson Memorial, under the auspices of the Veteran's Council. The Eighty-ninth Division was made up of Missouri and Kansas troops.

Among the services arranged for today are:

Annual memorial service of the United Spanish War Veterans, Department of Missouri, at 10:30 a. m. at Calvary Baptist Church, 4956 Emerson avenue. The various camps will assemble at Union boulevard and Bircher street and march to the church.

Service at 11 a. m. at the Bowman Methodist Episcopal Church, Carter and Athlone avenues, by members of Ransom Post No. 131, G. A. R., and Ladies' Circle No. 37, Ladies of the G. A. R.

500 Trees to Be Decorated.

The Gold Star Court of Honor will hold a ceremony at 3 p. m. Tuesday to decorate the more than 500 trees planted along King's highway as memorials to soldiers. Each tree bears a gold star and the name of a soldier who died in the war.

On Wednesday members of the Grand Army of the Republic, United Confederate Veterans, and other organizations will decorate graves of soldier dead in various cemeteries. Exercises will be held that afternoon at the National Cemetery, Jefferson Barracks, following a review of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, National Guard.

At 10 a. m. Wednesday the St. Louis Circle No. 37, Ladies of the G. A. R., will hold a service on the Free Bridge. Sailors, marines, a drum corps and children from Kingdom House School will participate. Flowers will be strewn on the river from the bridge.

MISSOURI BRANCH OF SPANISH WAR VETERANS TO MEET HERE

The Missouri branch of the United Spanish War Veterans will hold its nineteenth annual encampment in the First Regiment Armory June 14, 15 and 16, and as this is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the beginning of the war with Spain, it is expected it will be one of the largest attended encampments in the history of the organizations.

A program is being arranged by the Veterans' council of St. Louis in which all veteran organizations will be invited to participate. The date will be announced later. After routine business of the encampment has been concluded the delegates and members of the Ladies' Auxiliaries, which will hold their annual meeting here at the same time, will be driven in automobiles to Jefferson Barracks, where an old-fashioned army supper will be served.

The convocation of the Military Order of the Serpent will be held on Friday night, June 15, after the regular business session of the organization. This is the playhouse auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans. Joseph R. T. Franklin of Kansas City is Missouri commander, and there is a newly organized camp in the city, composed entirely of newspaper men. Col. R. P. Dickerson of Springfield, Mo., commander-in-chief of the National Loyalty League, is senior vice commander of the Department of Missouri, U. S. W. V., and is expected to attend the encampment.

St. Louis Society to See "The Birth of a Triangle" in "The Garden of Eden"

Production Recently Staged at Artists' Guild to Be Given for Community School Fund at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Angert in the County.

AN entertainment, which from hints dropped by those interested and from advance notices promises a refreshing, zestful evening for its audience, will be given the evening of Friday, June 1, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Angert, Clayton and Kent roads, for the benefit of the Community School fund.

In a setting depicting a garden of Eden will be presented "The Birth of a Triangle" an anti-puritan pastoral by Max Montesole, for the past two or three seasons leading man for Miss Margaret Anglin. The cast will comprise Mrs. Ford W. Thompson as "Eve," Mr. Samuel P. Goddard as "Adam," and Mr. William La Beaume as "Snakie." Mr. Horace Swope will direct the production. Some weeks ago the play was presented at the Artists' Guild, and its success prompted a repetition in its natural setting, a beautiful garden, where the theme, the eternal triangle might attempt to solve an age-old problem.

In a part of the garden where seringas and snow balls and iris combine with shrubbery to form a background for the actors, the stage will be set, with velvety grass for its floor, while on a natural slope resembling that of an amphitheater, there will be seats for the audience.

From booths placed about the lawn, in the tulip garden, where hundreds of beautiful plants will be blooming and in the garden of wild flowers by the side of a tiny stream, refreshments will be served to the guests, who are not to be limited to patrons of the school, and at the conclusion of the performance the house will be thrown open for dancing.

A full moon will light the scene when Eve first glimpses the wonders of Eden and will be reflected in the shiny silver and green costume of the snake, with pink talons on his finger nails, whose sparkling wit and brilliant repartee play such an important part in Mr. Montesole's unpublished play. When he says "A good husband is a slothful habit" Eve promptly adopts that as his name. Of course the problem is never solved, as everyone knew it wouldn't be, and when Eve and the serpent are banished from the garden he reaches up and bites a lemon from the tree while she looks back and remarks "I'll let you know my next address."

The committee in charge of arrangements comprises Mrs. Warren Goddard, Mrs. Alanson Brown, Mrs. Philip Bond Fouke, Mrs. Frederic Eisman, Mrs. Samuel McPheeters, Mrs. Archibald G. Douglass, Mrs. N. David Thompson, Mrs. David O. Ives and Mrs. Eugene McCarthy.

If the weather is inclement, the play will be given Monday, June 3.

A group of 25 matrons have organized a committee to take charge of the sale of souvenir programs at the Annual Benefit "Tuberculosis ball game" to be conducted on Flag day, June 14, for the benefit of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis. Each of these matrons will act as chaperon for a group of 10 girls—the latter to do the actual selling of the programs. These women will meet some time this week with J. Ferd Oberwinder, chairman of the General Arrangements Committee for the fete, and make their plans for the big day.

The ball game will take place, as usual, at Sportsman's Park and there will be a program lasting from 1:30 to 6:00 p. m.

The matrons who are members of the comitttee are: Mrs. Patrick Henery Dean, Mrs. Lydon Bagley, Mrs. Eugene Fusz, Mrs. Herman Steinwender, Mrs. Albert Boettler, Miss Elizabeth Krum, Mrs. H. F. Levy, Mrs. Alvin Bauman, Mrs. A. G. Wichman, Mrs. Philip Becker, Mrs. Paul Robyn, Mrs. F. H. Britton, Mrs. Arthur Leiber, Mrs, E. A. DeWolf, Mrs, Henry Kiel, Mrs. W. T. Donovan, Mrs. M. A. Goldstein and Mrs. Crawford Duncan.

Mrs. Oscar Johnson of 38 Portland place entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. Manico Gull of Shanghai China for the last two days last week. A dinner by Mrs. Johnson and a luncheon at the Florissant Valley Country Club by Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase were among the social functions given for the visitors.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth of Washington, D. C., formerly Miss Alice Roosevelt, was the guest over the last week-end of Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce Jr., at the Frodyce country home in Ferguson. Mrs. Fordyce gave a breakfast for Mrs. Longworth during her visit.

Mrs. Walter Fischel Elected President of the Junior League

Attitude of Husbands Toward Organization Expressed in Jingle Recited at Conference Held in Detroit.

At its annual luncheon meeting Wednesday afternoon at the St. Louis Country Club, the Junior League elected the following offficers Mrs. Walter Fischel, president; Miss Carolyn Bailey, vice president; Miss Mary Etta Randolph, secretary and Miss Carlota Glasgow, treasurer.

Apropos of the league, the Detroit News, in one of its accounts of the conference held there recently, prints a jingle in its society columns expressing the attitude of husbands of the league members toward the conference generally. It is reproduced here, not only for the benefit of husbands whose wives attended the convention, but as a friendly warning to those who may be wifeless during future meetings. The jingle, as recited by Mrs. W. S. Duggan, an out-of-town member, who does not claim the authorship, but who has admitted adapting it to the Junior League after hearing the pathetic complaints, follows:

"Who stole my wife by day and night,
And sent her home in sorry plight,
A most dilapidated-looking sight?
The Junior League.

"Who bade me all alone stay
And eat my luncheon from a tray
In the restaurant 'cross the way?
The Junior League.

"Who taught my pious lips to swear
When I put on my underwear
And found the button was not there?
The Junior League.

"But now no more your prey I'll be;
My wife at last returns to me;
For once I've got them up a tree—
You Junior League!"

MURILLO PORTRAIT

MISS MARION CORNATZAR

Her engagement to Theodore Herbert Banister has been announced. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Carnatzar.

PARTIES, DINNERS AND LUNCHEONS OF WEEK

One of the prettiest of the spring teas was given Friday afternoon at the St. Louis Woman's Club by Mrs. Benjamin F. Bush, in honor of Mrs. Lewis Warrenton Baldwin. The lower rooms of the club were decorated in masses of spring flowers, with a bower of roses and smilax in the east room, where the receiving line stood. The pillars of the dining room were entwined in smilax and roses, and the tea tables were adorned with clusters of roses and delphinium. Peonies in tall vases were placed about the rooms. A group of Mrs. Bush's friends served at the tables, while at the punch bowl were Misses Marjorie Livingston, Cornelia Morrison, Mildred Edwards and Mrs. John E. Sheridan. Miss Idelia Bush received with her mother and the honor guest.

Armstrong of 16 Gast place gave a farewell luncheon several days ago in honor of her daughter, Mrs. William Robert Gibson, who, with her small son, will depart tomorrow for her home in Montreal, after a month's visit here. Tables were arranged in the form of a big H with a beautiful centerpiece of flowers composed of corsage bouquets for each guest. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Folk entertain frequently at the beautiful home in the heart of Rock Creek Park. While Mrs. Folk has given no large entertainments this spring, it is rarely that a week goes by without a little tea or dinner of Missourians and other friends in Washington. These are very often the members of the once famous "administration dancing classes" of which former Governor and Mrs. Folk were members.

WHITE HOUSE BUSY WITH RECEPTIONS AND TENNIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—This has been a busy week at the White House, with tennis tournaments and balcony receptions, as society has come to term the innovation of Mrs. Harding in having delegations visiting Washington meet on the south lawn of the Executive Mansion while she stands on the balcony above them and waves her handkerchief and smiles her merry greetings.

With her this week in the impromptu balcony parties have been the Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Harvey.

Mrs. Guy Scott has as her guests the Misses Katherine Howell of Kansas City and Miss Idabell Wheat of California, who are to be graduated next week by a fashionable school here.

Society has been occupied with the final farewell to the new Minister to Sweden and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss who sailed today for Europe. They called on the President and Mrs. Harding at the White House to present their official adieu.

Ross Todd of St. Louis will come to Washington this week to visit his aunt, Mme. Christian Hauge. Mme. Hauge will go to Europe the end of June to spend the summer and will be accompanied by her niece, Miss Louise Ross Todd.

Congressman Clarence Cannon of Bowling Green, Mo., who was elected to represent the Ninth Missouri District, spent last week in Washington. Mr. Cannon is well known at Congress, and was the guest of honor at a number of luncheons while in Washington. He was parliamentary clerk to Speaker Champ Clark.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of the Senator from Missouri, and Mrs. James A. Reed, are remaining in Washington later than usual in order to greet the St. Louisans and other Missourians who will be here for the Shrine convention.

The president of George Washington University and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, both members of the Missouri colony in Washington, entertained at a reception at their home last week in honor of the Missouri delegates to the National Conference of Social Work. President and Mrs. Hodgkins will be much in the social limelight for the next few week, as they will receive at all the commencement functions incident to the graduation exercises at George Washington University.

Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, who has been popular as a hostess since she has been in Washington, is even more so as the wife of the Assistant Secretary of War. At a recent tea she wore a gown of black crepe romaine made with rows of knife pleating in ruffle effect about the bottom of the skirt and the sleeves, and marking the oval neckline. Her hat was a large black one of lace and georgette crepe.

Charles M. Hubbard of St. Louis was a member of the Committee on Resolutions which reported at the National Conference of Social Work. There were only three members of this committee—the chairman being Miss Julia Lathrop, former chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor. It was one of the busiest committees at the convention, as it handled all resolutions from a delegated body of 5000.

Washington society is missing the festivities that usually mark this season of the year at Henderson Castle, the home of Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the late Senator from Missouri. Mrs. Henderson, however, is in deep mourning on account of the death of her son, John B. Henderson. Even the swimming pool which the Hendersons have shared with their friends who remained in Washington during the summer will not be open this season. Mrs. Henderson's son designed the pool, which is one of the most beautifully placed of any of the private pools in Washington. It is in the middle of a sunken garden.

Miss Batrice Henderson, only daughter of John B. Henderson Jr., intended to make her debut next season, but this has been put aside on account of the death of her father. The young sub-debutante comes home from school nearly every week end to cheer her grandmother and the two may be seen walking around the grounds of the castle and in the woods adjacent to it frequently. Miss Henderson will be one of the most interesting of the debutantes, as she is heiress to at least three fortunes.

US OF SOCIALLY INCLINED AT MISSOURI U. PREDICTED

ident-Elect Brooks Says There Is No Place for Those Seeking Pleasure Only.

OLUMBIA, Mo., May 26.—A spe- 1 "back-to-the-farm" movement the University of Missouri for ose who gravitate to that institu- on for social reasons only was pre- licted in a speech last night by Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president-elect of the university. It was the new president's first appearance before a Columbia audience, the occasion being the "made-in-Manchuria" banquet with which the School of Journalism closed the week marking its fifteenth anniversary. He was presented by Acting President Isadore Loeb after a preliminary introduction by Toastmaster Walter F. Williams, dean of the School of Journalism.

Brooks, who was received with a vigorous welcome of applause by the 600 banqueters, said that his function at the university, and that he also expected of the faculty, townspeople and the people and press of the State would be to help the university. One of the great functions of education, he pointed out, is to bring about co-ordination between the efforts of specialists to the end that civilization may progress. Modern life has forced people with ambition and aspiration to become specialists, he reminded, but unless those specialties be co-ordinated to a constructive composite, civilization is certain to suffer and in the end break down.

To that end, he pledged, he would endeavor to so shape the development of the institution, declaring that students who came solely for social diversion had no place in such a scheme for the advancement of the welfare of society. By retiring such students to farm life, he jocularly remarked much could be done to stem the drift away from the farm to the cities.

SIDENER AND AIDS TO GO TO UNION TONIGHT

Meininger's Counsel Reiterates Statement It May Not Be Ready for Trial Tomorrow.

Circuit Attorney Sidener and other counsel for the State in the prosecution of Arthur O. Meininger on charges in connection with the looting of the Night and Day Bank, of which Meininger was cashier, will go tonight to Union, Franklin County, where the trial is set for tomorrow.

Counsel for the defense were busy yesterday taking depositions of State witnesses behind closed doors and reiterated previous statements that they did not know whether they would be ready for trial tomorrow. Meininger has had two continuances since the case was sent to Union by change of venue and the benefit of a further delay of two months ordered by the court there, pending completion of a new courthouse, now done.

Sidener has declared that the taking of depositions now, nearly 17 months after the bank was closed, was an effort to delay trial once more. William R. Gilbert of Meininger's counsel, said yesterday that the depositions could not have been taken sooner.

There are 47 indictments against Meininger. Last Monday Sidener, at Union, chose four from which he will select the first one to be tried. The defense on Friday obtained a court order directed to State Commissioner of Finance Millspaugh and a Deputy, Charles N. Gilles, to examine certain records of the bank, to assist in preparing the defense.

Gilles and one of Meininger's lawyers called on Sidener yesterday to obtain some of these records, which had been turned over to the Circuit Attorney for the prosecution. Sidener declined to give them up as the order was not directed to him, and, he said, he saw no reason why he should surrender to the defense documents he wished to use in the prosecution.

QUICK WAY OF DETERMINING CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING

Device for Conducting Blood Tests Regarded as Possible Means of Saving Many Lives.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 26.—Scientists attached to the Pittsburg station of the United States Bureau of Mines have scored another triumph in chemistry and research work leading to a possible means of saving human life in coal mines, garages, tunnels and wherever deadly carbon monoxide gas has been taking its costly toll.

This developed last night after announcement of the discovery of a quick and effective method of determining carbon monoxide gas poisoning, heretofore not possible in most cases until a lapse of 24 to 48 hours, by the Department of the Interior at Washington, of which the Bureau of Mines is one division. It was revealed that the compact little equipment case for the application of the test and the secrets of its power to combat carbon monoxide poisoning were discovered and perfected by two staff members of the Pittsburg branch of the Bureau of Mines, Dr. R. R. Sayers, chief surgeon, and W. B. Yant, chemist.

Where symptoms of poisoning develop a drop of blood is drawn from the patient's finger into a measuring instrument and diluted with water and certain chemicals. This fluid, if the poison is present, at once turns color ranging from gray to bright red. Combating it then is a simple task, the scientists who have been working on it for two and a half years say.

RESOLUTION PROTESTS AGAINST SMOKING ROOM FOR WOMEN

Daughters of American Colonists Object to Tentative Proposal in Municipal Auditorium.

Protest against a tentative proposal to establish a smoking room for women in the Municipal Auditorium to be erected under the bond issue is contained in a resolution adopted by the Daughters of the American Colonists.

The resolution declares the purpose of the bond issue is to "beautify the city and better conditions of its citizens," and declares that a smoking room for women "would not be conducive to either of these objects."

The resolution was signed by Mrs. Harry Wagoner, Mrs. Fannie Bonner Price, Mrs. Lavinia Crow Reilly, Mrs. J. A. Long, Mrs. Frederick T. Hatch, Mrs. Ben Pearson, Mrs. J. B. Thomas and Mrs. Edward Schaaf.

DEATH DUE TO KICK BY HORSE

Coroner's Verdict of Accident in Case of Eugene L. Johnson.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the case of Eugene L. Johnson, 45 years old, of 1237 South Sixth street, whose death Wednesday resulted from a kick by a horse.

Johnson was found in the street in front of 1145 South Broadway, suffering from a fractured skull. He never recovered sufficiently to tell what had occurred. Henry P. Furlong of 1212 South Twelfth street testified at the inquest that Johnson got too near a horse which was hitched to a construction wagon. The horse sidled away and then struck out, Furlong said, and Johnson fell. Policemen testified they had warned the driver of the team, which belonged to William Baldwin, a contractor, of 1243 South Third street, that one of the horses was too wild to use on city streets.

Name Incorrectly Stated.

In a story published in the Post-Dispatch, May 17, concerning a damage suit against the United Railways Co., it was incorrectly stated that the plaintiff was Miss Elizabeth Harper of 520 Eiler street. She was Mrs. Elizabeth Harper, wife of G. A. Harper of the Eiler street address.

LETTERS OPPOSE TRANSFER OF TEACHER

Superintendent Handling Miss O'Connell's Case Finds There Are "Two Sides."

Assistant Superintendent Gerling of the Board of Education, who has been handling the question of the transfer of Miss Gertrude O'Connell, principal of the Susan R. Buder grade school in Southampton, requested recently by a faction in the patrons' organization in petitions to the board, said yesterday that since the filing of the petitions several weeks ago a "number of letters have come into this office in support of Miss O'Connell."

Gerling added it was evident there are "two sides to the case," but indicated he had not definitely determined the exact situation. He would not make public the letters, but said there was "at least a dozen."

Miss O'Connell Silent.

As is known, a group of the patrons recently formed an organization known as the Buder School Protective League, and wrote Supt. Maddox, asking for an investigation. The matter was referred to Gerling, who at the time said no formal investigation would be necessary.

The difficulties grew out of "just little things," the patrons said—differences of oponion which caused friction inimical to the school's best interests.

Miss O'Connell yesterday said she had decided not to make public her position as yet, and that while she, too, had numerous letters from influential patrons of the school, she thought it best "not to take any steps until the superintendent has taken some action." She said "she then would have "something to say," and added that one of the letters was from a signer of the petition asking her removal, stating the signature had been obtained under false pretenses.

Would Verify Names.

Miss O'Connell said another letter asserted that "50 per cent of the signers of the petitions asking transfer did not read or understand the petition," and suggested that the board verify the signatures.

Benjamin Wolf, attorney, who is active in circulating the petitions for removal, said more than 300 names had been obtained and that until Supt. Maddox took some action the patrons intend to "keep hammering away at this thing."

Supt. Maddox said the matter is under consideration but that no facts justifying action have as yet been obtained.

WIFE OBTAINS DIVORCE TWO HOURS AFTER FILING PETITION

Mrs. Mary Lee Dixon Willis Awarded $5500 Alimony in Decree Against Barnard Willis.

Mrs. Mary Lee Dixon Willis of 7250 Westminster avenue, University City, was granted a divorce from Barnard Willis yesterday at Clayton within two hours after her petition had been filed. Her suit was brought in Judge Wurdeman's court at 9 a. m., charging general indignities and desertion. She was awarded $5500 alimony in gross.

Willis is director and assistant secretary of the George D. Barnard Stationery Co. The couple was married Nov. 22, 1919, and separated July 25, 1921.

The family's difficulties were aired in a previous divorce suit, when, on March 14, 1922, Mrs. Willis alleged her husband drank a pint of liquor a day. In a cross bill Willis averred his wife wept incessantly.

Judge McElhinney, hearing the case, refused the petitions, decreeing that "highballs and tears" do not constitute adequate grounds for divorce, and adding that "moderate indulgence in either for solace to wounded feelings is not an indignity under the divorce law."

NEW WAY OF RETRIEVING LOSSES

Some Members of Berlin Bourse Trying Picking Pockets.

Special Wireless to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News.

BERLIN, May 26.—Picking pockets is proving more profitable for some persons on the Berlin Bourse than speculating in marks. According to the police scores of thefts on the floor of the Stock Exchange are reported daily, and as only members are admitted to the floor the inference is that some of these are trying in this way to retrieve their losses in speculating.

The Membership Committee of Bourse says that many new dealers have been admitted to the Bourse recently, and that among them are numerous foreigners. These new members are blamed in part for the decline of the mark through their wild speculations.

LEGION CHAPLAIN TO BECOME TABERNACLE BAPTIST PASTOR

Dr. J. F. Breem Will Begin Work at St. Louis Church on June 1.

Dr. J. F. Breem.

The Rev. Dr. J. F. Breem of Troy, Mo., will become pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church, Twelfth and Barton streets, June 1. He was a chaplain in the army during the World War and is now chaplain of an American Legion post at Troy.

Tabernacle Baptist Church has been without a regular pastor for a year following resignation of Rev. Grover C. Swartz, necessitated by a nervous breakdown. The Rev. W. H. Barnes, retired, has acted as supply pastor.

The church was organized 22 years ago by Frank Martin at Ninth street and Russell avenue. Later the church removed to Seventh street and Shenandoah avenue, the present site having been occupied since 1912.

NEW AIRPLANE MOTOR SAID TO ELIMINATE DANGER OF FIRE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 26.—Special interest attaches to the application to airplanes of a new motor employing heavy oils, in view of the recent tragic accident to the London airplane line, in which two Americans were killed, for it is said with such a motor there would be no danger of a plane catching fire.

One of the great French engineering firms is working on a new airplane in conjunction with one of the principal airplane constructors. The new plane will carry two 500-horsepower motors, built on exactly the same lines as the heavy oil engine which is proving so successful on automobiles. It is said that this airplane, besides its great additional safety, will be vastly more economical to operate. Some persons think that the new engine should result in an increase in air travel to an extent not hitherto contemplated.

Keeps Children's Hair Beautiful

Proper shampooing is what makes children's hair beautiful. It brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Children's hair simply needs frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful; but fine young hair and tender scalps, cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali, in ordinary soap, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why millions of discriminating mothers, everywhere, use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo.

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a four ounce bottle lasts for months.

HYDE CONSIDERS ENDING CONVENTION ON CONSTITUTION

Governor Says He Will Make Known His Decision in the Matter Within the Next Week.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 26.—Gov. Hyde, ax in hand, is wavering as to whether he should chop down the constitutional convention or allow it to fulfill the mission for which it was organized, and offer to the people a set of comprehensive amendments to the convention of 1875 designed to bring that document up to modern requirements. The Governor told the Post-Dispatch correspondent he will make his decision within the week.

The recent Legislature, it is recalled, adopted a resolution by Senator Casey of Kansas City, submitting to the people at the next general election, or at a special election before that, as the Governor may determine, a proposal to withdraw from the people the right to institute a constitutional convention by initiative and restrict to the Legislature the power to convene such a body.

Purpose of Proposal.

The Casey proposal would repeal that section of the Constitution under which the present convention was called. Attorneys differ as to whether the adoption of this amendment would abolish the present convention, but the preponderance of opinion among lawyers who have advised State officials on the question is that it would end the convention.

Whether it would do so technically, however, there is little disagreement that adoption of the Casey idea would terminate the usefulness of the convention. For even if it tried to go on with its work, which is doubted, such treatment at the hands of the Governor and voters manifestly would take the heart out of those who have carried the burden of driving the revision on toward its consummation.

Those favoring revision of the Constitution, who have watched closely the work of this convention, incline to the belief in most instances, that much of what has been done has merit and should be submitted to the people. Much of the structure of the present Constitution is being preserved, but important changes are recommended in nearly every article of the document.

Probable Result of Vote.

If Gov. Hyde were to elect to throw the convention into the ring to be fought over at the present time, as he contemplates doing, the voters would not get a fair idea of what has been done or what probably will be done should the convention stay at its task until it is completed. The only thing before the people will be, "Shall the Casey amendment be adopted or rejected?" No organized fight to explain the work of the convention would be made, and the odds are overwhelming that the populace would turn its collective thumbs down. The history of initiative and referendum fights in this State has been that on all of those propositions for which no vigorous educational campaign is waged, the rural sections not realizing what they are about vote no.

Why the Governor should even consider submitting the Casey amendment at this time is not clearly known, for the convention, though slow and ponderous, is lumbering ahead. The bipartisan makeup of the body has prevented any cohesive movement among delegates on a large scale, so instead of enactments with machine-like precision as in deliberative bodies where caucus rule prevails the convention has witnessed the flailing about of 83 individuals, each a free lance. While possibly better for the State this process has taken longer.

The Governor from the first has not been an ardent adherent of the convention or its work. The body seated F. C. Sasse of Brunswick, as a delegate, over privately expressed objections of the Governor and his friends. Then in organizing the convention and selecting its officers and employes no especial deference was paid to the wishes of the Republican State organization.

Hyde for Short Ballot.

Hyde is a devotee of what is known as the "short ballot," under which the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor would be elected, and the Governor would appoint the other State officials. That idea was roundly hammered in the convention. Whether these things stick in the gubernatorial memory is not known, of course.

Hyde has promised members of the American Legion to call a special election in the near future for the submission of a proposal to issue $4,600,000 of State bonds with which to finish payment of the soldier bonus, the previous issue of $15,000,000 having been insufficient. He is undecided whether to submit the Casey amendment at the same time. He said that he will consult with leaders of the convention as to whether they think the body will accomplish anything, and then make his own decision.

In the meantime the Governor has failed to select anyone to fill four vacancies existing in the membership by death and resignation which under the Constitution, he is bound to fill by appointment.

MEXICAN WAR VETERANS TELL EXPERIENCES

Seven Survivors of Conflict in Illinois—Anniversary of Peace to Be Observed Wednesday.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the close of the Mexican War in 1848, to be observed next Wednesday at Springfield, Ill., finds but seven of the veterans of that conflict living in Illinois, according to a survey by the Associated Press. All of these veterans are more than 90 years old.

The oldest of the seven is John Wedig, 98 years old, who lives on a farm on the outskirts of Granite City. His grandson, Dr. James Wedig, head of the Wedig Hospital at Granite City, says he will be unable to attend the reunion because of infirmities. He is unable to converse with any save members of his family to whom he has related at various times his experiences as private in the First Dragoons, Company B, in the Mexican War.

After coming from Hanover, Germany, in January, 1845, at the age of 21, Wedig worked his way out to St. Louis. Here he enlisted when the Mexican War broke out. The First Dragoons went to Santa Fe with little or no training.

Fought With Clubs.

Then followed battles, marches and hardships in the deserts and swamps of Mexico. Wedig said that the men of his company frequently fought the enemy with clubs. A squad was detailed for the work of cutting clubs from trees after each skirmish.

At least one-third of the men became ill from drinking from swamp streams and stagnant pools, he said. Many died from wounds as scarcely any medical attention was to be had, and undernourishment caused men to fall along the line of march.

At the battle of Santa Cruz, Wedig was wounded in the shoulder, but this did not prevent him from making his way to Portland, Ore., after the close of the war, and then to California in the gold rush, where he acquired a small fortune in three years. He returned to St. Louis and beginning in a $6-a-month job worked his way up in the commission business. In 1852 he married Libertha Beck of St. Louis, a native of Germany, and later he retired to a wooded tract near Granite City.

In the succeeding years he and his wife cleared land and today he owns five farms of 80 acres each in the vicinity. His wife died in 1920. No children were born to the Wedigs but they adopted 10 orphans and established the Mary Wedig Hospital in Granite City.

Wedig is a Republican and served two terms in the Illinois Legislature. He also has served as Constable, Tax Collector and School Director. His first vote was cast for President Polk.

Four Tell Experiences.

After Wedig, in point of age, comes Calvin R. Thompson, 97, who was a private in Company A, Second Indiana Infantry. He resides near Smithshire, Ill., on rural route No. 2. The others are in the following order:

John A. Read, 96, Perry, Ill. He was a private in Companies D and K, Fourteenth United States Infantry.

Jason Green, 94, Garrett, Ill., a private in Company E, Fifth Indiana Infantry.

William Corbin, 94, Sullivan, Ill., private in Company G, First Illinois Foot Volunteers.

Jesse Stonecipher, 92, living near Xenia, Ill., on rural route No. 3, a private in Company B, Fifth Tennessee Infantry.

William Curran of Quincy road, Riverside, Ill., a recruit in the Ninth United States Infantry.

Some of these old veterans have given to the Associated Press brief sketches of their war experiences.

One tells of his trip by flatboat down the river and by sailboat to Vera Cruz on his way to join the American forces in Mexico. Another says he was discharged with yellow fever. While a guest in a St. Louis hotel, he was robbed of all his belongings, even his discharge papers, which would have entitled him to 160 acres of Government land. Another says he was tied up by his thumbs for 30 minutes for punishment, and of the battle in which old Santa Anna, the Mexican General, lost his wooden leg.

Discharged at 16 Years.

The youngest at the time of his discharge was William Curran. He was in the war eight months and was only 16 years old when discharged. Without a wound, he declares, he went through the following engagements: Cerro Gordo, the Heights of Atalaya, the Castle of Haya, Puebla de los Angeles, San Augustine, Contrerus, Churnpusca, Chapultepec, Moline Del Roy and San Cosine.

"After the close of the Mexican war," wrote Curran, "I was seized with yellow fever and spent six weeks in the hospital at Vera Cruz, and from there was sent to New Orleans, where we were issued new clothing and shipped on a steam boat to Jefferson Barracks, and there discharged. After being discharged I felt rather weak, owing to the results of the fever, and went to what seemed to a hotel in St. Louis to rest a while. I was robbed at this hotel during the night of everything I possessed.

"I then went back to Jefferson Barracks to present the case to the commanding officer, but he said he could do nothing, so I went to the hotel and borrowed $15 to take me home. I was able to get as far as Chicago with the money, that day being occasion of breaking ground for the first railway entering Chicago. I then engaged in my old trade of seaman on the Great Lakes.

"I finally made my way to Syracuse, N. Y., in the fall of that year, and since I had lost my papers entitling me to 160 acres of land when I was robbed at the hotel in St. Louis, I presented the case to a lawyer in Syracuse, who said he would try to get it back for me, but it was never done."

John A. Read left a carpenter apprenticeship to join the army. In February, 1847, he enlisted in Company K, Fourteenth Infantry, under Capt. James Blackburn of Kentucky. He relates that his company arrived

MAN BLAMES PRICE OF DRINKS FOR SHORTAGE IN ACCOUNTS

Salesman, Accused of $1207 Embezzlement, Admits He Treated Customers.

The cost of keeping customers in a buying mood at 75 cents a drink is the reason given by Louis Morrison, 44 years old, of 2928 Dickson street, arrested on a charge of embezzlement yesterday, for the discrepancy in his accounts at the Swissman Paper and Woodenware Co., 1011-13 North Eleventh street, where he was employed until May 15 as a salesman and collector.

Morrison was arrested on complaint of Adolph Smissman, president of the company, who told police that an audit of the company's books disclosed a shortage of $1207.65 in Morrison's accounts. Morrison, in a statement at Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon, admitted a shortage, but insisted that the amount did not exceed $450. He held out part of the money he collected each week, he said, and kept a record. If given an opportunity he said he would produce this to disprove Smissman's figures.

Morrison, who is 44 years old, said he came to St. Louis in 1903 and was employed as a grocery salesman for local wholesalers until two years ago when he went to work for Smissman. The latter, he said, allowed him a dollar a day for expenses and a 5 per cent commission on his sales. His commission averaged $25 weekly. "I began 'setting them up' to my customers in order to get business," said Morrison. "At 75 cents a drink I was soon spending more than I made for entertainment alone. Smissman knew my failing, but never said anything until I got sick and quit May 15. I turned over my accounts and Smissman found out I was short."

Morrison is a widower and has a daughter 17 years old. A warrant charging embezzlement was issued against him yesterday.

PLAN TO MAKE ACCESS TO RECORDS MORE FORMAL

If the Public Buildings Committee and the County Offices Committee of the Madison County Board of Supervisors have their way, getting at the county records is going to be a ceremony. The two committees at the June meeting of the board will offer a resolution instructing county officers to permit inspection of records only upon formal application and under the scrutiny of an official.

For years lawyers, abstractors, newspaper reporters and the public at large have had access to the records without formality, and, although no record has ever been lost or stolen, the committeemen think that such a thing might happen and they are not going to take any chances.

To prevent the use of master keys which have been given out somewhat indiscriminately, it is planned that new locks be placed on all courthouse doors and new keys given to officials and to nobody else. An inventory is being made of all county property and the officials will be requested to sign the lists as an additional precaution against loss of anything.

St. Louisans Head Drummers.

By the Associated Press.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., May 26.—The Southeast Missouri Drummers' Association closed its twenty-seventh annual convention this afternoon after deciding on Sikeston as next year's meeting place. E. M. McGuigan was chosen president and William Cox, secretary. Both are from St. Louis.

Fall on Picket Fence Fatal.

John Stewart, 60 years old, of 3129 Easton avenue, a tuck pointer, died at City Hospital Friday from internal injuries suffered two hours previously in falling 17 feet from a scaffold, which collapsed, onto a picket fence at 3533 Clark avenue, where he was working.

at Vera Cruz about March 4, 1847, landing there in surf boats.

Shell City 16 Days.

"We shelled the city for 16 days," said Mr. Read. "When they surrendered, about 13,000 Mexican soldiers came out and stacked their arms, which we piled up and burned. Gen. Scott paroled the officers, who got down on their knees and took oath that they would not serve any more in the war.

"We left Vera Cruz and started for the City of Mexico. Our next battle was at Cerro Gordo. It was a hard fight, lasting all day. Our Captain was wounded in the knee, making him a cripple for life.

"Gen. Shield also was wounded in this battle. Here is where old Santa Anna left his wooden leg and escaped on a mule."

Read told of the march to Mexico City and the capture of that stronghold. After returning to Vera Cruz he became ill with yellow fever and was sent to a hospital at Carrollton, eight miles above New Orleans, where there was a large racetrack.

"I was not able to leave until the last of September, and then the doctors said I could not live, and if I did my health would be ruined.

"They punished soldiers in those days by whipping, and I was tied up by my thumbs for 30 minutes."

Read, despite his 96 years, writes a vigorous, steady hand.

Jesse Stonecipher had been what he described as "an old style" teacher in the rural schools in winter and a farmer in summer prior to his enlistment in July, 1847. In November, he said, his company went on flatboats down the river to Paducah, Ky. He relates this incident on the way:

"We had a disagreeable time going through the Muscle Shoals. One boat in front of ours struck a tree leaning out over the water and tore the top off the boat. One man was killed by the crash and one was drowned.

"From Paducah we went to New Orleans and there went on board a sailboat. On Jan. 1 we landed at Vera Cruz."

He tells of a scouting trip in the mountains and of the suffering of the soldiers from lack of good water. He did not participate in any battles. Upon his discharge he returned to Nashville, Tenn., by boat, whence he walked to his home in Eastern Tennessee, 160 miles.

Mr. Greene, who was born in Dearborn County, Ind., in November, 1828, enlisted for the Mexican War in September, 1847. He was at Mexico City, but saw very little action, he stated. He was discharged July 26, 1848.

SIDNEY STREET CHURCH 60 YEARS OLD TODAY

Presbyterian Congregation to Hold Five-Day Celebration—Three Former Pastors Here.

Sidney Street Presbyterian Church, a congregation of 700 members, under the Rev. Karl Frederick Wettstone, at Sidney street and Minnesota avenue, will begin today a five days' celebration of its sixtieth anniversary. The exercises will include a dinner at Hotel Claridge, Monday evening at 7 o'clock, at which three former pastors, the Rev. A. W. Reinhardt of Hermann, Mo.; the Rev. Jacob G. Kessler of Warsaw, Ill.; and the Rev. Dr. Hilko de Beer of Philadelphia, Pa., will extend greetings, with responses by Philip Ziegenfuss, H. J. Anstedt and H. Roehrig. There will also be an address by Dr. C. M. Steffens, president of Dubuque University, Dubuque, Ia.

Sidney Street Church fosters both the Tenth Street Mission, Tenth and Rutger streets, and the Victor Street Mission, Victor and Third streets.

As the First German Presbyterian Church, the congregation erected the present church at Tenth and Rutger streets in 1871. This was the second structure on the same site. When the congregation was established here in 1863, there were 40 charter members.

This congregation grew from foundations laid in 1847 by a band of Dutch settlers from Holland, Calvinistic in their sympathies, who met in a buiding at Thirteenth street and Park avenue. Later the Hollanders went in a body to Pella, Ia., and a body of Swiss and German emigrants continued their work, becoming enrolled in the St. Louis Presbytery in 1863.

Under the Rev. Hilko de Beer, who served from 1912 to 1919, the move was taken from Tenth and Rutger to Sidney street and Minnesota avenue, and with that change the congregation became entirely an American church, discarding the German language in its services.

F. H. Peters, a layman of the church, who is now 85 years of age, did the unusual thing of buying the old church outright, and presenting it again to the congregation, so that the way might be clear, financially, for continuance of services here as well as in the new location.

Under the Rev. Karl Frederick Wettstone, who came five years ago to be pastor at Sidney street, the membership has grown from 207 to 702. His congregation two weeks ago presented him with a new coupe.

A notable figure at the ceremonies will be the pastor's father, the Rev. Emil Richard Wettstein, of Marburg, Germany, who is in this country making a plea for support of Protestant churches in France and Italy which have suffered from the war.

He worked with the Red Cross during the war, and took charge of 28 field hospitals. He will speak Wednesday evening, May 30, at a "home-coming service" at Sidney Street Church.

At a commemorative service Sunday morning, May 27, Dr. Hilko de Beer of Philadelphia, will preach. Sunday evening at the Tenth Street Church the sermon will be by the Rev. Jacob G. Kessler, a former pastor who was for years secretary of the North Side Y. M. C. A. in St. Louis. Monday night will be the dinner at Hotel Claridge; Tuesday evening a Sunday school service; Wednesday the home-coming service, and Thursday night a reception at the Victor Street Mission.

DIES AFTER HIS HORSE WINS

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, May 2.—A a horse race here recently an excited man attracted attention by shouting frantically the name of the favorite horse as the group of racing animals neared the finish. His excitement was so great that when an outsider passed the favorite and won, he collapsed and expired.

On his body were found 60 tickets on the horse which did win, and no one could understand his excited support of the favorite until an old race-goer explained that this reverse method of support was used by some superstitious bettors to "stop" the horse they did not want to win.

College to Honor St. Louisan.

At the commencement exercises of Missouri Valley College at Marshall, Mo., Thursday, the degree of doctor of laws will be conferred upon Rev. H. H. Forsyth, pastor of the King's Highway Presbyterian Church of St. Louis.

AUTO CLUB TO TAKE ORPHANS ON TOUR OF CITY TUESDAY

About 2000 Children to See Points of Interest in St. Louis and Vicinity.

The Automobile Club of Missouri will take the orphans of the city on a tour of St. Louis and vicinity Tuesday, June 12. Annually the members of the club devote a day to breaking the routine of the various orphan homes for the children.

Members are requested to meet in front of the St. Louis Club, Lindell boulevard west of Grand boulevard, at 8 a. m., where the cars will be assembled in a parade. The trip will include visits to the zoological gardens in Forest Park and places of interest in both city and county. About 2000 children will be taken on the tour.

MORE BOY THAN GIRL BABIES

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 26.—Birth statistics seem to indicate that many of Germany's rising generation of boys will have to go to Slavic countries for their mates when they are ready to marry. Boy babies are appearing at the rate of 1063 a day to every 1000 new born girls. Medical experts assert that this proportion is in direct contrast to the statistic situation in the Slavic States.

Great satisfaction is expressed at the surplus of male youngsters, since it is taken as a forecast of the fatherland's quick recovery from the losses of war and as an encouraging sign of an increase in the Reich's future economic man power.

Military Attache Decorated.

BERLIN, May 26.—Col. Creede F. Coxe of Virginia, a military attache of the American Embassy here, has been decorated with the distinguished service cross by Warren D. Robins, counsellor of the embassy, acting on behalf of the President. Col. Coxe was once attached to the American mission at Constantinople. He was an observer at the Denikine and Wrangel army in South Russia.

Skin Peeling Nature's Aid to New Complexion

Ordinary mercolized wax is a natural beautifier. By flaking off the devitalized surface skin, it merely hastens Nature's work. The underlying skin, brought gradually to view, exhibits the healthy youthful color produced by capillary circulation. This because the capillaries are thus brought nearer the surface; also because the skin is unsoiled by dust and dirt. Mercolized wax, to be had at any drug store (an ounce will do) is put on nightly like cold cream, washed off mornings with warm water. Its work usually is completed in from seven to ten days, long enough not to show too marked results from day to day, or cause discomfort or detention indoors.

"I could not work at all and had to take to my bed with a high fever due to intestinal indigestion, gases in my stomach and pain in my right side. I had spent my last cent for doctors and medicine, which gave me no relief. I was in despair. A lodge brother gave me a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and the first dose relieved me." Thanks to this medicine, I am now in the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation, which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

MUCH discussion is being held over the twenty-second international exhibition now in progress at the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburg. Claims that French art has been unjustly represented in this year's show, the cause for this being attributed in part to a designing jury, have helped create the present furore. A comparison between the exhibits of 1922 and 1923 will show a wide variance in the names and standards of French artists represented.

In the collection of paintings selected from the 1922 Carnegie Institute international show which now occupies Galleries 30, 31 and 25 of the City Art Museum, it is interesting to note that 37 of the pictures are by French painters, 24 by English, 3 Scotch, 2 Swedish, 1 Belgian, 1 Swiss and 1 Spanish. Names like Albert Besnard, Boutet de Monvel, Lerolle, Lebasque, Lucien Simon, etc., in the 1922 show, are bound to eclipse any lesser ones if it is of such that the 1923 exhibit is composed.

Some of the most outstanding paintings of the French group of the exhibition now in progress at the Museum here, are Albert Besnard's celebrated picture, "Under the Willows;" Henry Lerolle's calm expression of "Evening on the Garonne;" a decorative still life by Migonney; Jean Marchand's compellingly painted picture, "Woman Nursing Her Child;" a character portrait of "Father and Daughter," by Jacques Emile Blanche, and a splendid example of sane French modernism by Antoine Villard entitled "The Railroad, Grennelle."

Those who heard the paper by Prof. Oscar B. Jacobson of the University of Oklahoma, which he read Thursday morning before the convention of the American Federation of Arts, the subject of which was "The Meaning of Modernism," will be especially enabled to find an unusual enjoyment in this painting by Villard. Prof. Jacobson brought out the fact that with the progress of the general arts, the modern painter was outgrowing the traditional expectations inflicted in the past upon his brother, the realistic painter of a century ago, which required him to be not only a painter and a colorist, but an archaeologist, a botanist, an architect, an engineer, an anatomist, etc. Such requirements are not exacted from artists in music and literature. Also, Prof. Jacobson points out, art can be classified into two distinct divisions: Representative Art and Pure Art. The transition from the former to the latter can already be traced in music and poetry. This theory fairly adequately explains much of the tendencies of the modern painters whose purpose is to paint not a representation of some object or "matter," but to chronicle an impression which these things give him, or an emotion, as does the composer with his music. With the advancement of the theory that sound and color are analogous and that they register identically upon the mind, the products of the "moderns" become more accountable. Prof. Jacobson points out that while a great proportion of the contemporary "modern art" does not attain its purpose, some of it being insincere and some of it being inexcusably superficial in fundamental conception, the entire movement should not be condemned by the public, but should enlist public sympathy and interest. He cites Manet, Renoir, Degas and others, who once were ridiculed for their refusal to conform to the orthodox. He pleads that the present-day public should endeavor to consider the works of the moderns from the artists' viewpoints, analyzing their attitudes, ideas, purposes and reactions. A good opportunity for this experiment is Villard's "Railroad" in Gallery 31 at the museum now. The spectator might assume the following hypothesis: that the artist, while respecting the vastness of mechanism and its colossal significance in present-day life, hold in his heart a dull dread of the monstrosity of its exigencies. In view of this, one might see how the monotony of the buildings which signifies the artist's sense of the monotony of the work that goes on inside of those factories. The solidity of the foreground, with its railroad tracks, switches, block signals and watchmen's huts above the painter's feeling of the power of mechanism's great product, the railroad.

The work of the English painters represented in this exhibit holds much interest. A comparison of the French and English are is very enlightening, and good examples of each can be considered in the present display which will continue for another month.

The middle of the coming week marks the departure from the museum of the exhibition of ancient gold jewels belonging to the collection of Mr. Kurt Bachstitz of The Hague. Until their removal on Wednesday or Thursday they will remain on public display in their case in Gallery 32.

Many extremely gratifying compliments have been paid to the City Museum by the delegates of the American Federation of Arts who have visited it the past week. The progress and extension accomplished within the last few years have been especially commented upon by some of the Eastern museum directors who have not visited the St. Louis Museum for a number of years.

Permanent installation of the portrait has not yet been decided upon by the museum. Until such a decision can be made and the accompanying arrangements completed, the picture will remain in Gallery 1. It is now on view, and the public is invited to see it.

Sixteen paintings by Adma Green Kerr of Denver are on exhibition at the Public Library in the art department. Mrs. Kerr is well known in Colorado for her courageous expeditions into the mountains in winter which necessitate hardship and deprivation, in order to paint her pictures directly from nature. The object of her work is not much pictorial as it is to indicate the sense of bitter cold. The frigidity of a number of her pictures is conviction of the accomplishment of her purpose.

CERTO is the Key to Perfect jams and jellies

With CERTO, only one minute's boiling is required, thus saving color, flavor and fragrance of ripe fruit. No juice is boiled away; you get one-half more product, so with CERTO the cost per jar is less.

CERTO never fails because it is the actual "jell" property of fruit concentrated; it contains no gelatine nor preservative. CERTO is highly endorsed by cooking experts and housewives. Any woman can now have a bountiful home supply of delicious jams and jellies by the CERTO Process, "The World's New Standard of Quality."

CERTO
(Surejell)

Crushed Strawberry Jam

For this jam it is necessary that each berry be broken up. Therefore, crush about 2 quarts ripe berries in separate portions, so that each berry is mashed. This allows fruit to quickly absorb the sugar during the short boil. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) crushed berries into large kettle, add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full minute, remove from fire and stir in ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) CERTO. From time jam is taken off fire allow to stand not over 5 minutes, by the clock, before pouring. In the meantime skim, and stir occasionally to cool slightly. Then pour quickly. If in open glasses paraffin at once. If in jars seal at once and invert for 10 minutes to sterilize the tops.

Use same recipe for Raspberry, Blackberry or Loganberry jam.

Pineapple and Strawberry Jam

Crush well about 1 qt. ripe berries. Put pineapple through food cutter, or chop very fine. Measure 2 level cups (1 lb.) of each into large kettle. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for 1 minute, remove from fire and stir in ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) CERTO. Skim and pour quickly.

CERTO
FRUIT PECTIN

Kisses Were Her Stock in Trade

In the dance hall where "Miss Dolly" worked they called her The Dough Girl. Men made trips "across the line" to see her, and others of her kind. Across the line stepped The Frog—and the soul of the mite that was Dolly rose to greet him.

Come down to the place where this girl worked and let Gerald Beaumont show you life as red and real as ever lived! Love? People have loved and lived a lifetime without sensing love such as drove a poor jockey down the stretch—past the favorites—under the wire first. Love that made the girl, screaming "Froggie dear!" beg later to be sent back to hell!

It may be that you can follow this strange pair and restrain the cheers; you may not be as successful with the tears. But the complete story (one of sixteen good stories and features that crowd one June magazine that a quarter buys today) will leave you with that satisfied feeling of having been royally repaid for an hour spent with the master of this kind of fiction!

I. J. Paderewski

HERE is the famous Duo-Art Piano in a model that almost every home can afford—costing no more than an ordinary player-piano.

This is great news for a host of music-lovers—for many who have heard the Duo-Art as it faultlessly reproduced the wonderful playing of the world's great artists.

To have produced a foot-power model of the Duo-Art that could be sold for $695 is one of THE AEOLIAN COMPANY'S great triumphs. To have done it so successfully —to have the instrument so fine from every standpoint— tone, beauty, reproducing power—is one of the great achievements in piano history.

You are cordially invited to AEOLIAN HALL to hear the DUO-ART REPRODUCING PIANO. Come prepared to enjoy such piano playing as concert goers pay large sums each year to hear.

The Duo-Art may be had in the Steinway, Weber, Steck, Wheelock, Aeolian and Stroud Pianos, in grand and upright models, and is sold on monthly payments as low as

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage in order of application.

GOLDEN RIVER, by J. W. Hills. Story of a trip through Paraguay, describing the natives and the country, and stressing particularly the occupations of the people and the travelers. Lively tales of fishing and hunting expeditions add to the interest, along with many photographs of the people and places.

WASHINGTON AND HIS COLLEAGUES, by H. J. Ford. Plans made by Washington as to the proper ceremonies to be carried out by him in his new office. Discussion and solving of problems of the country up to the time of the expiration of his term of office and the inauguration of Adams, are taken up in a way more like a story than a history.

THE BUSINESS MAN'S GEOGRAPHY, by E. G. R. Taylor. Gives accounts of the commerce and industry of all countries of the globe. Arranged alphabetically by country with subdivisions under each; area and population, trade relations, human and economic conditions. A group of large colored maps is included, as well as small ones with each country. The author used as sources for his material official yearbooks, consular reports and all available, reliable statistics.

WHAT A BUSINESS MAN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT PRINTING AND BOOKMAKING, by W. B. Conkey Co. The first part describes the company's own plant, telling of methods used there and in other plants. Although not written as a text book on the subject, the book contains material from many valuable text books. Besides chapters on typography, binding, illustrating, etc., there is a special section on how to obtain copyrights.

EXPERIENCES AND OBSERVATIONS OF AN AMERICAN CONSULAR OFFICER DURING THE RECENT MEXICAN REVOLUTIONS, by Will B. Davis. Letters to his daughter telling of his work and the deplorable conditions and treatment of the people, are used as a background. At one time a doctor in the Guadalajara Consular district, he was later made vice consul, and in the absence of the Consul, took up his duties. As an appendix, the author gives "Common slanders about the Mexicans" and what he thinks about them.

IF BRITAIN IS TO LIVE, by Norman Angell. Written primarily for British public, not to arouse Americans. Author states that certain old traditions must be done away with, new measures taken up; England is overpopulated and cannot feed and clothe itself from its own soil. "England must starve or emigrate, failing a complete and immediate change of policy."

LITHUANIA, PAST AND PRESENT, by E. J. Harrison. Story of a [illegible] division of Western Europe, from the fifteenth century up to the present time. One chapter is devoted to Contemporaries in Music and Art. The author is a former member of the British Commission to the Baltic States, and is not only an investigator of the past, but also an eye witness of the later events in the history of Lithuania.

RADIO FOR THE AMATUER AND EXPERT

SELF-SEEKING STATIONS A BROADCASTING EVIL

Radio Expert Says Majority of Those Licensed Perform No Real Public Service.

An expert's view on the comparative value of broadcasting stations will be found in this excerpt from a recent article by C. W. Horn, superintendent of radio operations of the Westinghouse Electric Co.:

"There were, before the end of 1922, more than 600 radio broadcasting stations in existence. There were probably not more than 25 or 30 of these stations so situated in centers of population and so operated and maintained that they were giving unselfishly the best that could possibly be given at the present stage of development. This meant the outlay of enormous sums of money without any possible revenue accruing from this expenditure. The majority in this group of more than 600 licensed stations were in the game merely to spread their names over the map and to obtain for themselves all the publicity that they could. These stations may be classed as offensive billboards on the highway reserved for pleasure and education. They obstruct the view of the person seeking to broaden himself by listening to the many fine speeches and talks give nightly over the radio.

"Generally this "blaa-blaa" station was built by some energetic amateur whose experience in radio telephony was obtained from having once seen a radio telegraph spark set on a ship and, because those for whom the station was built knew nothing of radio itself, this young man was usually set up as being a "wizard" and a "genius." Stacked up against a radio engineer he would probably feel embarrassed to be called a radio man. This young man buys the material and after much experimenting and extensive testing he finally gets something that will emit squawks and is eventually called a radio broadcasting station in big letters in some store or other business advertisement. Gradually improvements are made as defects are found and of course in the end and after the public has become somewhat used to the "quality" of the station it functions fairly well.

Worth Remembering.

The surface of crystals can be cleaned with carbon bisulphide.

Grid-leaks are not used on crystal detector sets, but only on vacuum-tube sets.

Radio waves travel at the rate of 186,000 miles per second. They will girdle the earth in one-tenth of a second.

Pour the acid (a few drops at a time) into the water, when mixing electrolyte for a lead storage cell. Never pour the water into the acid.

Among the scientists who make radio telegraphy practical are: Hertz, Marconi, Rhunkoff, Branly, Lodge, Fleming, De Forest, Armstrong, Colpitts, Hartley, Heising, Meisner, Bell and others.

Hear Atlanta On Crystal We receive programs from Atlanta Minneapolis, Davenport, FortWorth, Dallas, Kansas City, St. Louis, Denver on Crystal without batteries. Usual crystal set requires only easy, inexpensive changes. Send stamp for further information or $1 for copyright drawings and instructions. Everything clearly explained. Satisfaction GUARANTEED.

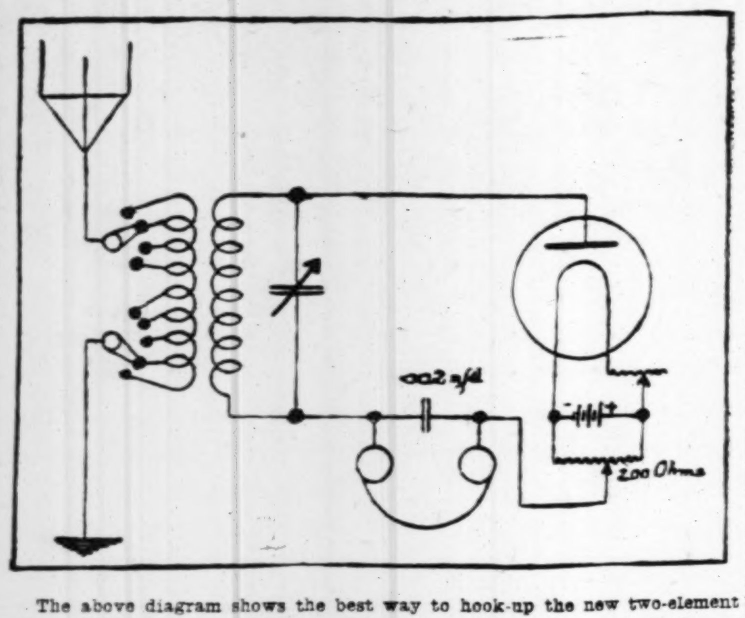
THE TWO-ELEMENT TUBE



The above diagram shows the best way to hook-up the new two-element tubes which have recently been placed on the market as a result of the expiration of the Fleming valve patent. They are useful for experimental purposes and are only to be used as a detector.

STUDIO-THEATER BEING BUILT IN ENGLAND

Outgrowth of Decree That Members of Actors' Union May Not Perform for Radio.

Because the Theatrical Manager's Association of London has decided to ban the broadcasting of plays, music, songs and other entertainments in which performers in employ of members of that body appear, the British Broadcasting Co. is building a large new studio-theater from which to broadcast such entertainment. The company will organize playing troupes of its own, and will engage independent singers, musicians and other entertainers. The studio-theater will be at Savoy Hill, a London district, and will be the first of its kind in the world.

The theatrical managers hold that "it is prejudicial to the interests of all connected with places of public entertainment" to permit the broadcasting of audible performances. Committees have been appointed by the association to take "further steps to protect our common interests."

London newspapers, as a rule, express the opinion that radio broadcasting helps rather than hinders the entertainment business as carried on in theaters and public halls. The Daily Express, for instance, declares that the Theatrical Managers' Association is taking an absurd view of the matter.

"It has been proved beyond doubt," continues that paper, "that when an extract from a good play is broadcast, listeners-in who like it go to hear the whole play. Only the poor play suffers, and it would die in any case."

The broadcasting company appears unperturbed. As matters stand, it looks like a fight between the theater managers and the radio broadcasters as rivals, whereas the theory has been heretofore that the two interests were mutually helpful.

The Newly-Charged Battery.

Immediately after being charged, storage batteries have a slightly higher voltage than that at which they are rated. Care should be observed in using vacuum tubes when batteries are in this condition. It is best to allow the battery to stand for a time after being charged.

OFFICIAL LIST OF CLASS "B" STATIONS

Totals 36 Regular Stations and Two With Special Licenses.

The official list of Class B stations with their special waves, as announced by the Department of Commerce, May 19, includes 36 regular stations and two special broadcasters.

There were two new stations added to this class recently: the U. S. Playing Card Co. at Cincinnati, WSAT, and the Union Trust Co. of Cleveland, WJAX.

UTILITY OF CARRIER CURRENT TELEPHONY

Radio Operator Unnecessary—Has All Desirable Features of a Wire Telephone System.

It is a matter of common knowledge that a single electrical conductor can be made to be a part of two or more electrical circuits and function in each circuit simultaneously. It is possible, for example, for a single conductor to carry both alternating and direct current, or two or more alternating currents of different frequency characteristics, simultaneously.

These currents do not exist independently in the conductor, however, and at any instant the current flowing is the sum of all component currents.

The method used to superimpose telephone communication on a line already in use for the transmission of speech by the usual methods, or for the transmission of power, lies in generating an alternating current of rather high frequencies, modulating it in much the same manner as the output of a radio transmitter is modulated, and coupling the generator to the line. At the receiving end, apparatus is used which somewhat resembles a radio receiver. This is also coupled to the line, and tuned to the frequency of the communication current.

The system of communication which results, is known as "carrier Current Telephony," a name derived from the fact that the communication is carried by the high frequency source rather than directly, as in the case of the usual telephone line.

Carrier current communication has advantages over wire telephony in that it can be applied to already existing power lines. For example, it is customary for power companies, who maintain long transmission lines, to provide for telephone communication between their various stations and substations by running wires either above or below the power line. Such procedure while undoubtedly serving its purpose to a certain extent, is subject to failure from a number of sources.

For example, the entire line from one station to the other must be maintained intact for communication to be maintained. The fact that the line is exposed to damage for a great many miles makes it probable that it will be brought down by severe wind or hail storms, putting the telephone service out of commission. The fact that it runs this distance also exposes it to the hazard of becoming crossed with wires in the transmission line in the event that one or more of them should break.

In carrier current telephony over transmission lines, the exposure to such failure is appreciably reduced. The maximum exposure offered in such installations is that of one or more coupling wires strung for a length of 1000 feet beneath the transmission line. This is necessary at both the transmitting and receiving station. The physical exposure, therefore, is reduced to a negligible minimum when compared to the total length of the line.

The reduced exposure of the carrier system also results in its far greater freedom from disturbances, which are usually encountered in telephone lines erected adjacent to transmission lines. This refers to induced noises, lightning disturbances and atmospherics.

While carrier current telephony requires, for successful operation, a closed alternating current circuit, such a circuit may be maintained under conditions which would be fatal to a direct current circuit. For example, one or more of the conductors of a transmission line may be severed without destroying communication, since the alternating current circuit remains intact so long as there is a single conductor left intact, or so long as any opening in the line has sufficient capacity associated with it to keep the alternating current circuit intact.

Carrier current telephony, however, will not be successful on a system if the line is completely opened either by switches or by all of the conductors in the system becoming severed, unless additional so-called "coupling equipment" is provided for bridging the point at which the circuit is opened. This provision is most applicable at points where the circuit is intentionally opened at intervals such as at switching stations or at circuit breakers.

If communication is required by the two points under the most severe conditions, such as the complete transmission line being down for a considerable distance, straight radio is the only sure solution. One of the greatest advantages of carrier current telephony, however, lies in the fact that it is not radio equipment and the stations are not radio stations and that, therefore, it is not necessary to obtain an operating license from the Department of Commerce and keep an operator on watch at all times.

Carrier current telephony on power lines can best be justified when the system is erected. If carrier current is used, no provision need be made for the erection of telephone lines. Since such provision is a matter of considerable cost, particularly in cases where provision for a telephone line would mean the erection of towers several feet higher than would otherwise be required, it is far more economical to install a carrier current communication system.

The purpose of a "C" battery is to provide the correct negative charge to the grid.

It is estimated that the sun's rays absorb 70 per cent of the strength from radio waves.

A variometer has two coils connected in series, while a variocoupler is two coils independent of one another.

With an indoor aerial, the fact that the doors and windows are closed is no hindrance to radio waves entering the house.

Efficient operation of a radio receiving or transmitting set depends upon the proper adjustments of inductance and capacity.

A variocoupler should be used when making a crystal set, because this unit can be employed when changing the set over to a vacuum tube outfit.

Lead-in wires should be of the same size as the wire of the antenna.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer

Q. (1) Which is the best way to connect a 43-plate variable condenser in order to obtain the best results in receiving on 546 meters? (2) Is any additional tuning apparatus necessary other than a variocoupler, 43-plate variable condenser, crystal detector, phone condenser, and receivers? (3) What length should the aerial be to receive on 546 meters? R. H. R.

A. (1) Our advice, would be to connect it so that it may be changed from a series or parallel to a shunk connection. (2) No. (3) The aerial should be not less than 90 feet long, 40 feet high (or more) and have a lead-in of 25 feet.

Q. Can I use a two-element tube in a two-stage radio-frequency amplifier? H. L.

A. No. Amplification at audio-frequency and radio-frequency requires the use of three-element vacuum tubes.

Q. Is No. 22 wire for the stator, and No. 26 for the rotor all right for a vario-coupler? W. C. G.

A. Yes.

Q. I have a home-made honeycomb coil set and wish to purchase three more coils for higher wave-lengths. What ones would you recommend? A. K.

A. Not knowing the size of your aerial, nor the higher wave-length range you desire to receive, we are unable to give the information requested.

Q. Please tell me how I can use a loop aerial with my detector and two-stage radio-frequency amplifier to eliminate static? W. R. B.

A. A loop may be substituted in place of your outside antenna, but for satisfactory reception over any great distance, several stages of radio-frequency will be necessary.

Q. (1) Do you know of any concern who manufactures or sells 1½ volt storage batteries? (2) Is the UV-199 tube as efficient as a "peanut" tube? Is it a 1½ or a 6-volt tube? E. C.

A. (1) There are some on the market. Communicate with dealers whose advertisements appear on these pages, or refer to the advertising section of radio magazines. (2) Many experimenters claim that it is. It is rated at 3 volts.

Q. (1) In the Kopprasch circuit, I understand that the stators should be wound in opposite direction to that of the coil between the variometers. Should each half of the stators be wound in opposite directions, or should the entire stator of each variometer be wound in the same direction? (2) Can the aerial inductance be "loaded" for higher wave-lengths? U. H. G.

A. (1) Both halves of each variometer should be wound in the same direction. (2) Yes.

Q. Can the three-circuit set published Sunday, May 21, be used with a crystal set? Please publish the hook-up. D. B.

A. No.

Q. Is there any way to test a "B" battery? E. G.

A. Yes, use a voltmeter.

Q. I am using 22½ volts on the plate of a "peanut" tube and it burns a purplish color. Is there something wrong? WM. S.

A. Use a lower voltage tap on the "B" battery. The purple glow indicates that the "B" battery voltage is too high.

Q. I have to hold my fingers across the filament and grid to receive. What can I do to receive without doing this? G. R.

A. Connect a grid-leak of about one-half megohm between the grid and filament leads.

Q. I have been having trouble with the amplifying transformers in my set and would like to know the best way to test the windings. M. A. F.

A. Sometimes the primaries of the transformers burn out. This usually occurs in the primary of the second transformer in a cascade of two amplifiers. I suggest that you try and see if you can get the output of the first amplifier across the primary of the second transformer. Make this test with the terminals of your head set. If you obtain signals there and can not get any response from the second amplifier output you will know that you have a burned out transformer. Make this test with the terminals of your head set. If you obtain signals there and cannot get any response from the second amplifier output you will know that you have a burned out transformer. It is almost impossible for the amateur to repair the transformer windings and the burned out transformer should be replaced with a new one.

TUBES TO SUPPLANT SPARK SETS IN NAVY

Successful Tests Show Increased Efficiency; Duplex Operation Possible.

The Navy Communication Service both afloat and ashore is rapidly abandoning its spark transmitting sets for new vacum tube sets, in accordance with recommendations of the Radio Division of the Bureau of Engineering.

Recent experiments indicated that tube sets give excellent results and are far superior to the old sparks. A comparative test between the 100 KW spark set at Arlington, NAA and a new 6 KW tube installed there, demonstrated that the new tube will be satisfactory. Naval stations at San Juan, New Orleans, Balboa, San Diego and ships in the Atlantic and Pacific advised that the tube signals were read more easily and had slightly more audibility. The tube set showed harmonics, one of which was on about 350 meters but with modifications it is hoped that these can be eliminated.

A further successful test between the 6 KW tube set and the 30 KW arc at NAA was made recently, in which the tube set showed up well. It is probable that arc sets will eventually be discarded, but at present only new stations will get tubes except in replacements.

Highly gratifying results have been secured with a new model high-power tube transmitter installed on the Battleship Wyoming, and used in regular traffic. "In fact," states a naval report, "some results were unexpected, such as ability to receive on the same vessel during full power operation of this tube rating about 5KW." Numerous broadcasting stations transmitting on 400 meters were tuned in in the auxiliary radio room, while the big transmitter, installed in the main radio room, was supplying 36 amperes to the main antenna on a wave length of 507 meters. The receiving set in the auxiliary room was equipped with an amplifier consisting of three stages of radio-frenquency and two stages of audio-frequency. "This condition allows duplex communication, which has actually been put in practice on the Wyoming and will be further developed on the Colorado and West Virginia," the report states.

The arrangement of the radio rooms on these two battleships will differ from present Naval practice. Receiving will be done in the main receiving room forward, and transmission will be carried on aft from the main transmitting room.

In naval aviation squadrons new tube sets are also replacing spark sets. Five new aerial spotting sets have passed satisfactory tests and are enroute to the air squadrons of the battle fleet, where they will replace SE 1345 sets now in use. Spark sets will be used only at Pensacola for training naval radio personnel.

RADIO APPEAL FOR BLOOD BRINGS QUICK RESPONSE

The following account of a new use of radio appeared recently in the Daily Express, dated from Manchester, England:

A call for volunteers to allow a transfusion of blood to George Scott, who was seriously ill at Eccles Hospital following an amputation of an arm, was broadcast this morning by wireless.

The response was a remarkable illustration of the success of this new development of broadcasting, used for the first time in London on Sunday night to call a mother to her son's deathbed.

The massage was sent out from the Manchester wireless station, and at noon a man living in Monton, near Eccles, who said he had listened-in and recognized the name given as that of a neighbor, came to the hospital and offered his blood.

A little later two more Monton men came to give their blood, and a similar offer was made by telephone from Manchester by a man who was listening-in.

Meanwhile, a telephone message was sent to a factory where Scott was employed asking for a volunteer, and three of his workmates hurried to the hospital ready to give their blood.

MORE STANDARD WAVES FOR CALIBRATING SETS

Bureau of Standards Test Signals "WWV" Will Make More Accurate Tuning Possible.

"WWV" at the Bureau of Standards will again transmit radio signals of standard frequency on the nights of May 29, and June 4 and 11, for calibrating wave-meters and adjusting receiving and transmitting apparatus. Detailed information on methods of standardizing sets is available in Circular Letter 92 which may be obtained upon application to the Bureau at Washington.

The schedule includes the transmission of the following wave lengths starting at 11 p. m. Eastern time each night and continuing until 12:41 a. m.

BLIND MEN MAKE SETS; INSTALL ROOF AERIALS

E. F. Endicott, Though Sightless, Needs No Guide When Doing Lofty Construction Work.

That the radio is a great boon to the blind is a recognized fact. It has kept thousands of sightless men and women in touch with a world they cannot see, but is doing even more than that for two St. Louis blind men.

Most persons wanting an aerial installed on a roof would not think of sending for a blind man to do the work, and yet that is just the service that E. F. Endicott of 3969 Evans avenue is ready to perform, though he cannot see the tiniest gleam of daylight.

Endicott has a working partnership with Howard Wallace in the making and installing of radio sets. Wallace, though blind, makes his wonderfully sensitive fingers take the place of eyes. Despite his handicap he is skillful in the use of tools and he has acquired the faculty of making very efficient radio sets. He winds the coils and makes the connections unaided, and the finished product is so workmanlike that it would do credit to any seeing constructor.

That is Wallace's part. The "lofty work," as he facetiously calls it, falls to the lot of Endicott, whose specialty is putting up roof aerials on apartments and making the lead-in connections.

When putting up an aerial Endicott has no guide or assistant with him on the roof. He relies upon his trusty cane to warn him when he is near the edge. All the householder has to do is to tell Endicott where the ladder is. He gets it, rears it against the house and climbs to the roof and in an incredibly short time he attaches masts to two chimneys and strings the aerial between them. Then he attaches the lead-in wire and drops the end to the ground. He goes down the ladder, takes the lead-in wire through a window, attaches it to the set and makes a ground connection and the job is done.

Endicott and Wallace have become so proficient at this unusual work for blind men that they can make and install a set in a single day. Thus far they have installed only crystal sets for others, though Wallace has made for himself a tube set with which he has heard distant stations.

Importance of Firm Connections.

Loose connections have been the cause of many of the troubles experienced in receiving sets. When wires are connected to nuts, binding posts, etc., or with each other, care should be taken to see that these joints are tight and, if possible, soldered. No joints should be left unsoldered except those which have to be changed from time to time, such as the batteries and headphones. It is advisable sometimes to solder the "B" batteries, as these usually last about six months. A good joint is, first of all, one that is strong enough to hold up under the strains of handling. When two wires are connected they should be soldered at the center. The solder part makes the connection perfect, and the rest of the splice takes up the strain.

To Eliminate "Howling."

Radio sets may sometimes be kept from "howling" by placing the plate and grid leak wires as far apart as possible. It is also advisable to plan the wiring so as to be sure that the smallest amount of wire is used in connecting the different components.

Boyer in Packard Sets Mark.

A wire received by G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributors, told how Joe Boye had broken the lap record at the Indianapolis speedway. In one of the Packard racers, which he will drive Decoration Day, Boyer made a lap in one minute and 24 seconds, or at the rate of 106 miles per hour.

THE finest watch needs an occasional adjustment or it will lose or gain in time. A speedometer, subject to constant jolting, must also be adjusted occasionally to retain its accuracy.

The difference of a few miles in speed register may lead to a jail sentence or heavy fine for speeding.

Check up your speedometer with the motorcycle officer's Stewart Speedometer. Drive alongside and ask him what his speedometer shows his speed to be. See how it tallies with your own speedometer. He has his speedometer regularly adjusted at the local Stewart Service Station. He knows it is absolutely correct.

You, too, can have your speedometer tested and adjusted at a Stewart Service Station. An adjustment made today may keep you out of jail tomorrow.

STUDEBAKERS REPLACE STAGECOACH ON TRAIL

The last symbol of frontier life passes into history. Progress discards the picturesque old stagecoach for the modern motor car. A famous Indian route in British Columbia—the Cariboo Trail—first used by white men in the '60s, is now traveled triweekly by Studebaker Bix Six touring cars.

Carrying passengers, baggage and express, these cars start from Ashcroft—a point about 200 miles northeast of Vancouver—and run straight north to Quesnel. This is the route o fthe Cariboo Trail, which winds over steep, towering mountains in the range of the Canadian Rockies. It is a difficult road at best, and has always been almost impassable in bad weather. The distance from Ashcroft to Quesnel is 220 miles.

The trip by stagecoach was long and drudgerous and required three and one-half days, whereas the distance is now covered by motor car in a single day at a cost to the passenger of only 25 per cent of the fare charged by the stagecoach.

PACKARD AGENCY OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL NINE

The desire for many St. Louisans to see Packard cars in the evenings has caused G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributers, to decide to keep the salesroom at Twenty-second and Locust streets open every evening until 9 o'clock.

This move was made recently and has been productive of good results, according to officials of the company.

The Car of Distinction

In appearance The Dorris is so far above the ordinary that a casual glance almost invariably impels a closer inspection. Yet there is not an eccentric line in the entire design—just pure grace and beauty.

Performance is as distinguishing a feature as its handsome appearance. The Dorris perfected valve-in-head motor has a long-established reputation for staunch dependability, with power and speed that more than satisfy.

The ability of this wonderful car to hold the road at high speeds, and its remarkable riding qualities never fail to amaze.

WEDNESDAY IS MEMORIAL DAY. Throughout the length and breadth of this great land, the wheels of industry will stand silent. Men and women in every city, town and hamlet will in their own fashion commemorate the day. But howsoever they shall pass these hours, thoughts of the soldier dead will ever be first in their minds.

Memorial Day means much to Americans. Heroes of '61 still live and poignantly remember. The days of '98 are still a hallowed memory. And the tears for those who lie in France have not yet dried upon our cheeks.

But in commemorating our honored dead, our spirit should not be unduly sad. In remembering those who gave their lives that this country and its great institutions might endure, how can we fail to draw new and lofty inspiration——inspiration in the nobility of duty fulfilled, whether its paths lead to daily toil or to the glory of the battlefield.

APRIL PRODUCTION OF AUTOS, 380,000

NEW YORK, May 26.—Automotive Industries said this week:

Revised figures place production of automobiles and motor trucks during April at 380,000, instead of 361,000, which was the conservative estimate announced at the close of the month. For the first four months of the year output had reached 1,252,565, or more than double the production of 605,653 in the similar period a year ago. June of last year, with a total of 289,011, was the only month in the production history of the industry to approach April in output.

During the first week of May, for which reports are now available, production of cars was running 5 per cent above the first week of April, advices indicating, however, that output was in advance of shipments. This would point to some stocking of finished products by the manufacturers.

From all indications sales throughout the country are good, with the demand especially strong for closed cars. Such stocks as dealers have on hand are largely of open models, the accumulation being due in a measure to local climatic conditions.

It would not be surprising to find a slackening in manufacturing operations coming at almost any time owing to the desire of producers to bring schedules to a point where they would offer a regular operating program to be followed throughout the year. This would insure steady operations during the usually dull season. Such a paring off would not mean retarded sales, as it would indicate the tendency of the industry against over-production. The industry as a whole has guarded itself against undue expansion of manufacturing facilities.

CLEVELAND SIX WINS WAGER FOR DEALER

"Bragging about the strength of a Cleveland Six cost Frank L. Darling, Long Beach (Cal.) dealer, a lot of time and trouble to back up his boast, but he won a nice fat wager as the result," says Roy Ward of the Ward-Groff Motors Corporation, local Cleveland Six distributer.

"Word from the factory states that Darling was expounding upon the virtues of the Cleveland Six to a Long Beach Merchant and remarked that a Cleveland could pull as big a load as a five-ton truck. The merchant, evidently having a combination of sporting blood in his veins, took issue on that brag and put up a wager that he meant business.

"Darling stood pat, so a huge platform was built and fitted over the body of a strictly stock model Cleveland which had been driven 30,000 miles. The front cross beams rested on the headlights and chassis arms, the center one across the two front doors and the rear one on the chassis arms and rear-seat structure. It was constructed of heavy lumber with a rail around it.

"Fifty-two men stood on the platform, while the sturdy little car was driven through the streets towing a four-ton truck in which eight more men rode.

"There were 800 pounds deadweight load on the Cleveland itself and 16,200 pounds tow weight, making a total load of 24,200 pounds."

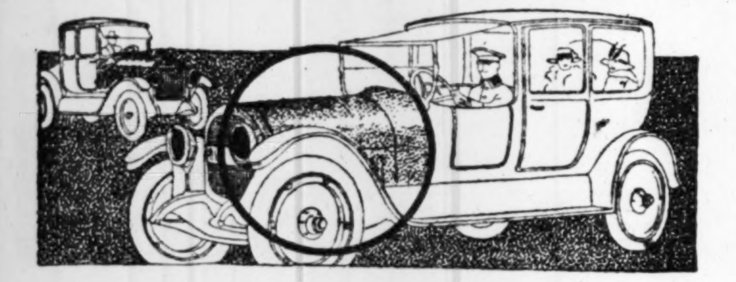
NASH PRODUCTION EXCEEDS RECORDS

May will undoubtedly be the biggest month in the history of the Nash Motors Co., is the word received by F. C. MacDonald, president of the Southwest Nash Co.

Shipments for the first half of May totaled 3016 cars, the production schedule for the month calling for 6000 cars.

"Even with shipments for the month of 6000 cars we will not meet the full demand," writes E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash Motors Co. "As a matter of fact we have orders from dealers for nearly 2000 cars in excess of the May production schedule. Demand for the Nash product has increased so rapidly that throughout the entire spring each month has eclipsed all previous records in point of production and sales."

If you wish to pass another car, going in your direction, choose a long, straight stretch of road.



The dull, gray film that kills the appearance of your car

--how to remove it!

As many dealers will tell you, Trade Value is 50 per cent APPEARANCE!

ASIDE from considerations of good grooming, or of pride, good appearance has a definite commercial value. Whether it be automobiles or big red apples, a higher value is placed on that which looks the part. Observe the apple merchant, rubbing up his wares. He knows. Furthermore, he "cashes" on his knowledge. An investment in appearance, does pay - and pays BIG!

Laboratory solves film removal!

Careful laboratory tests revealed the nature of the milky film that saps 50 per cent from the value of motor cars. And proved, that the ordinary furniture polish, or any "oily" paste or polish, was entirely inadequate for out-of-doors conditions. In fact, it was found that oil in combination with dust and atmospheric action largely contributed to the film's formation. Hence, COMMON SENSE AUTO POLISH, The Greaseless Cleanser was developed; and perfected through practical tests on thousands of motor cars throughout the country. Results obtained with COMMON SENSE AUTO POLISH prove it immeasureably superior for the purpose intended; and explain why it monopolizes the sale of polish in every district where introduced.

What Common Sense is

COMMON SENSE is a non-greasy, non-sticky liquid that quickly removes the film, and restores to the finish - if any of it remains - the brilliant sparkle of the original factory luster. This, plus an absolutely Bone-dry, dust proof surface - water and weather resistant - has created a Standard of Performance. And, established COMMON SENSE, as "The Standard Auto Polish of America".

How an Investment of $1.00 Will Add $150.00 to the Appearance of Your Car.

The first application of Common Sense Auto Polish will add at least $150.00 to the appearance of your car. But will cost you only $1.00! Your nearest Druggist or Accessory Dealer has it or can get it for you, promptly. You are urged to insist on Common Sense, even if you must send direct to the Laboratory. $1.00 will bring you a supply by return mail, postpaid. Testing Sample 12c postage. Address

STUTZ PUTS H. C. S. CARS IN BIG RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 26.—Surprise bombs blasted the secrecy that has been surrounding two of the cars entered in the International 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Wednesday, May 30, with the announcement that two of the speedy Miller mounts will be known as H. C. S. Specials, owned and sponsored by the H. C. S. Motor Company, Indianapolis, of which Harry C. Stutz is designer and builder.

Tommy Milton, 1921 racing champion and who has officially traveled faster on wheels than any other person—156.4 miles an hour—will be at the wheel of the first H. C. S. Special of the two car team. The other driver will be "Howdy" Wilcox.

The H. C. S. Special Milton will drive has already traveled the fastest practice lap at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway this year and was the first of the new 122 cubic inch piston displacement cars, being raced at Indianapolis for the first time in history, to be constructed.

The H. C. S. Specials will bring back to the track—Harry C. Stutz, one of the most romantic figures of the great gasoline sport, a pit general and strategist.

"REAL ART IN DRIVING," SAYS BUICK MANAGER

E. T. Strong Declares Handling of Car a Science to Be Studied Carefully.

"Much is said about how easy it is to drive a motor car, but very little is said about the real art of driving," E. T. Strong, general sales manager Buick Motor Co., in an article sent out by his company, says. "Perhaps the tendency has been to talk too much about simple control, natural steering and easy shifting of gears, and not to lay enough emphasis upon the fact that it is one thing to be able to drive a motor car and another to be able to drive efficiently.

"Suppose that you were to ask 100 average motorists this question: 'Are you a good driver?' Without hesitation each would say, 'Absolutely.' And yet if you were to examine that 100 in the fine points of driving, not more than two or three would deserve to be qualified as expert drivers.

"As we said, perhaps it is the manufacturer's fault. It is possible that we have made our cars so simple to operate that the averaged driver does not think there is anything more to driving than to steer, to shift gears, to use the accelerator and to get in and out of tight places.

"But the truth is that as soon as one has mastered less fundamentals the act of mere driving ends and the art of driving begins. And one can advance as far as one wishes in the art of driving.

"Driving is a science, just as farming, running a store, or cooking is a science. One can manage to get along pleasantly, safely and in a matter-of-course way without giving it a great deal of thought. But the man or woman who gains the most in comfort, convenience and economy, is the one who is constantly endeavoring to improve his or her driving.

"The good motorist is always looking for new methods that he can apply to his own driving. He learns how to drive with safety over strange roads, how best to make both right and left turns in the country as well as in the city, how to go down steep grades, how to start and stop on grades, how to approach strange or dangerous crossroads or railroad crossings, how to drive over the tops of hills, how to negotiate sand and mud, how safely to pass vehicles going in the same direction and how to meet those approaching him. These are but a few of the things which a driver can do in the common way or the expert way.

MANY MOTORISTS TRY NEW MOTOR LUBRICANT

Several Hundred St. Louisans Test Craveroil, According to District.

"Several hundred St. Louis motorists have commenced trying Craveroil, since our first big announcement last Sunday," said John M. Nichols, district salesmanager for the Craveroil company of America, yesterday.

"Besides, Johnston Bros. Tire and Service Co., which has the St. Louis agency, we have appointed distributors in many localities. However we still have a good deal of territory left, although all of that section close to St. Louis has been signed up.

"Personally I believe Craveroil is destined to become very popular. I'll tell you why.

"The development of the motor car to its present high efficiency is the result of many minds. Each man responsible for its development has added to the transition from a crude, inefficient motor to a high-powered, power plant. In bringing the internal combustion engine to its present efficiency two very important problems were left unsolved. No provision was made for the proper lubrication of the moving parts of the combustion chamber and nothing was done to eliminate carbon troubles. For many years leading automobile engineers have been work on these problems, but we believe a Kansas City man, J. E. Craver, has found the solution through the discovery of a new oil and the invention of a simple attachment to feed the oil to the cylinder head.

"More than three years ago," said Nichols, "Craver discovered a combination of essential and vegetable oils that would withstand the terrific heat of the motor without losing its lubricating qualities. He called it Craveroil. Then began a series of experiments which led to the invention of the Craveroilr, a simple little attachment that injects Craveroil into the cylinder head in the form of an oily vapor and this vapor permeates every part of the combustion chamber, lubricating the upper cylinder walls.

"The Craveroilr is a simple attachment that goes on the dash under the hood. It has no moving parts. A small copper tube runs from the attachment to the intake manifold and with every intake stroke of the pistons a mist of Craveroil is drawn into the cylinders along with the gasoline mixture.

FRANKLIN SEDAN MAKES REMARKABLE ROAD RUN

One of the most remarkable long distance records ever staged over ordinary roads took place early in May, when a Franklin sedan carrying four passengers covered 331 miles from Detroit to Grand Rapids and return at an average speed of 43.84 miles per hour. Details of the trip have been received by A. E. Spielberg, president of the Franklin Motor Car Co., Franklin distributers.

The party left Detroit at 3:50 a. m., arriving at Grand Rapids at 8:03; the average running time for the 165.5 miles was 44.5 miles per hour. The return trip average was 43.2 miles per hour. Twenty minutes was allowed for breakfast at Grand Rapids. The car was piloted throughout the trip either by State constabulary or city police.

MAKES NEW RECORD DRIVING A KISSEL

On Monday night, April 30th, Charles Holdson of Los Angeles completed one of the most grueling tests a man and machine ever made—13,050 miles of night and day driving in 30 days, averaging over 435 miles daily. The run was made between Los Angeles and San Francisco, following the inland route.

Not only did Mr. Holdson establish a continuous driving record, but also a new non-stop record, when he made one continuous round trip a distance of 880 miles in 34 hours, sleeping two hours and 20 minutes in catnaps at the wheel, while the motor kept running. Special arrangements were made with the Bay City officials to enable the car to be ferried across from Oakland with the engine running.

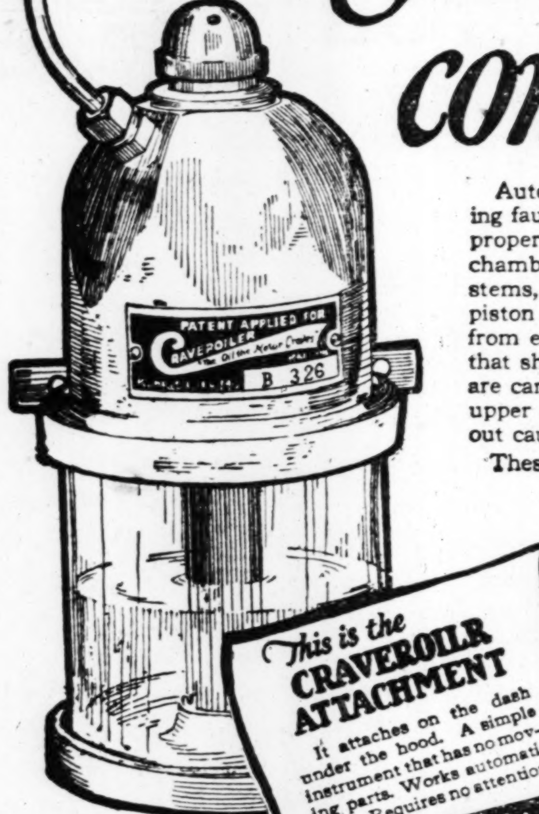
The CHALMERS SIX

Solves the problem of combustion chamber lubrication!



Automobile engineers are agreed that the one outstanding fault of the internal combustion engine is the lack of proper lubrication to the moving parts of the combustion chamber—the upper cylinder walls, valves, valve seats, valve stems, guides, etc. Think a moment. You know that the piston rings if functioning properly prevent crank case oil from entering the combustion chamber. You further know that should crank case oil get past the piston rings the results are carbon deposits and retarded power. How then can the upper engine be properly and scientifically lubricated without causing carbon troubles?

These were serious problems until the discovery of Craveroil and the invention of the Craveroilr attachment. Today these problems are definitely solved. More than 30,000 Craveroilr attachments in constant use on all makes of cars in all parts of the country prove the statements we make.

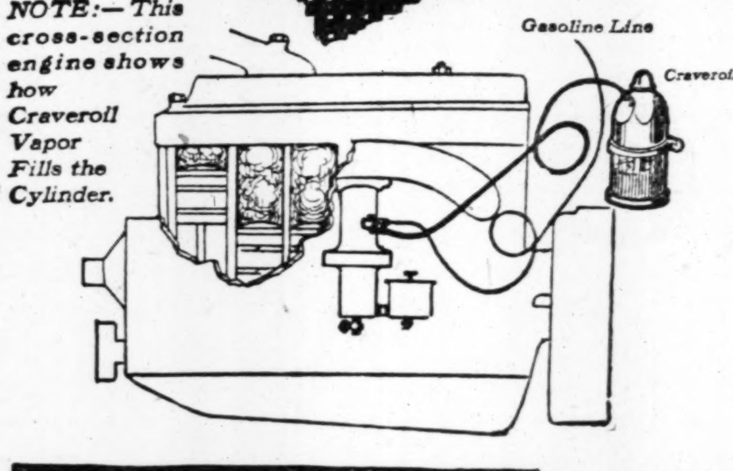
Craveroil has accomplished two important things for the internal combustion engine. First—it scientifically lubricates all the moving parts of the combustion chamber thereby reducing friction and vibration. Second—it stops Carbon Troubles by preventing the crystallization or hardening of carbon, thereby keeping the firing chamber clean. Craveroil is served to the cylinder head of the motor thru the Craveroilr—a simple little attachment that has no moving parts and requires no attention except an occasional filling with Craveroil, the only oil that can be successfully used for the purpose. A copper tube runs from the Craveroilr to the intake manifold. With every intake stroke of the pistons a small amount of Craveroil Vapor is drawn into the combustion chamber and combined with the explosive mixture. This vapor permeates every crevice of the upper engine, lubricating all moving parts and preventing the accumulation of carbon.

This is the CRAVEROILR ATTACHMENT

It attaches on the dash under the hood. A simple instrument that has no moving parts. Works automatically. Requires no attention.

CRAVEROIL
THE OIL THE MOTOR CRAVES

NOTE:—This cross-section engine shows how Craveroil Vapor Fills the Cylinder.



Craveroil is a compound of pure essential oils, virtually non-burning and absolutely non-injurious to the motor. We positively guarantee this. Craveroil has the hearty endorsement of leading automobile companies and 30,000 users.

The Craveroil Attachment can be installed on your car in 10 minutes without changing or altering its present adjustment. Its cost is small and it will pay for itself in a short time. One day's use of Craveroil will stop any carbon knock your engine may now have. Two days' use will increase your power and cut down your gasoline consumption 30%. A week's use will convince you that you cannot afford to drive a car that is not Craveroiled. Read our Trial Offer.

10 Days Free Trial {Without Payment or Deposit}

You do not have to take our word for Craveroil. We offer you an astounding opportunity to prove its merit for yourself. You can test it on your own car for Ten Days without any payment or deposit and without in any way obligating yourself to keep it. Simply drive your car to the Craveroil Station. It will take us about 10 minutes to install the Craveroilr. Use it for ten days. Observe its performance. See the difference it makes in your motor. Then—if you are not firmly convinced in your own mind that the Craveroilr is the most wonderful attachment you ever saw, we will remove it from your car and the trial has cost you nothing. You are to be the sole judge uninfluenced. Drive in today and try Craveroil.

SEVEN-DAY NONSTOP RUN BY RICKENBACKER

A seven-day motor nonstop run by a Rickenbacker six standard touring car, was completed May 16 at San Diego, Cal., according to word received by "Jim" Ward of the Diesing Motor Sales Co., which handles the Rickenbacker here.

In honor of this achievement, and as a compliment to their friend Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, Lieuts. Kelly and McCready, army aviators, who made the recent nonstop transcontinental aeroplane trip, which is a world's record, and who also established several other world's records recently, took the wheel and drove the Rickenbacker Six the last 10 miles of its test.

The test was conducted by the Lee Motor Co., Rickenbacker Distributers in San Diego, Cal., and the total mileage made was 4648 miles in 168 hours.

The test was made over ordinary highways of San Diego County, except the first 42 hours' run, which was over the city streets and the famous stunt hills of the city of San Diego. The car showed an average of 19 four-tenths miles per gallon of gasoline.

H. C. S. CAR WINS THE "GRAN PRIX"

THE H. C. S. Motor Car Co. of Indianapolis has just notified A. E. Archer, president of the McCarthy-Archer company, H. C. S. distributers, that a Series IV H. C. S., the latest Harry C. Stutz product, has been awarded the "Gran Prix," the highest award for motor cars, at the Brazil Centennial Exhibition in Rio de Janeiro. In a letter from J. A. Barros, Brazilian representative, to the H. C. S. company, Mr. Barros states:

"I take the pleasure to inform you that I have been awarded with the highest prize, the "Gran Prix," at the Centennial Exposition, for the H. C. S. car exhibited."

"Considering the great number of cars exhibited at this exposition, it is very flattering to have been awarded, in its class, with the first and highest prize, by the Prize Committee. They based their decision not only on the fine appearance and finish of the car as well as its mechanical construction and accessibility to its component parts."

MOTOR INDUSTRY NOT TO LOSE J. W. DRAKE

Appointment of J. Walter Drake, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, as Assistant Secretary of Commerce, announced by President Harding in Washington the other day, does not mean that Mr. Drake will lose his identity with the automobile industry, although he will discontinue active executive work in it.

Detroit leaders in the automobile field, interviewed following the announcement, point out that Drake's selection as Herbert Hoover's assistant is a significant recognition by Washington of the growing importance of the automotive industry in the business life of the nation and the world.

Drake has been active in a semipublic way and has represented the united motor interest in the United States for a number of years—as a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce; as a director of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, of which he is also chairman of the foreign trade committee, and as a director of the American Manufacturers' Export Association and the National Foreign Trade Council. He has just returned from a three months' trip abroad, where he went as a delegate of the United States Chamber of Commerce to the meeting of the International chamber at Rome.

"JORDANS AND KISSELS SELL WELL," SAYS BOE

Business is unusually good, according to John Boe, president of the Saint Louis Motor Car Co., Kissel and Jordan distributors.

"In fact, it is so good," he said yesterday, "that we have found it necessary to drive many cars from the factories this season.

"Both Jordan and Kissel are far behind in their deliveries, according to word I have received from them. In addition to a good business in new cars, used automobiles have been doing mighty well and we have been selling a goodly number."

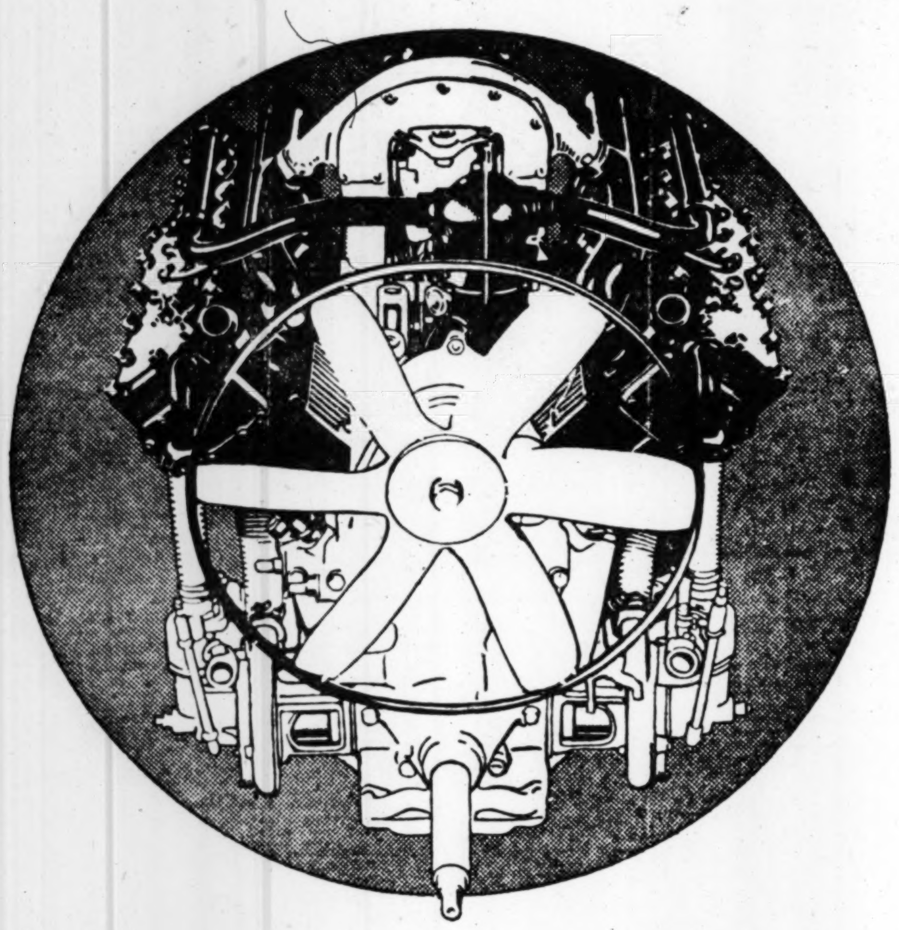
Standard of the World



The Supremacy of the V-Type Principle

In 1914, Cadillac first devoted itself to the manufacture of motor cars equipped with V-Type ninety degree eight-cylinder engines which would be Standard of the World.

Since that time, this Company has produced, with constant refinements, more than 150,000 V-Type eight-cylinder engines and not one of them has ever been replaced by the factory for any reason.

Moreover, in recognition of the supremacy of the V-Type eight-cylinder principle, and of Cadillac's position as its leading exponent, more people have purchased Type 61 than all other cars combined at or above its price range.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD, MACAULEY FINDS

President of Packard Motor Car Company Makes Nation-Wide Survey.

Results of a nation-wide survey of business conditions just completed by Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car Co., show a unity of opinion that 1923 will prove a record breaking year in nearly every line of industry.

Bankers, farmers, merchants and industrial leaders in every part of the country were asked their opinion on prospects for general business during the rest of the year. In some sections, due to local conditions alone, it was found that the outlook is not entirely favorable but, the reports indicate, the country, taken as a whole, never faced a more favorable year for business.

From Chattanooga, Tenn., came word that the textile mills anticipate a big year. J. G. Wilson of the Richmond Hosiery Mills, one of the largest mills of its kind in the United States, said he expected one of the best years in the history of his business.

C. A. Root of the Uxbridge Worsted Co., Uxbridge, Mass., said increases in wages and materials in eastern textile centers would force price advances in finished materials and that upon the reception of such advances by the public would depend a continuance of the textile industry's present prosperity.

Arthur F. Perry, president of the Florida National Bank, Jacksonville, said the financial condition of the people of Florida is excellent and the outlook for trade conditions during the present year is exceedingly bright.

"Conditions here are excellent," said Charles H. McNider, president of the First National Bank of Mason City, Ia. "Business was never in better form. I see no cloud on the business horizon for this year, either the first or the last half."

J. W. Spangler, president of the Seattle National Bank, Seattle, Wash., was loath to make a prediction for the entire year but said he believed the outlook for the next six months was quite encouraging.

"Daily the volume of commercial recovery grows," was the way John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis, expressed his view.

W. W. Smith, vice president of the First National Bank in St. Louis, said the general outlook in St. Louis and tributary territory for 1923 is good, especially with respect to the first nine months. He said the outlook in the cotton districts of the South was very promising and better prices are lending encouragement in the grain states.

"Business and financial leaders believe that 1923 will reflect the benefits of the sweeping adjustments effect during 1922," said Robert S. Donaldson, president of the Erie County Savings Bank, Buffalo, N. Y. "Taking business as a whole, all indications point to a definite increase in buying by consumers."

Bankers in Missouri, New York, Colorado, Washington, Iowa, Florida, Massachusetts, Montana, California and in several other states all agreed that business is better now than it has been in years and that there is every indication this condition will continue.

"This part of the country, as well as the entire United States, is gradually ascending the hill of industrial stability," said Clark G. Mitchell, vice president of the Bankers' Trust Co., Denver.

"This has been what we term a good year in Florida," said Edward W. Lane, president of the Atlantic National Bank of Jacksonville, Fla. "The citrus fruit crop was large and brought better than average prices; trucking is good; lumber is having a 'run-away' market and the State has been full of tourists."

Heavy snows through the winter have furnished Montana with the moisture it needs to raise a heavy crop this year in the opinion of E. O. Hedrick, president of the Lewistown State Bank, Lewistown, Mont. Conditions in Montana have been none too good, he added, but a change for the better now is being experienced.

Mr. B. Milburn of Chicago has invented a new puncture-proof inner tube, which, in actual test, was punctured 500 times without the loss of any air. Increase your mileage from 10,000 to 12,000 miles without removing this wonderful tube from the wheel, and the beauty of it all is that this new puncture-proof tube costs no more than the ordinary tube, and makes riding a real pleasure. This Year-Round Jewett Pleases All the Family

Comfort That Defies Weather—Performance To Be Proud Of

$500 Cash

Balance monthly Buys this JEWETT

JEWETT Sedan is breezy and cool on hot days. All side windows lower, as illustrated. You enjoy all the "openness" of a touring car. In the dusty stretch or sudden storm, raise the windows and you are just as snug and clean as at home. Lock the doors and luggage is safe.

When Jack Frost comes, this Jewett Sedan is doubly prized by all the family. With windows closed tight—they do close tight—you are comfortable on the bitterest days. You will go out oftener, keep in closer touch with your friends, really use your car.

But Jewett Sedan gives more than weather comfort. With the longest springs of any car its size—and costly, deep seat cushions—it defies rough roads. Its rugged construction—Jewett is 200 pounds heavier than comparable cars—gives big car riding ease. It is finished, fitted and built to please and endure. Slam the doors. The sound bespeaks substantial worth.

Jewett Sedan is known as "the closed car with open car performance," due to the spirit of its 50-horsepower motor. Pass any car on any hill. Jewett Touring cars accelerate from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds in high gear. The Sedan does nearly the same. Drive it from 2 to 60 miles an hour on high. You rarely change gears. When you do, it means a bare 3-inch movement of the lever. Do it fast or slowly—there's never a "miss" nor a "clash." Women prize the Jewett for its easy handling.

Jewett's mechanism stays good. Jewett is the only Sedan around $1500 made by a builder of finest quality cars. Paige-Timken axles front and rear. Paige-type clutch and transmission. Paige-built motor. Sturdy 6-inch frame. It is a car to be proud of—an economical car for long, hard, satisfactory service—a staunch, powerful six at the price of a four! Arrange with the near-by Jewett dealer for a family demonstration. (513-B)

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MAY 27, 1923.

PAGES 13—20.

"Naughty Marietta," Opening Opera Series, Has American Locale

Victor Herbert's Sparkling Piece, Laid in New Orleans, Introduces New Principals and Chorus Tomorrow Evening.

AN operetta with American characters in part and with an American locale—the New Orleans of the eighteenth century—is "Naughty Marietta," by Victor Herbert and Rida Johnson Young, with which the Municipal Theater Association will open its fifth season tomorrow evening at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park. This work has been presented twice in St. Louis, but not previously in the summer opera repertory. Emma Trentini starred in it at the Olympic in 1911, and Roger Gray's stock company undertook it at the Pershing Theater during the week of Feb. 14, 1921.

Louisiana, at the time of the story, was an appanage of the French crown, and the King from time to time sent over shiploads of girls, each with her dowry in a casket, to provide wives for the pioneers. With one cargo comes a mischievous, tantalizing and madcap Italian Contessa, Marietta d'Altena, who has run away from a French convent to escape marriage with an aged suitor. She is aided by Capt. Richard Warrington, a chivalrous Kentuckian, with the usual romantic result; but not before she has masqueraded as a boy, served as a puppeteer in the marionette show and come within an ace of marrying Etienne Grandet, French villain of the piece.

The comedy parts are those of Lizette, homeliest of the casket girls and Silas Slick, Capt. Warrington's man and a pushing Yankee, who is seized upon by Lizette when she fails to find anyone else available as a husband. Miss Flavia Arcaro will make her debut with this organization in the part of Lizette, and Frank Moulan will portray Silas Slick.

Dorthy Maynard in Title Role.

OF the three prima donnas engaged for the present season, Miss Dorthy Maynard has been chosen for the role of Marietta. Other parts have been assigned as follows: Capt. Warrington, Craig Cambell; Lieut.-Gov. Grandet, Detmar Poppen; his son, Etienne, Thomas Conkey; Sir Harry Blake, an adventurer, Roland Woodruff. Rudolfo, manager of the marionette theater, William McCarthy; and Florenzo, secretary of the Lieutenant-Governor, Fred Palmer, the new stage manager of the troupe. Four members of the St. Louis Chorus will have minor parts. As Adah, a quadron, Miss Helen Moore falls heir to the most pretentious song of the score, "'Neath the Southern Moon." The parts of Nanette, Graziella and a night watchman have been given to Miss Elva Magnus, Miss Geraldine de Rose and Ralph Boarding.

Among the more prominent musical numbers are "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "Taisez, Vous," "Naughty Marietta," "It Never Can Be Love," "If It Were Anybody Else But Me," "'Neath the Southern Moon," "Zing, Zing," "The Dream Melody," "The Loves of New Orleans," "Live for Today," "I'am Falling in Love With Someone" and "All About Me."

In addition to Miss Arcaro, these performers will make their first appearances tomorrow night as members of the summer opera personnel: Miss Maynard and Messrs. Conkey, Poppen, Woodruff and Palmer. As ingenue prima donna, Miss Maynard was cast as Marietta. The other sopranos, Miss Blanche Duffield and Miss Helena Morrill, will be heard later in the season in roles adapted to their types.

Opportunities for New Chorus.

THE score promises much opportunity for the 1923 chorus of 95 St. Louis singers, chosen from a total of 270 aspirants who completed the course of the Chorus Training School, which began in January under the direction of William A. Parson. Charles Previn is musical director, and Frank Rainger is general stage director, both having been retained from last year's staff.

There will be an orchestra of 50, of whom 48 were members of the Symphony Orchestra last year or in previous seasons. Michel Gusikoff will be concertmaster, and H. Max Steindel leader of the 'cello section. Several leaders of choirs in the Symphony Orchestra will have similar positions in the opera orchestra, including Hugo Olk, John A. Kiburz, Pellegrino Lecce and Oscar Hallbach. Guido Vogel engaged the orchestra.

Each work this season, except the concluding one, will run for seven performances, instead of six as heretofore, and the season will extend 10 weeks instead of the previous maximum of eight. Rehearsals began early this month, so that the company has virtually completed its preparations for the first three works of the list.

More than $20,000, it is announced, has been spent since last summer in improving the physical plant. The innovations include the installation of 1800 new permanent seats, a new and complete stage for rehearsal purposes, a rearrangement of the aisles, with new concrete walks, new lighting and scenic equipment, and additional dressing rooms.

"Wang" Promised Next Week.

NEXT week's offering will be a comedy operetta, "Wang," with music by Woolson Morse and book by J. Cheever Goodwin. It will be followed in turn by "The Fencing Master," by Reginald de Koven and Harry B. Smith; "The Prince of Pilsen," by Gustav Luders and Frank Pixley; "The Bat," ("Die Fledermaus") by Johann Strauss; "Sweethearts," by Victor Herbert, Harry B. Smith, Fred de Gressac and Robert B. Smith; "The Gypsy Baron, by Johann Strauss and J. Schnitzer; "The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar, Victor Leon and Leo Stein; "Gypsy Love," by Franz Lehar and Willner and Bodancky; and "The Spring Maid," by Heinrich Reinhardt, and Harry B. and Robert B. Smith. Of the entire list, only two works have ever before been given at the Municipal Theater. These are "Sweethearts" and "The Springmaid," both of which were presented last season.

The following are the officers of the Municipal Theater Association: Mayor Henry W. Kiel, president; G. A. Buder, first vice president; Morton May, second vice president; Nelson Cunliff, third vice president; Frank Mayfield, treasurer; and Miss Sarah Wolf, secretary. The management is vested in an Executive Productions Committee, of which Cunliff is chairman. The members are Max Koenigsberg, G. A. Buder, David R. Calhoun, Joseph Gillman Miller, Fred W. Pape, H. J. Pettengill, Otto E. Rugg and Arthur Siegel. David E. Russell continues as general manager, a position he has held since the beginning of the Municipal opera in 1919.

As in previous years, the Park Department will operate busses from the De Baliviere avenue and Forest Park Highlands entrances to Forest Park.

The second of the series of Mack Sennett all-star comedy attractions for Pathe release, under the title of "Skylarking," in which Harry Gribbon, Alberts Vaughn, Lila Leslie, Kewpie Morgan and those two very clever little children, Josephine Adair and Jackie Lucas, appear, has been completed.

Act "Six-Cylinder Love" for First Time Here

THE Woodward Players, this week at the Empress, are making their first production of a play new to the St. Louis stage. It is William Anthony McGuire's comedy, "Six-Cylinder Love," which was presented in August, 1921, at the Sam H. Harris Theater in New York. The cast was headed by Ernest Truex and June Walker. The comedy was one of the successes of that season, but its travels did not chance to bring it to this city, although it was scheduled for the American last season.

The play tells, partly in farce and partly in seriousness, of the way to disaster along which the motor car may lead those who cannot afford this modern luxury. There is a youthful suburban couple, happy and prosperous on the husband's small income, until they are lured into the purchase of an automobile. Promptly they are beset by the spongers of the village and expenses climb until the husband is on the verge of ruin and prosecution. Naturally, there is a happy ending.

Hazel Whitmore and Kernan Cripps will play the harrassed husband and wife, and other parts will be taken by Caroline Morrison, J. Raymond Brown, Laura Lovett Eleanor Zell, Virginia Springer, Bobby Reed, Maurice Franklin, Sherold Page, Edward Schilling, Mack Linn and George Dayton.

THE Columbia's list for the first part of the week includes Larry Larkins and assistants, in a piano act; the Big City Four, a male quartet composed of Fred Hover, Malcolm Hicks, Addison Young and Walter McPherson; Hal Chamberlain and Vivian Earle, in "His First Lesson," a comedy skit; Gordon and Spain, in "As Old As He Feels," a comedy; and Sylvia Mora and the Reckless Duo. The film feature is "Youthful Cheaters," with Glenn Hunter. The bill beginning Thursday includes Gladys Delmar and her syncopated sextet; McCormick and Winehill, comedians and songsters; and DuBall and McKenzie, dancers. The picture will be "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," based on Riley's poem. "Haunted Valley," with Ruth Roland, will be shown all week.

The Grand Opera House announcement comprises the Nine Daffydills, comedians and vocalists; Hap Farnell and Florence, in humor and song; Billy Miller, in his own sketch, "The Sign Post"; Frank Farron, dealer in laughs; the Chandon Trio, aerialists; John and Nellie Olms, in "Watch Wizards"; Berg and English, impersonators; the Stuart Sisters, and Rodero and Brown.

Edmund Kean Hero of New Comedy in London

LONDON, May 26.

IN writing his play on Edmund Kean, entitled "Ned Kean of Old Drury," recently produced at the Drury Lane Theater, Arthur Shirley contrived to be less colossally absurd than was the elder Dumas in "Kean, ou Desordre et Genie." Dúmas pictured Kean as the most cabotinous of mummers, as a Don Juan to whom half the fair dames of the British aristocracy had fallen victims, and as a great democrat who upbraided the Prince Regent to his face.

Shirley, says the Times, had the advantage of presenting Kean in the early stages of his career, before success had spoiled him. His Kean is a model of the domestic virtues, a faithful husband and fond father, whose worst vice (before he takes a drink) is the persistent habit—in the commonest affairs of life, at the frugal supper table, at deathbeds, on arrest by the Sheriff's officer, in fact, always—of Shakspearean quotation.

Indeed, Kean seems to have no prose, no vocabulary of his own; virtually every word he utters is out of Shakspeare. When he is sober he is fluently Shakspearean; when he is drunk he is torrentially and incoherently Shakspearean. He deluges the roadside rustics with Shakspeare. He spurns his pothouse companions with Shakspeare. He gets gloriously drunk at the Bull Inn, and hiccups Shakspeare.

And then we have his triumphant first appearance at Drury Lane on Jan. 26, 1814, as Shylock. The directors in a body, all the actors and apparently most of the audience pursue him to his lodgings. Lord Byron and Mrs. Garrick both make congratulatory speeches. The one person who really ought to have been there, and of course is not, was William Hazlitt. The success of Kean on his first night owes more, after Kean himself, to Hazlitt than to anybody else.

Byron in Two Plays.

BUT then Hazlitt was only a dramatic critic, who would probably be hissed if he appeared—for earlier in the play a sarcastic allusion to the dramatic critics of the time had been received by the audience with a yell of approval, which struck us as positively vicious. Nevertheless, there was one William Hazlitt, and he did make Kean's reputation—and they are so ungrateful as to leave him out of the crowd who throng Drury Lane stage. H. A. Saintsbury plays Kean with immense gusto (Hazlitt's pet word, by the way), and with such remarkable agility that you think he must, like Kean himself, at some time or other, have played Harlequin.

Lord Byron is also a character in Ernst Toller's "The Machine-Wreckers," which has just been produced in English by the State Society. Byron made his maiden speech in the House of Lords in opposition to the framework bill, which, in 1812, made frame-wrecking a capital offense. This measure was directed at the Nottingham stock-weavers, who had broken out into riot.

"My motive for opposing the bill," wrote Byron, "is founded on its palpable injustice and its certain inefficiency. I have seen the state of these miserable men, and it is a disgrace to a civilized country. Their excesses may be condemned, but cannot be subject of wonder." So, in the play, which deals with the Nottingham strike, Byron's speech is turned unharmed into blank verse.

Virginia Valli, in "The Shock"—Rivoli

On Wednesday, May 9, the Pickford-Fairbanks studio sweltered under a temperature of 104, according to the exacting Holosteric thermometer and barometer. Those members of the studio organization who really never knew before that these fine instruments are part of the equipment, kept up a pilgrimage to the domicile which houses them—a specially prepared Weather Bureau encasement located near Douglas Fairbanks' quarters. The doubting ones wanted to see for themselves—and there it was, 104 in the shade, from 11 a. m. until the last reading at 4 p. m.

Added to the list of stories and plays to be produced during the coming year by Preferred Pictures, is "Faint Perfume," Zona Gale's novel. A stage version of "Faint Perfume" will be presented in New York next winter.

"The Tiger's Claw" "Masters of Men" "Brass" On View

"The Innocent Cheat" and Lon Chaney in "The Shock" Are Other Features—Sascha Jacobsen, Violinist, on Missouri Program.

At the Missouri this week the Paramount picture, "The Tiger's Claw," with Jack Holt and Eva Novak, takes the lead as the screen feature, while Sascha Jacobsen, noted violinist, in person, is the main attraction on the musical bill.

"The Tiger's Claw" has mysterious India as background for its thrills. Into a picturesque maelstrom of jungles and intrigue the story has been woven. A man-to-beast battle with a Bengal tiger; a leap on horseback, over a deep gulch 15 feet wide; a battle with a gang of Hindus; near assassination at the hand of the Thugees, ruffians masquerading under the cloak of religion; a fight for life in the waters of the flood from a dynamited dam, featured in the action, which indicates a picture of real excitement.

Aileen Pringle and Eva Novak have the leading feminine roles.

Sascha Jacobsen, violinist, has appeared in all of the leading American and Canadian cities.

Larry Semon presents his latest, "A Midnight Cabaret." George Givot and Art Gillham, singers, are also on the bill.

The picturization of Charles G. Norris' widely read novel, "Brass," is the current offering at the Grand Central, Lyric Skydome, West End Lyric and Capitol theaters. The cast includes Monte Blue, Marie Prevost, Miss Dupont, Irene Rich, Harry T. Myers, Pat O'Malley, Frank Keenan, Helen Ferguson, Ethel Grey Terry, Cyril Chadwick and Margaret Seldon.

An added attraction at all four theaters will be "Extra, Extra," a new comedy featuring Lloyd "Ham" Hamilton. An exclusive offering at the Grand Central will be the appearance of Miss Virginia Johnson, soprano, who comes from the Chicago theater.

"Brass" deals with marriage and divorce and derives its title from the thought, "a marriage that glitters like gold often ends in a miserable failure—brass."

The text of Norris' novel has been altered in several instances in order to satisfy the picture enthusiasts' hunger for happy endings. This change was approved and encouraged by the author, who was broad-minded enough to grant the producers the privilege of having the hero and principal character remarry after his divorce in order to provide a home for the child.

Alice Brady in "Missing Millions" and a Buster Keaton revival are to be shown at the Lyric Skydome and West End Lyric the last half of the week.

The Liberty has a double bill, with "The Innocent Cheat," a Ben Wilson production, and William Farnum in "If I Were King," a re-issue. Special attention has been given to the music for the week.

"The Innocent Cheat" deals with an unhappy marriage and the complications which it causes. Its principal topic is mother love.

William Farnum, in "If I Were King," is supported by a notable cast.

"Masters of Men," with Earle Williams, Cullen Landis, Wanda Hawley and Alice Calhoun, is the feature picture at the Delmonte. Buster Keaton is to be seen in another revival of one of his old comedies, and West and Wyse, singers, have been held over for another week.

In "Masters of Men," Dick Halpin is falsely accused of theft by the brother of the girl he loves. Rather than humiliate the girl, he accepts the blame, runs away and joins the United States Navy. Life on board a Yankee man of war is portrayed. His immediate superior officer, Lieut. Breen, and Dick are shanghaied and sold to the brutal master of the Mary Earl, a sailing ship. There they are driven into the forecastle and endure the cruelty of big fisted mates. They escape and rejoin their ships at the time Admiral Sampson's fleet is lying outside of Santiago harbor waiting for the Spanish fleet to come out. Dick's heroism gives warning that Admiral Cervera had given orders to sail. The misunderstandings between the two youths and the two old-fashioned girls "they left behind" are straightened out, and the story ends happily.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

Tada Styka, Polish artist, has just finished a painting of Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star. As Miss Davies was hard at work on "Little Old New York" at the time the portrait was made she had to pose on Sundays and at odd hours which she could snatch from the studio.

Following the example set by his friends, Park Benjamin II and Craig Biddle Jr., Amos Tuck French Jr. has gone into motion pictures. Mr. French, of the well-known family of that name of Newport and New York, made his debut as a film actor this week in "Under the Red Robe," the screen version of Stanley Weyman's famous story.

For the first time in the history of the Japanese Empire a motion picture has been shown in Tokio at the Imperial Theater, owned by the royal family and recognized as the most famous playhouse in the Orient.

The picture was "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," and represents the introduction of this famous film to the people in the Land of the Rising Sun.

Preferred Pictures have purchased for production Frederick Orin Bartlett's novel, "The Triflers."

Golfers and nongolfers will be interested in the announcement of the Educational Film Exchange, Inc., that they will release in the near future a sport special, "Golf, as played by Gene Sarazen." This picture will show the open champion of the United States as he illustrates every phase of his mastery of the game.

B. P. Schulberg has closed negotiations on the west coast with Douglas Fairbanks for the purchase of the screen rights to Owen Wister's great American classic, "The Virginian." This spectacular romance of the plains will be produced on Preferred Pictures' program of famous books and plays. "The Virginian" is one of the most widely read stories ever published in the United States as well as an eminently successful stage play.

Robert W. Service's novel of Monte Carlo, "Poisoned Paradise," has been purchased for filming by Preferred Pictures. In this book Service has strikingly set forth his impression of the famous resort. He has succeeded in creating a portrait of this picturesque locality as vivid in detail as his stories of the Yukon. B. P. Schulberg will produce "Poisoned Paradise" as a Preferred Picture to be released next season by the Al Lichtman Corporation.

"Barbara Winslow, Rebel," by Elizabeth Ellis, an English author, has just been purchased by Joseph M. Schenck for Constance Talmadge. This is the second novel by an English author which Schenck has bought within the last few months, the other being "Ashes of Vengeance," by H. B. Somerville, a romance of the period of Charles IX, for Norma Talmadge.

Andree Lafayette is proving a revelation in the screen version of "Trilby," according to word received from Richard Walton Tully, who is producing the picture in California. "She is getting better and better every day," he says in a wire to First National. Some of the biggest interior scenes with Svengali (Arthur Edmund Carew) and Trilby have already been taken.

In line with its usual custom, the Post-Dispatch yesterday made its annual contribution to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. The amount of the donation this year, as for several years past, was $200, and it was made early, to allow the work of providing ice for tenement babies to proceed without delay.

Twenty-six other cash contributions were made during the week. Dr. Willard Bartlett write: "I have great confidence in anything the Post-Dispatch League undertakes to do, and am very glad to have the privilege of helping in such a worthy cause. Inclosed find check." Another friend sent aid and said: "My mother was a poor washwoman, unable to buy milk and ice for me when I was a baby. I have great sympathy for all babies."

Robert Wood Mcgilaway of 6145 Bartmer avenue, sent his contribution accompanied by a note in which he asked to be remembered as an old friend of the babies.

"Nanook of the North," the story of the Arctics, is now being shown at the Pershing Theater, Delmar and Hamilton, the engagement having begun last evening. The picture is offered at regular prices and an orchestra under the direction of Sam Levin provides the music. Half of the outside ticket sale and 25 per cent of the gross box office receipts will be donated to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. The picture is being sponsored by members of the St. Louis Motion Picture Council.

"Nanook of the North" was made by Robert J. Flaherty, who got the idea of filming the northland after his trips with Sir William Mackenzie into the Hudson Bay district. Flaherty has been accredited with several discoveries in the northland, and the charting of the Belcher Islands in Hudson Bay.

During his 10 years he spent in the North, Flaherty lived with a small tribe of Eskimos on the upper coast of Hudson Bay and the extreme northern part of the Labrador. The story of the picture is not fiction, but a true representation of how the Eskimos live. The Eskimo is shown obtaining his food, building his house, caring for his children, fashioning his clothes and all the while collecting articles for exchange at the trading post in the spring.

Short film subjects also are included on the program at the Pershing.

A Delightful Surprise for former guests of the Windermere

When you come to Chicago this year for your vacation, you will find a new and larger hotel beside the Windermere which has been the summer home of so many southerners for years.

Windermere-East is simply a larger opportunity for the hospitality which has always distinguished the Windermere name. It means added luxury, newer accommodations, more room for more guests who wish to enjoy the advantages of the riding and walking, the motoring, and many other recreations, just at the doors of the Windermere, in Jackson Park.

Perhaps you may like to stay again at Windermere-West which is rich in pleasant reminiscences and as delightful as ever. But you may have friends who have never been to the Windermere—and they, perhaps, will be glad to know of the enlarged facilities for service offered by these two hotels. If you would like to know more about the two Windermeres, write to us for information and rates. We will gladly supply them.

MAN IS DISCOVERED IN PIT, HANDCUFFED AND UNCONSCIOUS

Tells of Being Kidnaped and Set Adrift in Boat After Bootleggers' Threats.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PETERSBURG, Va.—James R. Griffin, owner of a bathing resort near here, was found handcuffed in a gravel pit, unconscious and seriously ill. Later he told the police he was kidnaped, held for a week and then set adrift in a boat on the Appomattox River. The craft became beached near the gravel pit, he said, and he walked until he fell exhausted.

Before his disappearance Griffin had told the police that bootleggers whom he had forbidden to enter his resort had threatened him.

SPENCER SPEAKS AT SARBONNE

Missouri Senator Takes Part in Celebration Honoring Pasteur.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 26.—Pasteur's great work is being brought to the knowledge of everyone in France by 10 days of ceremonies with which the Government is observing the 100th anniversary of the birth of the noted scientist. President Millerand, all the Cabinet ministers and numerous prominent personages are giving most of their time to the scores of ceremonies that center about the official program.

The Americans were given the honor of beginning the celebration at their meeting at the Sorbonne last Tuesday, at which Ambassador Herrick and United States Senator Spencer of Missouri spoke.

Special performances are to be given in the Government theaters; many banquets, receptions and garden parties will be held, and millions of words in speeches will be delivered during the celebration. This public homage to Pasteur also is serving to aid a widespread campaign to assist in the maintenance of the scientific laboratories bearing his name.

BERLIN SUMMER OPERA SEASON

Productions to Be in 24 Theaters and Amusement Parks.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 26.—Berlin will have a season of summer opera in 24 theaters and amusement parks to the great delight of the singers and chorus folks. The managers are bidding keenly for the services of capable artists for the leading parts.

"The Girl With the Monocle" and "The Woman From Olympus" are typical titles. In order to be abreast with current events, however, the celebrities are also at work on an opera based on the discovery of King Tutenkhaman's tomb by the late Earl of Carnarvon. The setting of this piece will be the Valley of Kings, and its name is to be "Agri." The plot will endeavor to bridge the gap between the old and the new Egypt.

WOMAN TOLD HER WEDDING WAS FAKE AFTER 17 YEARS

Seeks to Divorce Man, Who Married Her Legally on Confessing Deception.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich.—Charging that after living with William Hoffman for 17 years she discovered her wedding was a mock ceremony and not legally binding, Mrs. Sarah Hoffman, mother of seven children, has filed suit for divorce in Circuit Court. Her declaration states that Sept. 15, 1902, she participated in what she believed to be a marriage ceremony, and did not learn she was not a lawful wife until 1919, when Hoffman confessed he had deceived her.

They were legally married a month later, the declaration states, and separated only recently. Mrs. Hoffman charges her husband with cruelty and nonsupport, and alleges he refused to buy milk for their children and taught his sons to shake dice.

MOTORIST BEHIND THE TIMES

Former Kaiser's Exclusive Arch Now for Street Cleaners Only.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 26.—Inasmuch as things monarchical are now rather passe in Germany, a matorist the other day tried to drive his car through the middle arch of the famous Brandenburger Tor, a privilege which formerly was reserved exclusively for the Kaiser. A policeman abruptly halted the automobile and asked the surprised driver for his name, address and license number, at the same time informing the man at the wheel that he was a law-breaker. "But," protested the chauffeur, "I thought all that was a thing of the past. We have a republic now."

The patrolman looked up from his notebook long enough to remark that the latter part of the protest was certainly correct; but he asked the motorist what he meant by his reference to the past. "Oh, the Kaiser and all that," explained the driver. The policeman smiled. "You're a little behind the times," he replied. "The Kaiser used to be the only one who could enter here; now the middle arch is reserved for street cleaners." He added, however, that the reichswehr and firemen must also be so privileged, but that only in cases of dire necessity could a private citizen use the middle way.

6-Day Dancing Contest in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 26.—France quickly withdrew from the race for supremacy in long-distance continuous dancing when American records began to run about 100 hours. Paris has just completed its first sixday dancing contest, conducted "a la Americaine," as the French term relay races. A dozen teams, each of two couples, toddled throughout all the past week. The dancers had trainers and there were short "sprints" every six hours. Points were given by the judges for freshness and correct dancing during these five-minute spurts, the points at the end of the contest determining the winners.

Mary Garden Will Sing Here in Concert

HAVING appeared here only in opera, Miss Mary Garden will give her first St. Louis concert, it is announced, at the Coliseum on the evening of Nov. 30, for the benefit of the Catherine Springer Building Fund. Miss Garden, one of the foremost singing actresses of the day, is the only woman who ever held the post of manager of a major operatic company. She was for one year director of the Chicago Opera Association.

The Catherine Springer Home is a hotel for self-supporting women at Pine and Spring avenues, and the proceeds of the concert are expected to pay off part of the mortgage on the building. The officers are: Mrs. A. F. Hazeltine, president; Mrs. C. C. Rainwater, honorary vice president; Mrs. John S. Payne, first vice president; Miss Mary Walker, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Rodeman, recording secretary; Mrs. George Taylor, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Powell Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Ross Bowles, assistant treasurer; and Miss Alice Litton, treasurer of the contingency fund.

The Choral Club of Yeatman High School will present a musical version of the fairy tale about Cinderella Friday evening at the school auditorium, under the direction of Miss Eugenie Dussuchal. In the cast will be Alice Crusius, Waldo Trampe, Adam Rosenthal, Elba Huetteman, Grace Schonhorst, Louise Magoon, Harvey Brennan, Lawrence Meisel and Georgia Buseman. Miss Isabelle Sommers will be at the piano.

Mel-Harmonic Elects Officers.

THE Mel-Harmonic Club closed its season last Saturday with a program and the election of the following officers: Mrs. Raymond A. Kaltwasser, president; Carrol Kohner, vice president; Miss Melva Carson, secretary; Miss Ethel Z. Hugunin, treasurer; Miss Anna K. Sorkin, librarian; Harry C. Krone, auditor; and Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, musical director.

A violin recital by pupils of Arno Waechtler was given Friday night at the Wednesday Club Auditorium, the opening number being a performance of Schubert's "Marche Militaire" by an orchestra of 38 youthful fiddlers. The Musicians' Fund of America, of which Mrs. Lee Schweiger is founder and president, held its last board meeting of the year Wednesday at Hotel Claridge. Mrs. Schweiger will address the convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs, next month at Asheville.

Beauty Expert Gives Simple Way to Keep the Face Lovely and Cheeks Rosy.

The impression you make at the party, dance or when you meet new acquaintances depends almost entirely on your complexion. Most any fault is overcome by a clear, rosy, pleasing and overwhelming complexion. Therefore follow this advice, and benefit by the experience of thousands of girls and women who are doing it.

First, clean your skin thoroughly by using Black and White Cleansing Cream. When all the powder and accumulated dirt has been rubbed out, wring out a towel in water as hot as your hands can stand. Put this over the face and let it steam for a few seconds. Repeat this several times. Then rub into the skin a little Cold Cream with a circular motion of the finger tips. Wipe off that which is not quickly absorbed by the pores and rinse the face with cold water. This will close the pores, keep in all the oils which the Cold Cream supplies to the skin, and starts the circulation in your face which brings out the roses in your cheeks.

Makes Old Feel Young

In Many Cases—Remarkable French Discovery—ARIUM, Often Gives Amazingly Increased Vital Power and Nerve Force to Run-Down, Weak, Aging Men and Women in Two Weeks Time

At last French Science has succeeded in bringing to the aid of every man and woman who is approaching middle age, the remarkable energy-giving, vigor-producing power of Nature's most marvelous health-building element in the harmless tablet form known to doctors, hospitals and druggists as ARIUM.

Physicians consulted are of the opinion that ARIUM may mean to millions the banishing of disease and signs of old age—the re-building of sturdy vigorous health and the prolonging of useful activity for many, many years. Certain it is, that although only recently introduced to the American public, ARIUM has literally taken the country by storm. People who have been weak, anaemic, nervous and ailing for years are amazed at the way ARIUM quickly helps to make rich, red blood, increase energy and strengthen the nerves. So definite is the action of ARIUM that it goes right to work the minute it enters the body and sets up healthy functioning of the blood, glands and organs almost immediately. Yet it is so harmless that even a child may take ARIUM with perfect safety.

So, if you long for the return of youthful force, freedom from aches, pains and disease—if you want to know the joy of a new and glorious energy surging through your veins, you owe it to yourself to try ARIUM for two weeks and watch results. You should be astonished at your quick return to splendid physical fitness and fine youthful activity. Success guaranteed or the small deposit you make for the trial will be promptly refunded. Your local druggists state that they now have a sufficient supply of ARIUM on hand to meet immediate demands.

"Aren't We All?" A Gay Play for Cyril Maude

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.

IT is curious that Cyril Maude should have chosen to open his American season with "If Winter Comes," when he had available as good a play as "Aren't We All?" which opened Monday night at the Gaiety. Not only is Frederick Lonsdale's light comedy first-class foolery, but it affords Mr. Maude an opportunity to appear at his best. In taking off years to be Mark Sabre, he seemed to be a little older than his custom. By putting them on he vivified the part of Lord Grenham into a humor as sprightly as that which animated "Grumpy."

Possibly one reservation should be made. This might be a better play if the author, in addition to his many other merits, had happened to be a Frenchman. It suffers, though only slightly, from the fact that it respects the Anglo-Saxon tradition holding both hero and heroine in comedy to the strictest accountability of virtue. Once a heroine steps over the line she becomes either a villainess or a tragedienne.

For the purpose of the play, it is necessary that Willie and his wife Margot shall have philandered, he at home and she in Egypt. The best the playwright can do is to allow to each one illicit kiss. It is hard to accept the fact that Margot remains estranged from her husband throughout a period of two weeks simply because she caught him kissing the other woman at the end of a sentimental song. Willie makes an unwarranted to-do over the fact that his wife has kissed a young man under an Egyptian moon to a violin accompaniment.

All this will hardly serve to bother those playgoers who are trained in the symbols of polite comedy. No matter how grave and extreme the indiscretion, it is called a kiss. Once that fact is understood, "Aren't We All?" may be accepted as one of the most agreeable light comedies now to be seen in New York.

Mr. Maude keeps the fun on its toes, and is backed up by a capable company. Mabel Terry-Lewis gives a capital performance, and Leslie Howard manages diffidence a little better than any player one recalls having seen on the stage. Others in the case include Marguerite St. John, Roberta Beatty, Geoffrey Millar and Alma Tell.

"Not So Fast" and "Cold Feet."

A COMEDY called "Not So Fast," by Conrad Westervelt, came to the Morosco Theater Tuesday night. The title described it with a degree of accuracy. It dragged. It is all about a wise-cracking Southern gentleman who steps in to save the family fortune from a city slicker, who wants to have $200,000 of the Standish estate invested in dubious Mexican mines. Taylor Holmes played the Southerner in question. He was favored with one of the best padded entrances of the year; virtually the entire cast assured themselves and the audience that he was just too funny for words. When Mr. Holmes finally appeared with a peculiarly bad Southern accent and a lot of "Ah'll be darned" lines, the result was slightly discouraging.

For two acts the guardian from Kentucky procrastinates while his investigator is in Mexico looking into the properties. Meanwhile, various people fall in love. Another act was necessary to straighten it all out. The play presents, in Theodore Westman, the first college freshman of the year who really looks like a freshman. Ann Davis does well as a young girl "who tries hard not to flap, but can't help it." Marian Mears, as the heroine, has her moments.

"Cold Feet," which opened at the Fulton Monday night, has business revolving about a bottle of chloral and a young doctor's mistake in administering a potion to a bride about 15 minutes after the wedding ceremony. In order to cover up the mistake, the medico drugs half the household and a detective into the bargain. Glenn Anders, in this part, contrives to be as funny as possible with distinctly second-rate material. May Vokes plays a comedy maid with the broadest possible touch. Others in the cast simply address the audience and ignore the play, apparently because of a well justified

That Itching Skin Needs SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

"Adrienne," New Musical Comedy, With Vivian Segal, Opens Tomorrow Evening.

WHAT with impending hot weather and the unsettled state things theatrical, owing to Equity's defiance of the Producing Managers' Association, most of the managers are sitting tight. Only one new production is scheduled for next week. This is "Adrienne," a musical comedy by Albert von Tilser and Al Seymour Brown, which is to be presented Monday night at the George M. Cohan Theater. In the cast will be Vivian Segal, Billy Van, Richard Carle, Harry Fender and many others.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so I purchased more, and after using one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Mullaney, 4717 Throop St., Chicago, Ill., July 14, 1922.

Too Much Gas---Couldn't Work

Had to Quit Many Jobs Account Pain in Side

"After taking the second dose of Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) the pain in my side has gone. The heavy feeling (gas) in my bowels is entirely gone and I go to bed and get a good night's sleep now. Can do almost any kind of work now." (Signed) J. C. Tuttle.

Intestinal Antiseptic

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, Enderle Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

also expected to pay their long-deferred visit to America in the fall.

Martha Bryan Allen, who is two years out of dramatic school, has been engaged as a member of the Theater Guild's regular company. She played the feminine lead in the touring company of "He Who Gets Slapped."

Hippodrome Deal Off.

When "The Dice of the Gods" is sent on tour, Mrs. Fiske's role of an opium addict will be given to Jaunita Hansen, a screen actress, who herself is said to have been cured of drug addiction • • • Pauline Fredrick's play, "The Guilty One," ended its career last Saturday night in Toronto • • • After all, Morris Gest will not lease the Hippodrome for Max Reinhardt's productions next fall, it is announced. The Impresario may have been alarmed by the rental demanded, $25,000 a year. Reinhardt himself refused to consider Madison Square Garden, so his productions may be seen at the Century Theater.

Prospects of a war between producers and actors over the closed shop issue are seen in an announcement printed in Equity, official organ of the Actors' Equity Association. The statement is headed, "This is so important it will be run in every issue," and reads: "Members are warned by the council not to sign contracts involving their services after June 1, 1924, without consulting headquarters."

On the opening night of "The Mountebank," the barking off stage of a dog supposed to be dead brought hilarity to a serious scene. At the premiere of "Zander the Great," a flivver balked during the prologue, when Miss Alice Brady tried to pull it out of a barn in which it was housed. By some quick-witted "ad libbing" Miss Brady saved the situation and brought a hand from the house. Later, when she fired a revolver at the villain, played by Jerome Patrick, the cotton wadding leaped out of the barrel on Patrick's neck and dropped down the back of his shirt, stinging him like a wasp. He was game, and didn't wince until he got off stage. Then, fully clothed, he jumped under a shower bath. • • • Mme. Tilla Durieux, a German actress, credited with having made Shaw popular in Germany, is to act several plays in English next season in New York.

Piles or Hemorrhoids Can Be Cured to Stay, and when I say cured I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D and not merely patched up for awhile, to return worse than before. If you will Call or Write me at once, I will give you FREE ADVICE of my mild, Guaranteed Cure that will convince you.

If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By taking my wonderful Treatment, you will enjoy more real comfort than you had ever thought this world holds for you. Just try it, and you will see I am telling you the truth.

Could you do a better act than to send this advertisement to some poor Sufferer of Piles? Thank you.

Piles Cured 12 Years Ago—Still Cured

R. 1, Belleville, Ill., May 16, 1911.

Dr. W. P. Henrich:

Dear Sir:—When I called on you for treatment last January at your office, I was suffering with Internal Piles which had unfitted me for business and made life more or less a burden. I felt that I was in such a condition that something radical had to be done, and instead of wasting any more time with patent medicines and regular physicians, decided that I would submit to the treatment of a good Rectal Specialist, which I understood you to be. I dreaded the treatment more than I can say and was most agreeably disappointed, finding it very mild and so effective that I improved from the very start.

Thanks to your skill and careful attention, I am today a well man without a trace of my former troubles. Your work for suffering humanity has proved a blessing to hundreds and I most gratefully indorse your method. No knife is used and the cure is perfect and permanent.

Yours very truly,
JOHN H. CLARK.

Bravo, Ye Benefactors!

Civilization will ever owe a debt of gratitude to thinking men.

Shakespeare, of literature; Millais, of painting; Beethoven, of music; these and others were masters of the arts.

Newton, discoverer of gravitation; Wright, of the flying machine; Bell, of the telephone (which Edison perfected); Marconi, of wireless transmission (the wonder of the age); these and others were the masters of science.

There is no limit to the capabilities of the human mind.

Canada's Chevalier D'Artagnan Passes On

DEATH OF COL. BOYLE BRINGS TO LIGHT HIS AMAZING EXPLOITS IN THE LATE WAR

His Knightly Deeds Recall the Feats of Valor of Dumas' Immortal Hero—How He Saved the Rumanian Treasury From the Bolsheviki, for Which He Was Decorated Personally by the Queen—How He Planned, and Would Have Carried Out but for Her Refusal, the Rescue of the Czar's Mother From Russia—How King Assigned Him to Stop Eloping Son, the Crown Prince——How Queen and Her Daughter, Princess Marie, Nursed Him When He Collapsed From One of His Adventures.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TORONTO, May 26.

"JOE" BOYLE, the Chevalier d'Artagnan of Canada, has passed on to the supreme adventure. He was not slain on the field of battle, like his famous prototype, just as he received a casket containing the baton of a Field Marshal. But his death was due none the less to the fatigues and dangers of one of the most romantic careers of our time—a service in which he won the confidence of Kings, had a Queen and a Princess for nurses when he was ill, and was showered with honors by the foremost governments of Europe.

The sun has set upon the swashbuckling swordsmen of the court of Louis XIII, upon the gentlemen braves in ruffles and gold-embroidered baldries. But the same cool and yet fiery audacity, the love of hairbreadth escapes for their own sake, may still throb under khaki and tin hat. If d'Artagnan made his celebrated voyage to save the honor of a Queen, "Joe" Boyle rescued the national treasury of Rumania from the claws of the Bolsheviki. If the intrepid Gascon and his three friends of the Musketeers held at bay the entire army of Rochelle in the Bastion Saint-Gervais, it was Col. Boyle who organized a Death Battalion of Russian Amazons and saved Tarnapol from the Germans.

And if Queen Anne of France presented d'Artagnan with a diamond ring after he brought back the diamond studs from the Duke of Buckingham, Queen Marie of Rumania decorated the Canadian adventurer with the highest order of her country, that of the Crown and Star, and sent to his father a letter equally precious.

Letter From Queen Marie

"Your son," wrote Her Majesty in 1919, "came into my life when I and my country were sorely tried, and he set about helping me and my people with the complete unselfishness you probably know in him. At a time when Rumania was totally abandoned by her allies, because the situation was so desperate, your son did not forsake our cause; and since then at every emergency he has been faithfully at my side.

"Once he was very ill—a sort of stroke, after flying too often and too high. During his convalescence, my daughter and I looked after him for two months, so as to keep him very quiet; and make, to a certain degree, inaction supportable. I think you must be proud to have such a son."

PRINCESS MARIE

Of Rumania, who assisted her mother, the Queen, as nurse at the bedside of Col. Boyle when he was ill in the Rumanian capital.

The young cadet of Dumas's immortal romance left his native village of Tarbes, in Gascony, with a yellow Bearn pony, a sword, a quantity of advice from his father, a recipe from his mother, a letter to M. de Treville and eight crowns in his purse. This was the material armory with which d'Artagnan slashed his way to fame and fortune.

Joe Boyle and a companion had just 50 cents between them, in San Francisco, when the gold stampede to the Klondike began. He was in the Yukon, 47 years old and a millionaire, when the World War burst forth; and he entered the struggle as commander of a machine gun battery of 50 picked men. He emerged from the war with the rank of Colonel in the British Army and the Distinguished Service Order; with the Croix de Guerre, from France; the Order of Vladimir, with swords, from Russia; the Order of the Crown and Star, with swords, from Rumania; the Order of St. Stanislaus, second class, with swords; the Order of St. Anne, fourth class; and a sword inscribed, "For bravery."

He was born at Woodstock, Canada, the son of Charlie Boyle, whose name was known on every race track in America a quarter of a century ago. He owned a string of thoroughbreds with which he won many a purse, but he forbade his sons to go near the stables. They were destined for the professions; for Joe it was to be either law or the church. An older brother, Dave, made and lost a fortune on the ponies; and a well-known story concerning him shows how the blood of daring ran in the family.

There was a big house in Woodstock, the red brick structure and red roof of which were visible for miles; and Dave's mother had always admired it. The estate was called "The Pines," but has since been renamed "The Firs."

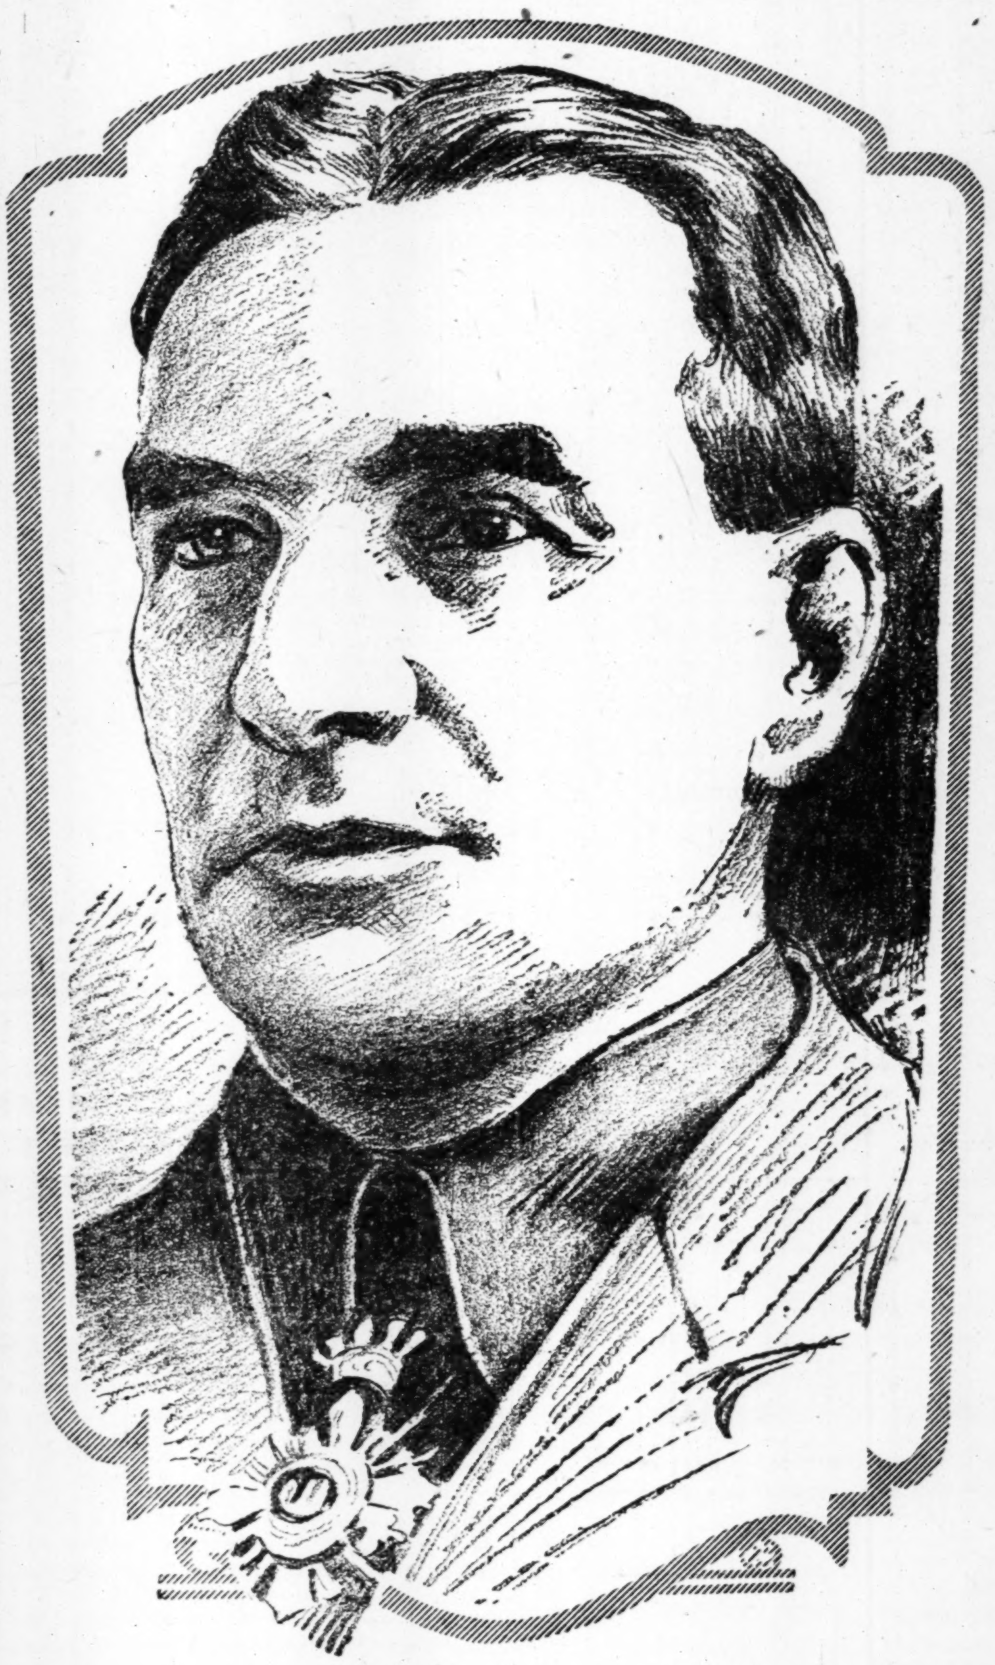
Dave had been losing steadily on the track and the stock market. He purchased a colt, and there were secret night runs to test its speed. Then came the great race on which Dave staked his last $5000. His pony won, at odds of eight to one. That night Dave telegraphed to his mother: "Destruction has won, and 'The Pines' is yours."

Joe was enrolled as a student in Woodstock College, but ran away to New York at the age of 17. He found the life of the city too dull with routine, and signed as a sailor on a British steamship. For four years he sailed the seven seas, and at the age of 21 was quartermaster on an English ship. It is related that the vessel, bound from the Island of St. Helena to Bombay, sprung a leak while rounding the Cape of Good Hope, and that Quartermaster Boyle, taking charge of the crew which manned the pumps, kept them at



COL. JOSEPH BOYLE,

Canada's Chevalier d'Artagnan, whose heroic career on the field of battle and in the service of Kings parallels the stirring deeds of Alexandre Dumas' swashbuckling braves of "The Three Mucketeers." He is shown wearing the Rumanian order of the Star and Crown conferred on him by the Queen.

work for 4000 miles, until the destination was reached.

Even the sea had palled by now, and Joe returned to New York. Heredity was strong in him, and he connected himself with his father's stables, incidentally studying law in a night school. A few disastrous experiences, however, convinced him that book-making was not his metier. So he signed on as trainer to Frank Slavin, a prize fighter.

They toured the country, finally reaching San Francisco, where they signed up for a fight. Joe's sister, Mrs. Laperrierre of Woodstock, who tells the story, relates that Slavin and her brother staked all they had on the battle. Slavin lost, and just then the rush for the Klondike began. Joe wrote to his sister: "We had 50 cents between us, but we got on the boat as happy and contented as if our fortunes were made."

Once when the Prince eloped, Col. Boyle was dispatched in pursuit of him and brought him back, thus avoiding a national scandal.

A year later a tall and gaunt man walked into Woodstock, with a team of huskies and an Indian guide. It was Joe Boyle. Things had not gone well in the Yukon, and a party of six had come out for supplies. They traversed the deadly Chilcoot Pass, and the cold and storms devoured the vitality of the little band. Joe Boyle carried his partner, known as "Swift Water Bill," on his back. Once they came to a river. Boyle was the only man with strength enough to cross the ford. One by one he carried his companions across on his shoulders. When they reached San Francisco, a banquet was given in his honor, and from then on he was known as "Captain" Boyle, or else as "Klondyke Joe."

QUEEN MARIE

Of Rumania, who decorated the Canadian warrior with the highest order of her country for his feat in rescuing the Rumanian national treasury from the hands of the Bolsheviki and, when he fell ill from hardships, helped to nurse him back to health again.

After obtaining valuable concessions from the Government at Ottawa, he returned to the Yukon, and in 15 years succeeded in amassing a fortune said to total $1,000,000. There the outbreak of the war found him. As has been related, he organized a "Yukon Battery," which, to his grief, was broken up among other units when it arrived overseas. But Boyle saw service at the front which brought him to the attention of the British Government as a man of daring, resource and executive ability.

So, when Russia began to weaken, Col. Boyle, as his rank had become, was sent to see what he could do to aid the army transport. One of his brief reports gives an inkling of his methods. "Assuming an authority I did not possess," he wrote, "and with the assistance of two young Russian officers, I got a Russian Death Battalion (women) to throw a cordon around the town of Tarnapol, reestablish patrols and restore some semblance of order." The railway lines were broken down, and the Germans were nearing. But they didn't get Tarnapol while Boyle was there.

In Bessarabia, the Russian Army was starving. Col. Boyle got trains to moving and brought flour to the soldiers. At one place he encountered an uncivil chairman of a Soldiers' Committee. "Were you sent here," he sneered, "because you were the best man on the Western front?" "Possibly," replied the Canadian, "and are you the best man on the Committee?" The Russian replied that he was. Boyle was as ready for physical combat as d'Artagnan himself, and instantly stripped for action, laying off cap, harness and tunic. The chairman's co-operation was no longer withheld.

He was still in Russia at the time of the Bolshevik coup and the armistice with Germany. Gen. Manieukowski was taken from prison and ordered to feed the army. "Send for Boyle," he is said to have remarked, and the story runs that in 48 hours the energetic Canadian had freight trains moving out of Moscow, while fighting continued in the streets.

National Hero in Rumania

He next turned up in Rumania, where he became something of a national hero. When Rumania was invaded by the Germans and Russians, the Government hastily dispatched

"I Am Happy, Contented," Says Heiress to Millions Who Wed Her Gardener

Daughter of Michigan Lumber King and Social Leader Lives in $40 Flat and Does Her Own Work

"Our Daughter Is Dead to Us; Never More Shall We See Her or Have Anything to Do With Her!" Exclaims the Proud Mrs. Avery, Her Mother, Who Calls It "Just Another Mathilde McCormick and Max Oser Affair, Though Our Daughter Is Old Enough to Know Better"—The Daughter, by the Way, Is 42, While Her Husband Is a Bit Younger.

Vicissitudes of Love Have Taken the Former Florence Avery From One of Detroit's Most Luxurious Mansions to Cramped Quarters in the Section Occupied Chiefly by Foreign Factory Workers—Her Husband Now Is a $40-a-Week Riveter, but His Bride Finds Her Greatest Delight in Filling Dinner Pail Every Morning.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
DETROIT, Mich, May 26.

OUT on the west side of Detroit where the foreign element of factory workers and steel mill hands huddle in dingy cottages near their places of employment is a smoke-darkened suburb known as River Rouge. And this dingy suburb, of all places in the world, is about the last in which one might expect to find the abode of heiresses, or indeed, any other persons who had ever known comforts of life beyond those afforded by the humble homes within the shadow of great smokestacks.

Yet River Rouge, painfully shy of most distinctions as it is, has this one. It has acquired as one of its most substantial residents the woman who until three weeks ago was heiress to all the millions and all the lands and mansions of the "lumber king," John W. Avery.

A visitor in River Rouge would scarcely suspect the presence of gentility, for if there is anything in the town that, aside from its smokiness, impresses one more than anything else it is the total lack of evidence of the presence of any but the most humble. Everything and everybody seem just as plebeian and as distinctly proletariat as everything and everybody else. If there is a trace of the cavalier in their blood, the men, sitting on their front porches in the evening, as often as not in their undershirts and smoking cob pipes of odorous antiquity, fail to exhibit sign of it, and the women, with a universal failing for chewing gum and boudoir caps for street wear, seem to represent only one stratum of society, as they gossip on the front steps, congregate in the market place or troop to a neighborhood picture show dragging two or three or more noisy children.

As for the places of residence, there is little to distinguish one dust-covered cottage from another except the number of swarthy and half-dressed youngsters playing in the street in front of it or its proximity to the biggest factory. And these marks are not good guide posts in River Rouge, for grimy children are likely to play in front of all cottages alike without discrimination as to their ownership and the smoke from the factories hangs so low and with such impartiality over the entire town that there is little to choose between them as to the most probable location for the home of an heiress.

Contented In Her Strange Surroundings

So in the general view of things there is not much to indicate outwardly that one of the little flats houses, in perfect contentment, a bride who for some 42 years of her life never knew what it was to stand over a kitchen stove, to scrub a floor or carry out a garbage pail or sweep the front sidewalk; who all her days had been accustomed to having her breakfast in bed instead of having to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning to cook her own and pack a husband's dinner pail in the bargain; who had servants even to dress her and who traveled in the Alps when she tired of the monotony of her multi-millionaire father's mansion or became bored with the most fashionable social festivities that the most fashionable set of Detroit has ever known. It might be hard to convince the casual visitor that River Rouge includes such a person in its feminine population, and if at all, then certainly not in contentment. But she is there. There can be no mistake about that. And the world has her word for it that she is contented.

Living in a $40 a month flat, which, after all, is somewhat better than the average in River Rouge, the former Florence Olcott Avery, now Mrs. Francis Barrigrand and an outcast by her own choice from the ultra-fashionable circles of the ultra-fashionable Averys, does her own housework and cramps her spending habits to fit the limitations of a family budget of $40 a week. She buys from the huckster's wagon with a regard for saving pennies that she had not been wont to exericse in the past and she carries home her purchases in a market basket and sets out the milk bottles at night just as do the other housewives of the suburb. And since she is doing these things by her own choice, when instead she might have been frolicking on the Riviera, basking in Swiss resorts or any other places frequented by the rich that attracted her fancy, it is in them that she finds contentment.

"Our Daughter Is Dead," Says Mother

If one calls about supper time at the modest three-room flat, its interior all aglow with the shine of "golden oak" furniture, one is likely to find the bride, in a neat calico apron, standing over the gas range frying apples or potatoes that sputter in an iron skillet, while nearby sits her husband in his shirt sleeves, smoking his pipe and resting from a day's toil in the steel mills. Sometimes he may be found listening to the phonograph next door. The Barrigrands haven't a phonograph yet. It is hard for ex-heiresses and their husbands to get a start just now with furniture as high as it is. Such luxuries as phonographs will have to come later.

The young husband is finding labor as a steel worker considerably harder than taking care of a rose garden on a millionaire's estate, too, but he is a philosophic person and isn't complaining, for after all, the change from the role of gardener to that of riveter was only one of numerous alterations that came about when John Avery's daughter became the wife of John Avery's gardener.

Detroit society, having recovered somewhat from the shock and astonishment it experienced when Florence changed her place of residence from Maple Road Farms to a River Rouge flat, is now trying to forget that there was any shock, but it still finds the event a topic for animated conversation and arguments usually develop such a defense for both aspects of the case that the result is indecisive. But within the aristocratic Avery family circle there is only one side of the case in the running when it comes to argument.

Boasting a name that has over a hundred years of history behind it and that has long had prestige in the social register, the Averys find accepting a gardener—even if he was their own gardener and a very good one at that—into the family as a son-in-law is quite too much to expect even of fond parents, especially when these fond parents are Averys. So since the marriage, which took place on April 28, they have become confirmed irreconcilables and have turned proud backs on the little flat out in River Rouge.

"Our daughter is dead," the mother declares. "It will be as if she was never a member of the family. She will not share in the property, nor will we ever recognize the man. We do not wish ever to see either of them again. She had everything that a girl could wish or ask for. Our home was one of the most beautiful in Detroit and its furnishings were the result of every artistic aid acquired at the expense of large sums of money. She had gardens, cars, servants, gowns, everything that money could buy. Her home life was most harmonious. She gave it all up. Now she must go her way."

With that sort of parental "blessing" to cast benignity over her new home, Florence Olcott Avery Barrigrand goes on frying apples and packing her new husband's dinner pail and singing at her work. Regardless of her mother's declaration that it was just "another Mathilde McCormick affair, only our daughter was old enough to know better," she insists that her love affair was pure romance and that, although she is six years older than her husband, she is happier in her three-room flat in the suburbs, bare as it is, than she ever was with all the rose terraces, servants and costly entertainments that good standing in the Avery household afforded.

Not a Single Regret, She Says

"We are more than happy," she asserts. "The publicity at first was ghastly. I raged and cried, but now I can see the humor of it. I am sorry that my parents feel as they do and that some of my friends' names have been dragged into it. Otherwise I haven't a regret and we will show the world that we can get along splendidly without the Avery millions."

And with that attitude the newlyweds are saving their pennies and going ahead with their plans to buy, some day, a farm in some secluded section of the East where they can have rose gardens and build rustic benches as they did for two years together back on the Avery estate before the secret of their romance was discovered.

Romancers and novelists have always had a habit of connecting moonlit rose gardens with the prosperity of Cupid's affairs. In this case apparently such romantic accessories to love-making functioned with customary effectiveness, and above and beyond that, proved that they cast their spell when one is past two score just as when one is less than half that age.

The spell that grew upon Florence Avery during those two years was so entrancing that six months of concerted effort on the part of her mother, with the aid of an unlimited purse, to break it, proved unavailing. A whirl of social gayeties and travel to faraway places couldn't make her forget the carefree association that had flourished in the wide fields and fragrant gardens of Maple Road Farms.

It was four years or more ago that Francis Barrigrand, a native of France, came to Detroit from a munitions factory in Canada and began his employment on John W. Avery's estate as gardener. Possessing a temperament that craved expression in mediums more artistic than a munitions factory afforded, he found supreme delight in his new occupation. In his youth he had intended to study art, hoping to gain fame like his brother, many of whose pictures now hang in Paris salons, but having left home at the age of 16 and come to America in the care of a priest, that opportunity was denied him. There was little choice in the matter of jobs. It all depended on what offered, without regard for artistic possibilities. Here, however, was a chance to do creative work. In the construction of trellises for honeysuckle vines and bowers for roses there was a measure of satisfaction not derived from making cartridges, and that was, at first, the reason why he clung to his job with such devotion.

Gardening Her Ruling Passion

At this juncture the heiress' interest in him began. From the time of her debut in Detroit society 20 years ago, Florence Avery had exhibited one ruling passion and that was for gardens and landscape designing. While she was popular in the social set and a participant in their gaieties, it was in her activities with the Michigan Garden Club that she took most keen delight and was most often heard of.

From time to time her engagement to some man or other was rumored, but the heiress let it be known that men were not in her line. As a girl she frequently declared that she would never marry. The rumors persisted, but there followed no wedding and Florence had reached the age of 39 or so with flower gardens still her hobby and chief interest in life. A short time before Barrigrand came to the estate she had taken a school course in landscape designing given in connection with the Garden Club's work, so, when her interest began to fall on the young Frenchman, her associates and parents thought it was simply a case of an eager student seeking the advice of an expert and dismissed any misgivings they may ever have had concerning its consequences. Since the heiress had reached the age of two score without falling in love and had turned down several opportunities to marry wealth or titles, the Avery parental mind couldn't conceive of importance attaching to her interest in a gardener. The idea was too preposterous.

So Florence's romance in its budding period had free growth and her friends in their exasperation now, are not censuring her so much because she had such an affair, but because she "got away with it" so long under their very noses.

For nearly two years the two were daily companions. They designed rosebeds, planned summer houses, built quaint sundials and nursed to full bloom ailing flowers. They tramped miles together through summer woods and autumn fields. Sunrise saw them running through the dew wet meadows and moonlight nights saw them strolling beneath the ramblers and wistaria. The gardener, at first timid, became bolder. He wooed openly and the maid listened without interference.

Told Her Mother Six Months Ago

Six months ago Florence confided the secret to her mother and then the storm began. The gardener was discharged with exceeding promptness and the social wheel set spinning at a dizzy speed to make Florence forget him. The mother took her daughter East and South for the winter. A fortune was spent on new clothes and every waking hour filled with parties, receptions and the things usually dear to the heart of a woman. Festivities were kept going at such a pace that by the middle of April Florence was quite exhausted and the mother, believing that the absence cure had been effective, returned to the palatial Maple Road estate and opened it formally for the season.

But the fight had been lost before it had begun. Two years of carefree association in the fields and woods could not be blotted out of the memory by six months of fatiguing entertainment. The spell of rose garden and moonlight was stronger than ever.

On the morning of April 29 Detroit society awoke to find the names of Florence Olcott Avery and Francis Barrigrand in the marriage license column and then learned at its leisure of the wedding that had taken place the day before at the residence of the Rev. William E. Maxon, pastor of Christ Church. The witnesses were Mrs. John Searles and Mrs. George T. Thrall, both society and club women who were friendly to the couple as a result of their activity in the Michigan Garden Club. The only honeymoon trip was that out to the dingy little suburb, River Rouge, where the bride donned her calico apron over her tailored suit and set about preparing supper.

And that, says Florence Avery, after a life of luxury, is true romance.

MRS. FLORENCE AVERY BARRIGRAND,

The bride, who is now an outcast from her wealthy family after renouncing her social position and spurning her father's millions through her marriage to a man who earns $40 a week as a riveter. After living a life of luxury, she declares, she finds real romance in doing her own housework and packing her husband's dinner pail like her humble neighbors.

View from the garden of the Avery home at Maple Road Farms, which Florence Avery deserted for a three-room flat in River Rouge, a smoky suburb of Detroit, inhabited chiefly by foreign factory workers. It was in the work of beautifying this estate that the heiress came into an association with her father's gardener, which resulted in their unconventional romance.

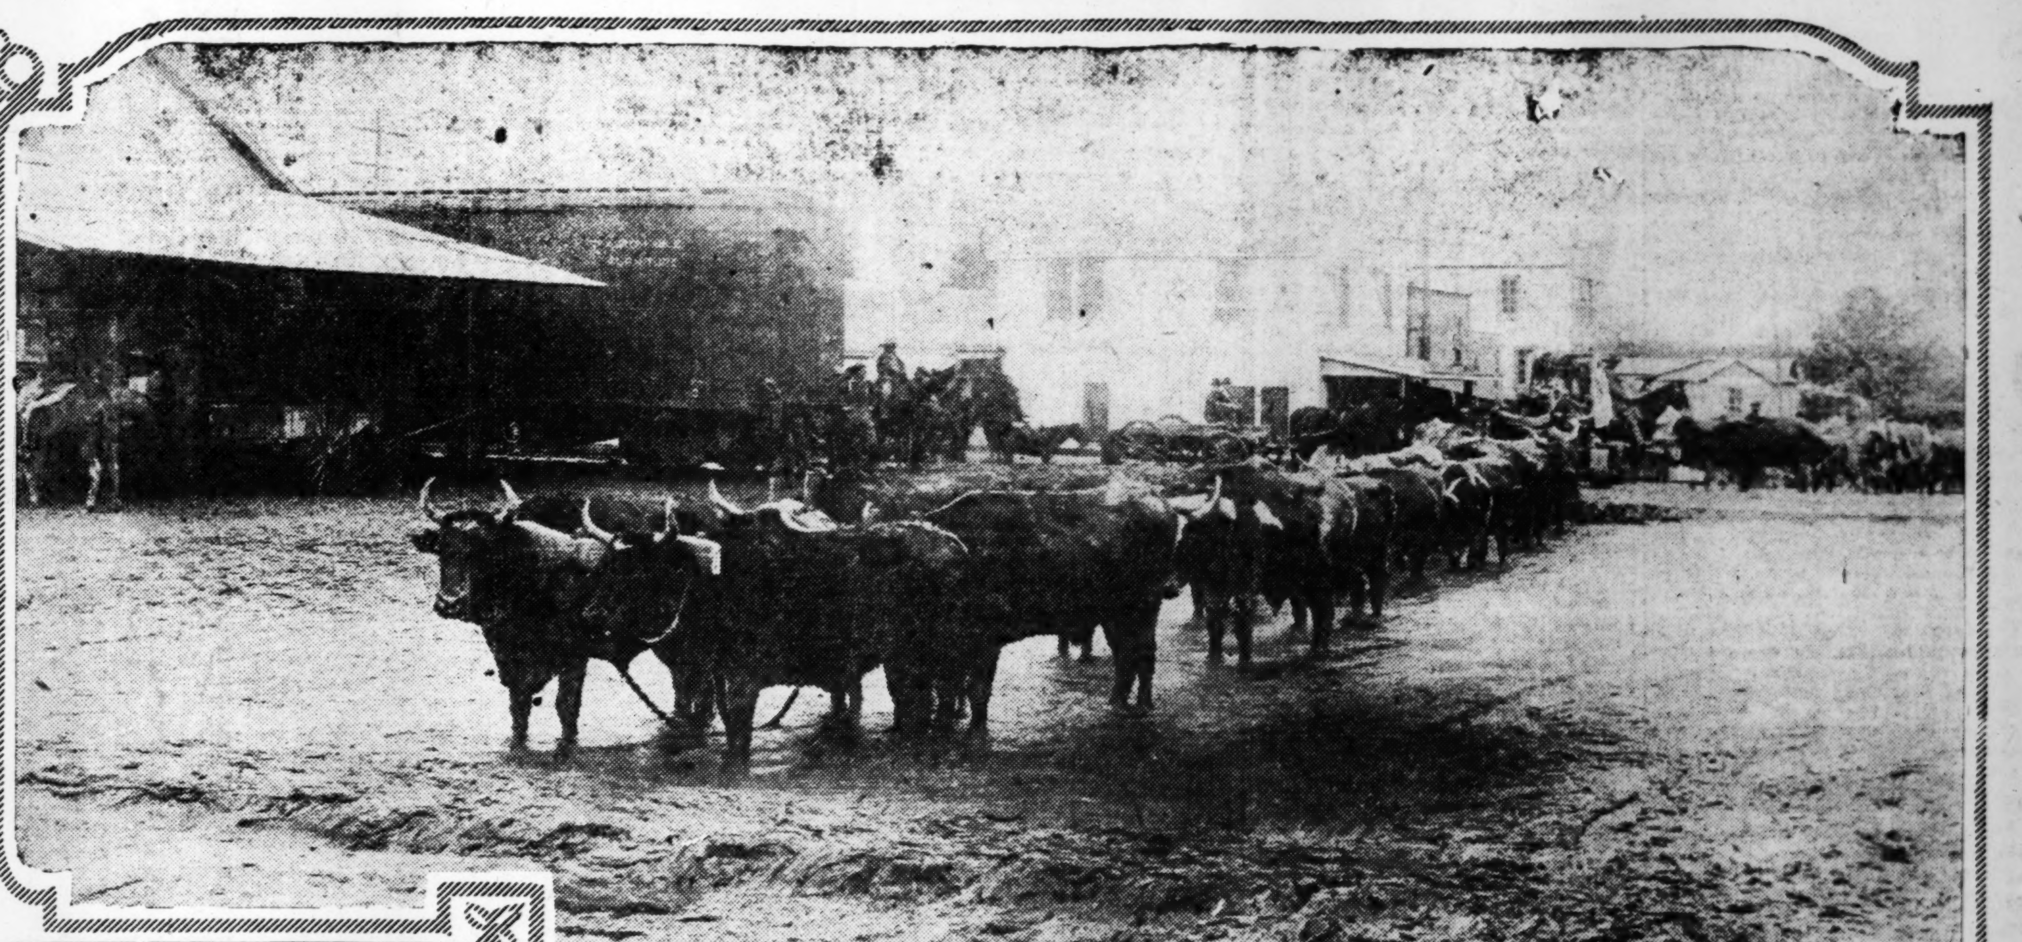
The royal family of Smackover—in riches. W. A. McKenzie, with his wife and daughter. McKenzie frankly admits that he has "no sort of notion" how much his oil possessions have brought to him, or how many wells are flowing on his holdings. His agent told him a few days ago there were forty-nine, but he confessed to the Post-Dispatch writer that he believed that four or five had "come in" since then. Mrs. Linahan, the daughter, has an independent oil fortune of her own, but proudly declares that she is happy to remain as the family cook.



Smackover has grown so fast that it has had no time to think about its streets. Here is a view of the town's main thoroughfare on the day the Post-Dispatch writer was there. It was knee-deep—to the oxen—in mud and one part of it was roped off to prevent livestock and individuals from drowning in a deep hole. One sees long strings of oxen hitched to all heavy wagons, for oxen are the chief transport in that region.

SMACKOVER, Ark., May 26.

SO this is Smackover! Mushroom metropolis of the greatest of oilfields. The Smackover that looms large in page and double-page advertisement wherever oil advertisements are printed. The Smackover which figures prominently in the indictments of 114 promoters at Fort Worth, Tex. The Smackover into which a generation of suckers is pouring its millions of dollars, and the Smackover which the Government is watching, eager to protect the suckers but unable to do much for them until after they have lost their money.

A year ago Smackover was poor but honest, with two stores, four residences and a blacksmith shop. Now the seething center of a 25,000 population in a ten-mile radius, itself a crazy huddle of shacks pitched together over night, its environs dotted with camps and its far-spreading horizon a wilderness of oil wells.

Smackover was named before oil was discovered here but it could not have been better named for the ends of oil promoters, who dearly love the eccentric in nomenclature, which helps them get and hold the attention of the suckers. There are different versions as to how it got its name. One will do. The story is that a father and son, traveling muleback through Southern Arkansas, came to a swollen stream along the border of Union and Ouachita counties.

The distance to the far shore was discouraging but there was a small island between and it was agreed that the boy should swim his animal across first. The boy did so, disappearing from view behind the underbrush of the island. The father called: "Johnnie, are you over?" The boy called back: "Yes, dad, I'm smack over."

Wherefore the stream was named Smackover creek and is thus known to this day and when a cross-roads hamlet came into being on its bank it derived its name from the stream.

Used to be Poor, But Honest

So that was Smackover, slumbering in the sun, some 20 miles north of Eldorado, pretty county seat of Union County, with a population of 3000, when oil was struck near Eldorado, giving a new significance to its name.

It remained the same Smackover, poor but honest, during the early period of the Eldorado development, with its ups and downs, its excitements and its reactions, for the Eldorado field, of which Smackover is now a part, is that sort of a field, spectacular and eccentric, wells coming in with a roar and going out with a gurgle, which makes it awfully dangerous navigating for suckers.

It takes oil to catch suckers. The more oil there is the easier it is. It does not follow necessarily that the chances of the suckers are proportionate to the production. The suckers think so, of course. The promoters see to it that they think so. But that is all in the game.

There is oil in the Eldorado field. There is oil at Smackover. Oceans of oil. The landscape is messy with it. Not infrequently it "comes in" with such a gush that it cannot be controlled and runs away, rivers of it. Smackover is still a growing field. It has not been "bored up." Its limits have not yet been defined by a circle of dry holes. But other parts of the Eldorado field have been meteoric, quickly reaching their zenith and quickly diminishing. Smackover is expected to have the same rise and fall. Meantime it is splendid bait for suckers and the fishing is good.

A Field for Fast Workers

It is peculiarly a field for fast workers, and the fastest workers in the world are here. Most of them started with nothing a few months ago. Some of them have millions now. The game is that fast. Anybody can do it who knows how to advertise and make promises without making them so definite as to exclude the advertising from the mails. If he wins he wins big. If he loses he is no worse off than he was before. Even the big winners usually lose their big winnings. That is the way of gamblers. But losing doesn't make them downhearted. Not with the sea full of suckers, those that never have been snared and those who have been snared and are eager to be snared again.

On the way down here, in the smoking compartment of a Pullman, two oil men talked in terms of millions, as the fashion among oil men is. One was counting the money he expected to make on a wildcat well he was boring, so far from present production that the scouts of the big companies had not taken the trouble to look over the ground. The other was laying plans to get back the quarter million dollars which, he casually mentioned, he had recently lost. The fact that it was easy money, easily obtained from suckers, contributed to the casualness of his attitude. He was starting out to get it back, and a million or so on top of it, and his working principle, as he enunciated it, was: "If a man can't make money without money he can't make money with money." That is the working principle of all the fast workers.

The Well That "Made" Eldorado

On Jan. 9, 1921, there was not an oil well in Arkansas. As States go, Arkansas was poor but honest. Next day the Busey well came in with a bang, just west of the Eldorado city limits. The report that went out was that it was a 30,000-barrel gusher. The fact seems to have been that it produced at the start about 15,000 barrels. The other 15,000 barrels may be credited to the exuberance natural to the occasion. But it was a good well all right and it was hailed as a harbinger of a good field. Eldorado became the new Eldorado, with hordes of men rushing in from all sides, many seeking oil, many more seeking the quick and easy gains that go with oil.

In a week, they say, the population jumped from 3000 to 20,000. That may be an exaggeration. At such a time nobody has the time to count accurately.

The statement that within 30 days there were a thousand carpenters in Eldorado is probably not more inaccurate than is usually incidental to the use of round numbers. The 20,000, more or less, had to be housed and there was work for a thousand carpenters at high wages.

The first well was followed by others to the west and south of town and for the next five or six months Eldorado boomed. But the wells "sanded up" and were short-lived. The population dropped to, maybe, 12,000.

In March, last year, wildcatters boring east of town brought in the "east field" with some big gassers and heavy oil production and Eldorado's subsiding boom revived with a whirl and the population again began climbing toward 30,000.

The wildcats never sleep and before the east field excitement had died down a tremendous gasser was brought in about 15 miles north of Eldorado, a few miles south of Smackover. It blew the lid off and opened a crater a thousand feet across. The gas caught fire and for days there was an inferno, with the flame leaping hundreds of feet into the air and illuminating the country for miles. Two other big gassers came in near by. Development swung to the "north field" and boring was fast and furious. Big wells were brought in. Smackover, poor but honest, became the center of what is claimed to be the biggest oil field in the world.

Whether Smackover is a field unto itself or is part of the Eldorado field depends upon whether it is Smackover or Eldorado doing the talking. Smackover, as a field, has overshadowed all the remainder of the Eldorado development. On the other hand, the big business connected with the Smackover development has centered at Eldorado, the county seat.

HAMBURGERS

The palace of the royal family—the McKenzie mansion. The thrifty Mr. McKenzie didn't care to have so much waste land about him and, when an enterprising restauranteur asked to lease a corner of his yard to establish thereon a savory hamburger stand, at a tempting rental, McKenzie agreed. Inasmuch as the place is right across the street from the railroad depot, it does a thriving business and crowds are there as a rule. But McKenzie remains satisfied with his deal.

Boom Now at Its Height

The boom is now at its height both in Eldorado and in Smackover. The prettiness upon which Eldorado prided itself is no more. Before the oil era there were pleasant homes on shady streets. Life moved leisurely around the "public square." The pleasant homes are now hidden by a hideous jumble of frame shops. Life no longer moves leisurely, or if it does it gets run over.

Oil just naturally ruined Eldorado architecturally, but it pays well for what it ruins. Eldorado will emerge from the present chaos, after the subsidence of the boom, a city of no mean dimensions, with architectural excellence in keeping with its wealth, and will reach an established status or will keep on growing, according to its continuing importance as the center of oil production commercially considered.

Smackover's sightliness was not destroyed by oil because it had none to be destroyed. Smackover, with a reputed population in town and surrounding camps of 25,000, practically grew from the ground up. The architecture that existed before oil came was negligible. It is a nondescript nightmare now, comparable to nothing but the scenery of a wild west movie. Its "business section" is a clutter of box-like shops, the owners of which pay prodigious rents and charge prodigious prices and presumably make prodigious profits.

The streets, after a rain, are quagmires which test the endurance of teams of twenty oxen. If it is a heavy rain the water hole in Broadway is roped off to keep reckless drivers from drowning their oxen and mules in it. The drowning of draught animals in holes along the highway between Eldorado and Smackover causes no comment, but Smackover has a certain pride in such matters.

The wooden sidewalks swarm with a picturesque mob of oil field followers, in boots and sombreros. On rainy days the women wear rubber boots. The men are hard but, except among the bootleggers, who kill each other occasionally, there are few crimes of violence. S. C. Wilson, who photographs everything, is still waiting for a chance to photograph a fight. These men have homes and kin somewhere, else why do they stand an hour in line at the postoffice for the letters they expect? They pay little attention to the wild women who walk the streets or hang from the "hotel" windows. But the blind men who thrum guitars and sing of mother and home get their dollars.

Gambling houses flourish up narrow alleys, unhindered by complaisant authorities. The whine and throb of jazz comes from dance halls which are in full swing from dusk to midnight.

Frantic construction of "hotels" and rooming houses and "flop" houses has not availed to keep pace with the demands for sleeping quarters. Twenty coaches are needed to carry workers on the "Roughneck Special" from Eldorado mornings and back nights. Accommodations in Eldorado are none too good and the prices are high, but there are such things as real rooms in real homes.

There is a measure of permanence in Eldorado but Smackover knows no tomorrow. Its motto is "Make all you can today and make it before noon if possible." Its population is the flotsam and jetsam of the oil fields, today here, tomorrow somewhere else. They belong to the boring period. When that is past and the fields settle down to commercial production, they will move on.

With all the wealth that oil has brought there is no investment in permanent improvements except in Eldorado, and even there it is of such character as will involve least loss after the boom subsides. The highway between Eldorado and Smackover is not improved because of the fear that before it can be completed the present need for it will pass. As for the mules and oxen that drown in its mudholes, they can be replaced.

Smackover will never be much different, even if production continues on a substantial scale after the field is "bored up." It is not in the make-up of its newly rich to make it better. There is W. A. McKenzie, one of the fantastic favorites of the fickle fate which distributes oil benefits. He was nearing 80 when, after a lifetime of meager support from hogs and cotton, millions came to him.

But the millions came too late to change McKenzie. His idea of affluence was to move to Smackover and build himself a "town house" of four rooms, across the street from the depot, which must have cost him, at the high prevailing wages, more than a thousand dollars, but this profligacy is offset somewhat by the rental of a hamburger stand in the corner of the yard.

His daughter, Mrs. L. V. Linahan, was sweeping the "gallery" when I called. Apart from her share in her father's millions she owes her individual fortune to the cottage organ which her father bought her, after she divorced Linahan, to take her mind off of her troubles. She learned to play it pretty well, though her taste ran to the lugubrious in music, in tune with a gloomy outlook which wealth has not abated. But after a while she made up her mind that it was extravagant to have $50 tied up in a cottage organ, so she sold it to Allen Forch, for what she paid for it, and bought 20 acres of land at $2.50 an acre. After oil came in she sold the land for $100,000.

Not Sentimental, if It Costs $50.

A Smackover sentimentalist started the story that Mrs. Linahan was going to buy the organ back and keep it always but Mrs. Linahan is not sentimental, not to the extent of $50 anyway. She exploded that yarn pronto. "Why," she asked, "should I pay $50 for an organ that I don't want? I liked it at first but I got to where I never set down to it. I think I was lucky to get back what I paid for it."

The practical logic of this could not be disputed and sentimentalism was silenced.

One might suggest that with a well on another piece of her land which flowed 35,000 barrels a day for 92 days and is still a good producer, the $50 it would cost to get the organ back wouldn't be missed, but what's the use!

Besides her wealth, Mrs. Linahan has a job for life with her pa and ma. "She's our cook," said McKenzie, munching peanuts as he sat by his $4 stove. "She's a fine cook. We used to hire one, but she stole our napkins, so we couldn't keep her.

You will notice that McKenzie spoke of napkins. Plural.

McKenzie had 540 acres, worth at least a dollar an acre, when oil was struck. He sold half of his royalty for $255,000. That leaves him a 1-16th interest in all the oil that comes out of the wells on his land. But ask him what that means and he answers: "I ain't got no sort of notion. Gibson Johnson handles my business. I asked him a month ago how many wells we got. He said 49 but four or five more have been brought in since that." Two of his wells produced 35,000 barrels a day for a few months.

Never Has Been to Little Rock.

Money means nothing to McKenzie. It is his boast that he was born seven miles from Smackover and that he has never been up to Little Rock, although he figured on going once or twice. So, recently, when some gentlemen interested in Texas lands, invited him down, he put on his other suit and went traveling. They met him at the depot with an automobile and showed him their land and when he asked them how much they thought he ought to buy they said they thought 1000 acres would be about right for a citizen of his standing.

He said "tut, tut," to their flattery and to show them that he wasn't a greeny he refused to buy more than 976 acres. They wanted him to take irrigated land but they couldn't fool him. Hadn't he been farming since he was 7 years old and hadn't he been fighting water all his life up there in Arkansas? No siree, no irrigated land for him. He wanted his dry. They said "Oh, very well," and accepted his check for $97,600.

He feels perfectly satisfied about the land deal. There is no doubt about the land being there. He saw it with his own eyes. But he had a narrow escape another time from losing $5000. A slicker got hold of him and talked him into investing $5000 in something or other. His banker heard about it and advised him to keep his money and McKenzie kept it. Next day, having had time to meditate upon the banker's kindness, he went around and gave him a quarter. The banker didn't want to accept it, feeling that he had only done his duty in advising a client, but McKenzie insisted that he had earned it and made him keep it.

Coal Oil Lamps Good Enough.

Nobody can say that McKenzie is extravagant. A friend made bold the other day to suggest that it is customary for millionaires to have electric lights in their houses. McKenzie spurned the counsel. "Coal oil lamps," he said, "have always been good enough for me and they are good enough for me now. Electric lights cost too much."

He wants to sell his town house and move to Texas. At first he put the price at $25,000, but the other day he told his agent to get him $15,000 for it and "keep the change." Later he announced that he was going to sell it for $12,000.

McKenzie doesn't believe in life insurance. But fire insurance is all right, he says, "because you can drap it whenever you want to."

Oil production is an industry. Oil is being produced here in great quantity. But persons with a talent for figures estimate that only about one in 10 of the new population of the field is engaged in that industry. The other nine are here to get the money and get it quick and easy. There are honest and legitimate ways to make money and make lots of it, but some of the nine prefer the ways that are neither honest nor legitimate.

Take the banking business. Oil field banks do a tremendous business. It might be supposed that, with money coming in by the carload the honest pickings would be so good that it would not be worth while to do any other kind of business. But a bunch of promoters started a bank at Eldorado. For every dollar that they put in they borrowed $20 from local people. It failed and the local people lost a lot of money.

Sky the Limit on Rents.

The sky's the limit on rents both in Eldorado and Smackover. In Eldorado a six-room house is good for $150 a month. Some of them bring $250. Any store on the square brings $1000 a month. Stores on side streets with frontage of 25 feet, which might have been rented for not more than $100 before the boom, now bring $600 and $700.

There was a little grocery store off the square for which the owner was glad to get $60 a month before oil came in. Over night the rent was raised to $500, with the added requirement of three months in advance. The fixed price for a furnished room in a private family is $50 a month. Everybody rents them, partly as a patriotic duty and partly for the $50 a month.

SMACKOVER — PARADISE OF THE OIL STOCK SHARKS IN ARKANSAS

House building is going on at a mad rate, but it can't keep up. Construction cost is high, but the materials are the very cheapest. One man built a shell of a six-room house. It cost him $1500. He rented it before it was finished to two families, each occupying three rooms and sharing the single bathroom. Hotel rates are in proportion, which means that a small room in a flimsy hotel, with $75 worth of furniture in it, occupied every night, brings to the proprietor anywhere from $1000 to $1500 a year.

In Smackover shops not much bigger than goods boxes rent for $100 a month and from that on up, with no limit to the up.

But that's all right. The people who pay the big prices are making easy money and they get something for their money. The thing that is not all right and which is being watched by the Federal officials, is the sale of oil stock.

Towns Aswarm With Promoters.

Eldorado and Smackover are aswarm with promoters. Most of them came here with nothing. They organized "companies" with high-sounding names and used page advertisements in oil magazines and newspapers, on credit, paying for them when the credulous began sending in their savings. There are hordes of such companies. A new crop comes in each day. One man may have a dozen "companies."

Most of them are in the wildcat game. The promoter gets a bunch of farmers together and tells them that if they will help him get a block of ground he will bore for oil. He cuts it up into "leases" and uses page advertisements to inform the credulous everywhere that he is going to bore a well which, if it produces a certain amount of oil will pay a certain percentage on the investment, maybe 100 per cent or 400 per cent.

With $15,000 of the million or so that the suckers send in he bores a well. If it's a dry hole the suckers are out of luck. If, by chance, he strikes oil, he sells out and pays a dividend and capitalizes his prestige to get more money.

A promoter has been known to pay as much as 100 per cent, which means, of course, that he simply returned the investors' money, with no earnings. But 100 per cent sounds big and a man who has paid it can get all the money he wants from the same investors and an army of others.

Beat the Blue-Sky Law.

Arkansas has a blue-sky law. All of the companies are organized under its provisions. But none of them sells stock in Arkansas, so the Arkansas law cannot touch them. Unfortunately, there is no Federal law that meets the situation. Efforts are being made to get such a law.

The usual form of organization is a trust syndicate without capitalization. The promoter is the trustee. He gets 25 per cent. The investors get what is left, if there is anything, in proportion to the number of investors.. The more that come in to such a syndicate, the less is the share of each. The promoter's 25 per cent grows with each sale of stock, but each sale, by increasing the number of shareholders, reduces the share of each.

The difficulty of the Government is that it cannot do anything until after the harm has been accomplished. Investors do not complain until after they have lost their money. The complaints are beginning to come in. They will increase in volume as the days go by. By and by, probably, there will be a lot of indictments and some of the promoters may be punished. But that will not bring back the money the suckers have lost. There will be nothing for them to do but save up some more for the next swindle that comes along.

its treasury to Moscow. Now that the Bolshevik were in power, the treasury was no longer regarded as safe, and the thing was to get it back to Jassy. Col. Boyle took the job.

He went to Moscow, hired a train, and succeeded in loading it with the cases containing millions of bank notes, valuables and securities. Then, with two British officers as aids, he started for Rumania. On the second day out they stopped at a small station. Behind them, flames from burning houses mounted to the sky, and the sound of rifle-fire came nearer and nearer. The crew deserted.

"It doesn't seem very attractive here," said Col. Boyle. "Let's go on."

"Have you ever driven an engine?" queried one of his companions.

"No, but I don't see why I shouldn't begin now," was his reply. They found the fire dying out and the boiler empty, and filled it a pailful at a time from a tap in the station. Then, with Boyle at the throttle, they proceeded cautiously on their way. After a long interval they arrived at the Rumanian frontiers. It was when Queen Marie heard of this exploit that she hung about the Canadian's neck the Order of the Crown and Star.

duced the Russian fleet in the Black Sea to remain pro-ally at a critical moment; who arranged peace terms between Rumania and the Bolsheviki; and who saved 50 Rumanian Deputies from banishment to Sebastopol and possible death by putting on a bold front before the Russians.

Next he was assigned to the d'Artagnan-like feat of bringing Dowager Czarina Marie of Russia out of the land of revolution. She was thought to be in the Crimea, and King Ferdinand of Rumania was anxious that she should find safety in Jassy. Col. Boyle took a ship with a picked crew of 200 soldiers, and went to the port of Yalta. By means of mingled firmness and blanishments, he obtained permission to land, and eventually found the former Empress in a small villa. She was touched by his bold effort to rescue her, but refused to leave Russia. "I am an old woman now," she said. "My life is nearly over. I cannot abandon my friends."

Many of Col. Boyle's errands for the Rumanian Government, which appointed him food commissioner in that country, were carried out by airplane. He was also Canadian agent to supervise the distribution of materials purchased with a Canadian credit of $25,000,000. The frequent trips at high altitude—he was now in the fifties—brought on a partial paralytic stroke. He was taken to the Royal Palace and nursed back to health by the Queen and her daughter in person.

Later, when the Rumanian Prince eloped, it was Boyle—intrusted, again like d'Artagnan, with the honor of a royal family—who was dispatched by the King and Queen to overtake the fugitives. He brought the Prince back home, and by his discretion prevented a scandal.

About two years ago he became connected with the Royal Dutch and Shell Transport Co., and helped in the development of oil properties in Mosul and Caucasia. Once more he came into conflict with the bolsheviki, when they threw one of his staff and his wife into a dungeon at Tiflis. Col. Boyle obtained their release.

Last February he wrote to his sister to reopen "The Firs," as he was returning home for the first time since 1916. But the much-wandering man was not to see his native place again. From Hampton Hill, Middlesex, England, came a cable from his son, Joseph Boyle Jr. It read: "Dad died suddenly this morning. Heart attack."

Paris Resents "9 O'clock" Label.

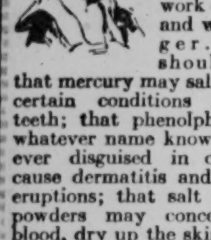
By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 26.—Returning French travelers say that in the United States the impression is fairly general that Paris is too prudish to be worth coming to see. French newspapers see in this impression "insidious German propaganda" which seeks to attract tourists to "wicked Berlin." These newspapers rather resent alleged efforts to represent Paris is a "9 o'clock town."

Syrup Pepsin Helps Nature Give Relief

Try it when a Laxative is needed and see the wonderful results

IT is not necessary to take a violent physic for so simple an ailment as constipation. Yet many thoughtless parents give mercury in the form of calomel, and coal-tar in the form of phenol when a natural vegetable compound like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do the work equally well and without danger. People should realize that mercury may salivate and in certain conditions loosen the teeth; that phenolphthalein, by whatever name known and however disguised in candy, may cause dermatitis and other skin eruptions; that salt waters and powders may concentrate the blood, dry up the skin and cause lassitude.



You can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself or give it to a babe in arms, as thousands of mothers do every day, with the confidence that it is the safest and best medicine you can use for constipation and such complaints. A teaspoonful will relieve you over night even if the constipation has been chronic for years. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and does not cramp or gripe. Every druggist handles it, and bottles are so generous that the cost amounts to only about a cent a dose. You buy it with the understanding that if it does not do as claimed your money will be refunded. The names of all the ingredients are on the package.

Mrs. A. Arceneaux of Orange, Texas, suffered from constipation for six years and found no relief until she took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; and Mrs. Gus Anderson of Ball, Kans., corrected her bowel trouble so that she now eats and sleeps normally. Bring a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin into your own home and let the family use it for constipation, biliousness, wind, gas, headaches, flatulency, and to break up fevers and colds.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

A good workman

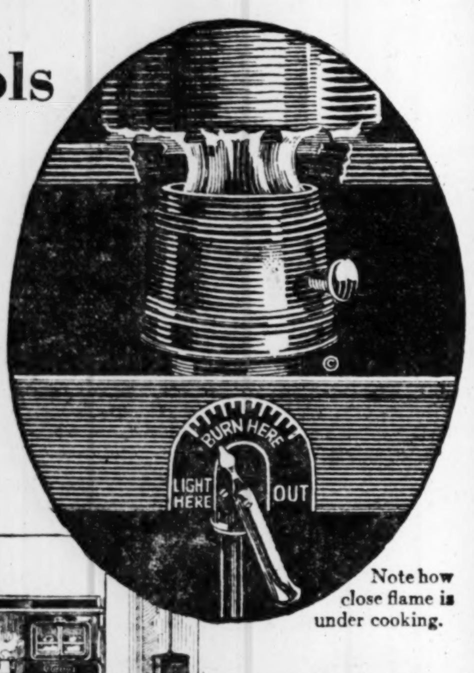
And what is more important than the kitchen stove?

IF you are putting up with a cook stove that is inadequate, do yourself the justice of going to a furniture or hardware store and examining the Florence Oil Range.

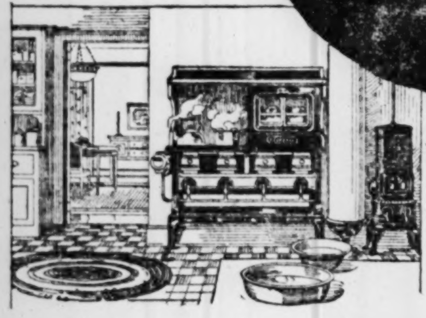
This most modern of stoves does everything you can ask of a cook stove. Furthermore, it is an outright economy to use.



Note how close flame is under cooking.

No bother at all

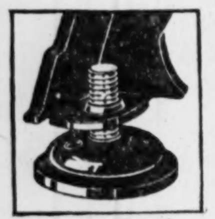
When you are ready to cook, you simply turn the heat regulator and touch a match to the asbestos kindler.



The Florence Oil Cook Stove, because of both its efficiency and its cleanliness, belongs in the most modern kitchen.

The wickless Florence burns with an intense, clean, blue flame. It has the advantages of a gas stove—at far less expense. Because it is so economical, the Florence soon pays for itself. Each burner is large and powerful, and the heat is close to the cooking.

It burns gas—the gas of vaporized kerosene, and kerosene is not only cheaper than other fuels but is always plentiful. Unlike a coal range, the Florence uses fuel only when actually cooking. This means both economy and comfort in hot weather.



Florence Leveler
Pat. applied for

Beautiful as well

You will find no range more beautiful than the Florence, with its porcelain and hard-baked enamel and shining nickel. You will notice many modern touches, such as the Florence Leveler, the simple device by which each leg can be lengthened or shortened to make the stove stand firm and level on an uneven floor.

Don't put up with an old stove when there is a modern Florence at a nearby store.

See if a Florence does not belong in your kitchen.

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of the labor unions and the Communist and Socialist Parties, showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

SUGAR.

(From Auto Worker, Union Labor.)

The American people are being held up to the tune of millions by a band of sugar pirates. The Department of Commerce, of which Herbert Hoover is Secretary, is largely responsible for this hold-up, in view of the fact that reports were allowed to emanate from this department, which were used as a basis for the raid on the public.

This is one of those happenings that should cause every red-blooded American to rise and sing the "Star-Spangled Banner." It is typically American.

During the war some 26,000 millionaires were created, while we were busy making the world safe for democracy, and now several thousand more will be made while we are busy saving the country from Communism, Socialism and every other "ism" that is opposed to this ruthless exploitation of the people.

Secretary of War Weeks gets busy and throws out a smoke screen denouncing those who are opposed to war. Secretary of States Hughes gets busy riling up the waters of Russian recognition and President Harding drags in the world court, all of which is being done to attract the attention of the masses to other things, while the pirates get away with the booty.

AMERICAN FASCISTI.

(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

The idea of an American Fascisti organization is spreading in certain high quarters. Here and there a big daily of big business affiliations denounces the idea as un-American. But many big bankers and businessmen, especially among those who recently attended the Rome Congress of the Chamber of Commerce, admire Mussolini and his methods. From admiration to imitation is but a small step.

Back of all these wishes, back even of the kept press editorials denouncing Fascism, lurks the fear of the rising labor organizations. But there is no danger of American labor in the vast majority taking kindly to Communism or Fascism or to any violent direct action. The danger comes from big business and its retainers, such as the white-collar brigades in the National Guard, the Vigilance Committees and the Ku Klux Klans of business men, the American Legion, the Security League and similar organizations for the defense of patriotic profits.

The Chicago Tribune directs its advice to the wrong quarter when it says, with a look in the direction of the labor and Socialist organizations: "We suffer today from a plague of minorities which have no respect for American methods, standards, ideals or institutions. Most of them are born from European conditions and imported by Europeans or European doctrinaries."

If this speech were addressed to the praetorian guards of big business, it would be quite appropriate. As a preachment against Socialists or labor unions it falls flat, because these organizations are pledged to legal and peaceful methods. But they are not going to take the illegal violence of being business Cossacks lying down.

FLORIDA PRISONS—AND OTHERS.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Union Labor.)

Revelations concerning vicious prison practices in Florida may be news for most of us, but certainly not for thousands of migratory workers of the Pacific Coast. Bullying by town officials and company gunmen are among the least of these men's experiences with the arms of the law.

Hundreds of men, of as good character at least as the ordinary citizen and the majority of infinitely higher caliber than most of us, have been subjected to inhuman treatment in the thousand and one jails and prisons of the Pacific Coast in the past 10 years.

Thrown into jails filthy beyond words, denied access to counsel, tried before miserable excuses for judges by prosecutors who regard the migratory worker as a curse upon society, they have suffered years of imprisonment and torture equaling that of any other epoch of history. That the world does not know more about it is due to the fact that they are poor men, without influence or prestige in the proper places.

These workers, scarred by prisons, will read of Florida prison camps as only one form of imprisonment probably not so much worse than the "bull pens" of shameful memory of our own State.

DAWES' BLACK SHIRTS.

(From New Majority, Farmer-Labor.)

"Hell and Maria" Dawes is not satisfied with the regular Fascisti that is being organized in the United States. He has organized his own fascisti movement. It is called Minute Men of the Constitution and its purpose is to foster, aid, comfort and nourish the "open" shop. Dawes launched his new organization at a conference in his home. He announced a platform with five items, mostly camouflage. The nub of the platform was Item No. 4, which read as follows:

"Indorsing the announced position of the Government of the United States maintaining that the right

Revelations concerning vicious prison practices in Florida may be news for most of us, but certainly not for thousands of migratory workers of the Pacific Coast. Bullying by town officials and company gunmen are among the least of these men's experiences with the arms of the law.

Hundreds of men, of as good character at least as the ordinary citizen and the majority of infinitely higher caliber than most of us, have been subjected to inhuman treatment in the thousand and one jails and prisons of the Pacific Coast in the past 10 years.

Thrown into jails filthy beyond words, denied access to counsel, tried before miserable excuses for judges by prosecutors who regard the migratory worker as a curse upon society, they have suffered years of imprisonment and torture equaling that of any other epoch of history. That the world does not know more about it is due to the fact that they are poor men, without influence or prestige in the proper places.

These workers, scarred by prisons, will read of Florida prison camps as only one form of imprisonment probably not so much worse than the "bull pens" of shameful memory of our own State.

DAWES' BLACK SHIRTS.

(From New Majority, Farmer-Labor.)

"Hell and Maria" Dawes is not satisfied with the regular Fascisti that is being organized in the United States. He has organized his own Fascisti movement. It is called Minute Men of the Constitution and its purpose is to foster, aid, comfort and nourish the "open" shop. Dawes launched his new organization at a conference in his home. He announced a platform with five items, mostly camouflage. The nub of the platform was Item No. 4, which read as follows:

"Indorsing the announced position of the Government of the United States maintaining that the right of a citizen to work without unlawful interference is as sacred as the right of a citizen to cease work, irrespective of whether he is or is not a member of a labor or other organization."

These "fair" sounding words are familiar to those in touch with the labor movement. They are the patter of the "open" shopper. It would have been more accurate if Mr. Dawes had said:

"Indorsing the announced position of the Harding administration, the Attorney-General of which said in Judge Wilkerson's court when seeking the rail strike injunction: 'I will use the power of the Government to prevent the labor unions from destroying the open shop.'"

The first citizen to comment publicly on Mr. Dawes' new movement was that veteran labor fighter, John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, who said, in a newspaper interview: "Chicago has been dead since the World's Fair. This looks like business. Let's go."

The second citizen to express himself publicly was Victor A. Glander, secretary of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, who made haste to set Chicago newspaper readers right. He ripped the mask off of Dawes' scheme in behalf of the "open" shop.

A SOP TO STEEL SLAVES.

(From the New York Call, Socialist)

Judge Elbert H. Gary, feudal chief of the American steel hells, issues an imperial decree increasing wages 11 per cent. His serfs are expected to render homage to the feudal despot. The imperial ruler announced his unshakable will while returning from a cruise in the Mediterranean.

What is called "common labor" will receive 40 cents an hour for working in intense heat at labor that is exhausting and that makes a man old a forty. The steel oligarchs have been complaining of not receiving enough human merchandise from foreign immigration to work into steel. It is likely that this is a sop to the slaves in the hope of keeping them contented in their slavery.

At the same time we may look forward to the announcement of some handsome dividends for the loafing parasites, whose workless incomes are drawn from the useful labor of the steel slaves.

We are not among those who rejoice at an extra crust of bread thrown to thousands of workers who endure a slavery as galling as negroes formerly endured in the South. When Gary and his associated slavers are forced to recognize organization of the workers in the industry they will have to surrender more than this pittance. Eventually their slave pens will have to be transferred from them to a labor democracy, where despotism will be a hated memory of the past.

GOOSE STEPPING US.

(From Industrial Solidarity, I. W. W. Organ).

"The Goose Step" is the height of German military drill achievement. It betokens an absolutely perfect automatism in human beings trained to perform it. As a bit of precision on parade it is unsurpassed. It is performed with clock-like regularity.

"The Goose Step," however, is no longer applied to military regimentation only. It is becoming a part of "our" so-called civilization. We are all being taught automatism in factory life and in our thoughts. We work like machines and think like them. All for the greater profit and glory of the wealth-owning few.

It's time we broke away from it and got more freedom again.

PROTECT EVERY HONEST DOLLAR.

(From Labor, Organ of the Railway Unions.)

In calling a national conference to consider the problem of railroad valuation, the Progressive group in Congress and the seven Progressive Governors co-operating with them have rendered a great public service. The conference will undoubtedly concentrate popular attention on the most important phase of the railroad question—how should the roads be valued for rate-making purposes?

So far as the railroad workers are concerned, their position is easily stated. They are opposed to anything suggestive of confiscation. They believe that every dollar prudently invested in American railroads should be permitted to earn a proper return. That means that every honest dollar employed in the transportation industry must be safeguarded.

But it also means that the public shall not be compelled to pay dividends on dollars which have never been invested—phantom dollars which represent nothing except the avarice of the great financial interests which dominate the railroads.

In the railroad business there are two payrolls—the dollar payroll and the workers' payroll. The people who use the railroads have a right to demand that neither of these pay-

On the other hand, the men who put their dollars on the dollar payroll have a right to ask for a proper return, just as the men and women whose names appear on the workers' payroll have a right to demand wages which will enable them to live according to American standards, plus such additional compensation as the skill required and the responsibilities assumed may justify.

That was the basic principle of the La Follette Railroad Valuation Law passed 10 years ago. The great Senator from Wisconsin during his long and distinguished service has always been the champion of the honest investor. He has never countenanced any movement looking to the confiscation of dollars prudently invested in railroad property, but he has devoted his great talents and limitless energy to the task of relieving the American people of the necessity of paying dividends on what the late Glenn E. Plumb used to call "shadow dollars."

If the coming conference will adhere to the position which La Follette has so ably defended for more than 20 years it will have the support of the great majority of the American people and will pave the way for a permanent solution of our transportation ills.

6-STORY BUILDING SALE FEATURES REALTY ACTIVITY

More Than $100,000 Involved in Deal for Site at 1427-29 Lucas Avenue by Dry Goods Firm.

DEMANDS FAR EXCEED AVAILABLE QUARTERS

Construction in Residence Sections on Unprecedented Scale — North End Lots Find Ready Buyers.

By Berry Moore.

A big sale of the week was that of the six-story building at 1427-29 Lucas avenue by E. A. Scharff to H. & P. Epstein, wholesale dry goods merchants, through Martin & Breitt, specialists in selling and leasing business property. The price paid was not given out, but it is known that the transaction involved more than $100,000.

The building will provide for the expansion of the growth of the whole merchants who will use it in connection with the Herzog Building at 1206-08 Washington avenue, of which they recently acquired a long lease.

Demand for quarters in the wholesale and retail districts greatly exceeds the supply of buildings available for lessees. The result is that many growing concerns have had to buy or otherwise to operate under restricted physical conditions.

Owing to the adverse conditions confronting renters the McElroy-Sloan Shoe Co. was compelled to purchase the building at 1511 Washington avenue, which it had occupied under a long lease and to pay a large increase over the price at which it formerly could have been acquired.

Shortage Is Acute.

Shortage of buildings available for warehouses adjacent to the wholesale and retail districts has become acute in the extreme, with the let up in construction on a large scale in the business area.

Plans have been made for numerous large structures in the business and in the factory districts of the city, but the most important of these have been halted by the barrier of advancing prices of construction.

The building of the Universal Co., occupying a quarter of a block at the northwest corner of Olive and Beaumont streets, was completed a year ago at a cost of $200,000, whereas today it would cost $300,000 under prevailing prices of construction, according to Harry Horowitz, builder, who erected it for the Universal Co., and who has been getting bids for construction of a similar building from the same plans and specifications for a site on Washington avenue.

Construction in the residence parts of the city has been on an unprecedented scale, embracing alike houses, flats and apartments. Plans are still going forward for construction of buildings of this character, especially for apartment buildings and flats which are now the focus of the speculative and investment demand.

$14,665,820 in Loans.

The Prudential Insurance Co. during the first four months of this year advanced $14,665,820 for housing purposes in cities in which it has established loan departments, according to James M. Franciscus, exclusive loan correspondent here for this company and president of the Franciscus Realty Co.

These loans have provided accommodations for 5038 families. The loans embrace 2728 dwellings, aggregating $10,549,820, and accommodate 3097 families, and 159 apartments for $4,116,000, accommodating 1941 families.

The Prudential's loans for housing purposes during the first four months of last year aggregated $11,320,534, providing accommodations for 3988 families.

The Prudential, which is a billion-dollar company, has been a large source of supply for loans for home acquisition, as well as for real estate operations in St. Louis, since it established a loan department here with James M. Franciscus as its head. While the company does not lend its money indiscriminately its surplus is always available for legitimate real estate investments and operations on a sound basis.

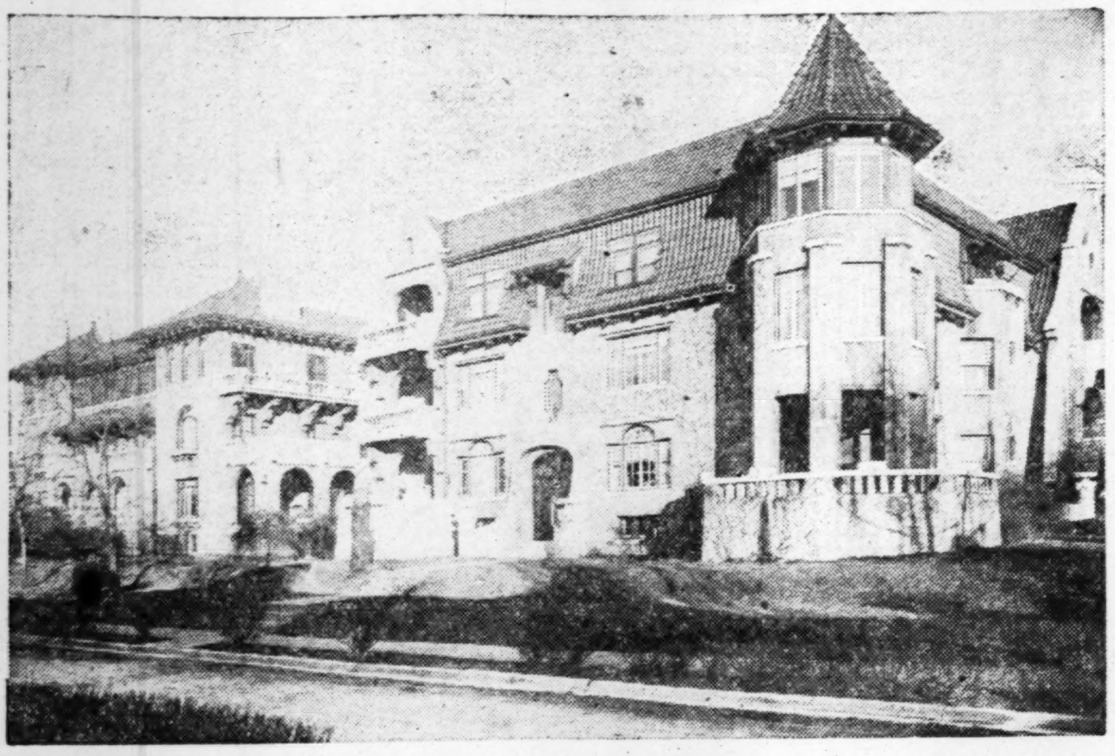
The Bissell tract on the Bellefontaine road, 8½ miles north of the city, between the Bissell and Walker roads, and the municipal farm is receiving much attention from subdivision promoters, wit hthe report abroad that this superb tract soon is to be placed on the market. There are 460 acres in the Bissell's tract.

Wenzlick Sales Dinner.

A talk on condemnation procedure, as followed by the city in obtaining property for street openings and other public use, was made at the weekly dinner meeting of the Wenzlick Sales Organization at the American Hotel Thursday, by G. William Senn, Associate City Counselor. He has been in charge of condemnation work in the City Law Department for 10 years.

Senn told of the work done by the Law Department on the Washington boulevard widening, and said that the long time which elapsed between the passing of the ordinance and the completion of the work, nearly 10 years, was due in part to the inadequate size of the city's legal staff. The same condition, he said, may tend to hamper the work under the bond issue voted recently. William B. Ittner, architect of the Board of Education, will address the Wenzlick salesmen Thursday evening.

Amherst Place Apartment Buildings Sold



Two apartment buildings, containing 16 apartments, on the east side of Amherst place, on a site extending from Julian avenue to Woodland place, have been sold to B. A. Frankel, for a price reported to have been $125,000. This sale was made by Edward L. Bakewell's office, through David Bailey, for a client of Bakewell.

The buildings are of concrete construction, in mission style architecture, with stucco finish and green tile cornices. Six of the apartments are of 8 rooms each, seven of 6 rooms and three of 5 rooms. The lawns are terraced and improved with shrubbery, the premises having a frontage of 259 feet on emherst place.

REPORTS SALES OF RESIDENCE PROPERTY ON SOUTH SIDE

The Federer-Arendes Realty Co. reports having closed the following deals during the week: Bungalow at 4052 Humphrey street, for Lawrence A. Buchanan to William L. Minges.

$1000.00 FOR AN IDEA

The Federal Home Building Corporation

Will credit you with One Thousand Dollars as a first payment on a new Home, Flat, Bungalow or Apartment if you give us the best suggestion for a sentence (not over ten words) that will embody the salient features of our business.

THEY ARE:

We are Builders and Contractors.

We are NOT a Housing Trust nor a 3 or 4 per cent Loan Company.

We were the first in the field to combine financing, drafting of plans, supervising construction and giving our clients a complete building service.

A small down payment will suffice to start us building your home.

You don't even have to own a lot. We will buy a lot for you anywhere you wish.

Quality, originality and distinctiveness are paramount features of our construction.

We employ only union mechanics, and guarantee them annually 288 working days, which gives us the opportunity to employ the most efficient labor.

If you are in the market to build a home, flat, bungalow or an apartment, try and land this $1000 credit.

Any person is eligible to make suggestions except our employes.

A committee of newspaper men will be the sole judges of the merit of the ideas.

Only one suggestion from each family. Write your suggestion and also fill out attached coupon.

THE TEST WILL CLOSE JUNE 15

OPPORTUNITY
For High Class Sales Executive or Organization
The Williamson Heater Co. of Cincinnati, an old reliable and nationally known manufacturer of heating apparatus, is marketing a gas, gasoline or electric cabinet clothes dryer known as "Snow White," salable to home owners, builders, architects and dealers; judged by merchandising experts to hold the greatest national possibilities of recent times.
It dries clothes in 10 minutes; its installation makes the housewife independent of weather conditions; it eliminates the drudgery of carrying clothes outside; it permits washing and ironing to be done the same morning; in smoky communities it is indispensable; every woman appreciates its advantages; it appeals to the professional builder as it enhances the salability of his building; it appeals to the apartment owner in eliminating the back-yard problem; to the man erecting or owning a high-grade home it sells itself, the price is less than any other laundry equipment.
Operations are being extended to this territory; other cities operating successfully; large publicity campaign now under way and very attractive literature compiled; unusual factory co-operation; this is a big proposition and must be handled in a big way; height of season will soon be here; the initial requirements for further procedure are: First, sufficient capital to establish show-room; 2d, a substantiated, successful sales and merchandising experience; third, an unimpeachable personal record; fourth, vision to realize the potential possibilities. To such a person or concern we can offer a mighty interesting proposition; a definite, proven plan of procedure, a real money-making opportunity.

C. OF C. ISSUES LIST OF APPROVED CHARITIES

85 Out of Approximately 135 in the City Given Indorsement by Bureau.

In accordance with its annual custom established in 1911, the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has indorsed a number of local charities and sent copies of the indorsed list to members of the Chamber and to Chambers of Commerce and Community Chests throughout the country.

There are approximately 135 charities in St. Louis, and the Charities Bureau list this year includes 85 of them. In the list is the local Community Fund, which, in itself composes 40 charities also listed by the Bureau. To belong to the Community Fund, a charity must have the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce Charities Bureau.

Outline of Work Given.

An outline of the work of the Charities Bureau is given in a preface to the pamphlet of its recommendations, in which it tells of the growth of the Community Council and the development of the Community Fund which it recommended be started three years after the beginning of the Community Council in 1920. The fund was organized last fall, six months before the expiration of the time thought to have been necessary to organize the charities for co-operative soliciting.

However, the fund so far, with its comparatively small membership of 40 which does not include Catholic or Jewish charities, is not yet comprehensive enough to take the place of the Charities Bureau, the pamphlet states.

In the indorsed list this year the charities belonging to the Community Fund are designated, those having a chartered accountant audit are marked, and corporate names of agencies are given to enable philanthrophists to designate correctly institutions in their wills.

Other Charities Listed.

Aside from listing names of charities and philanthropies that returned full reports to the bureau, a list of agencies reporting directly to Archbishop John J. Glennon, a list of those reporting to the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association and a list reporting to the Lutheran Charities Association are published with the indorsement statement.

The Charities Bureau bases its recommendations on eight primary requirements, chief of which are that the organization be incorporated and employ managers actively engaged in the work, and that the work done not only be commensurate with the moneys expended but not overlap the activities of any other charity. Also, the funds must be raised in a manner approved by the bureau, and an audit by a certified public accountant furnished annually.

Charities Approved.

Approval of the following agencies extending from May 1, 1923 to May 1, 1924, has been given by the committee: American Society for the Control of Cancer, Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, Barnes Hospital, Ben A'Kiba Homefor Women, Bethesda Charities, Big Brother Organization of St. Louis, Big Sisters of St. Louis, Board of Religious Organizations, Boyle Memorial Center, Caroline Mission Evangelical Social Center, Catherine Springer Home, Catholic Outing Home, Central Institute for the Deaf, Children's Home Society of Missouri, Children's Lunch Association, Christian Orphans' Home of the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Churches, Church of the Holy Communion, Community Council of St. Louis, Community Fund of St. Louis and St. Louis County, Consumers' League of Missouri, Convent of the Good Shepherd, Disabled American Veterans of the Warld War, Epworth School for Girls, Evangelical Deaconess Home and Hospital, Federation of Jewish Charities, German General Protestant Orphans' Association, German Protestant Orphans' Home, German St. Vincent Orphan Association, Gertrude Charity Society, Girls' Industrial Home, Greeley Memorial Presbyterian Church (Institutional); Home for Aged and Infirm Israelites, Home of the Friendless, Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, Humane Society of Missouri, International Institute of the Y. COL. HOUSE, INDORSING COURT, GOES ABROAD

Will Visit Clemenceau on Four-Months' Tour of Principal Cities.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Advocating the International Court of Justice, but remaining silent on the question as to whether the next Democratic National Convention would incorporate in its platform a plank advocating that the United States enter the League of Nations, Col. E. M. House, former confidential adviser and intimate friend of Woodrow Wilson, sailed today with Mrs. House for a four-months' trip throughout the principle cities of Europe.

Col. House declared the only way to understand international problems was to be on the ground where the problem arose. He said he had been going abroad every year for 25 years and the only way to have first hand knowledge of events was to make personal observations. He said he made his first ocean trip when a boy of 7 years on the old steamship Java.

"While abroad I shall visit former Premier Clemenceau at his little cabin at Vendee," said the Colonel. "I have been in written communication with him and he has told me that his trip to the United States rejuvenated him."

The former presidential adviser said while abroad he would visit Richard Washburn Child, United States Ambassador to Italy, and hoped to have a talk with Lord Robert Cecil in London.

An effort was made to have House comment on the prohibition law but he smiled and said: "My only view on that is that I abide by and respect the law." He would make no comment on the present disturbances in the Ruhr. He plans to return to the United States Sept. 6, landing at Boston.

"What the Democratic National Convention will do I have no knowledge," he said, "and, as to whether the League of Nations will be one of the issues of the convention is a question which lies upon the laps of the gods." He believed a majority of the Democratic Senators at the next meeting of Congress would support the International Court, with probably only three or four dissensions.

UTILITIES MAKE APPEAL

Call on People to Assist Them in Developing Resources.

An appeal to the people of the State for an understanding of their problems and for assistance in developing natural and industrial resources was made by the Missouri Association of Public Utilities in a resolution adopted at the final sesesion of the three-day convention on the steamer Harry G. Drees yesterday. The utilities, the resolution said, have a keen realization of their duty and responsibility. The resolution says that with the extension of transmission lines so that one company serves from 10 to 50 towns and communities, the development and regulation of these companies has become a matter of Statewide policy.

H. C. Blackwell, general manager of the Kansas City Power & Light Co., was elected president of the association; J. D. Von Maur, Laclede Gas Light Co., first vice president; C. L. Proctor, Joplin, second vice president; Wiley F. Corl, Mexico, third vice president; and F. D. Beardslee, St. Louis, secretary-treasurer.

BELGIUM FEARS EFFECT OF RUHR COMMUNISM

Note to France Viewed as Effort to Straighten Out Economic Tangle.

By FERDINAND TUOHY.
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, May 26.—The note handed Premier Poincare on behalf of Premier Theunis of Belgium last night is likely to be the third most important milestone since the Ruhr adventure started. The first two were Brussels promulgation of progressive evacuation, made in mid-March, and receipt of the German reparation offer the beginning of this month.

The Belgians are being pushed by circumstances. Racked by grave labor trouble, which almost led to revolution in Antwerp in the last three days, the Brussels Government is thoroughly fearful of establishment of a communist rule next door in the Ruhr. It quite fails to see eye to eye with M. Poincare, who, while prosecuting communists at home, is standing neutral in the Ruhr, if not actually hoping for further red coups.

Plan of Belgians.

So the Belgians have gotten down to business. Their note first contains the Belgian scheme for making Germany pay. This was obviously drawn up by the business man, Premier Theunis, and seeks to assess the Reich's resources at the present time.

It suggests allied monopolies of tobacco, sugar, alcohol, exploiting the railroads and a special customs regime. While abiding by progressive evacuation, M. Theunis suggests England and Italy be taken back at once into the allied councils and the following manner:

France and Belgium should address a joint note to the other two stating their minimum demands which should be agreed on in Paris next week. Judging by Poincare's Temps tonight, which calls for resumption of interallied diplomatic exchanges, this will probably be accepted by France.

Belgium next takes a firm stand over the French hint that as her indebtedness is canceled, so she will be prepared to reduce the German indemnity by cancelling the worthless C bonds. The Belgians politely point out that having no war debt they are disinterested, but should a reduction be made, they will insist on 10 per cent of any payments, instead of 8 as at present.

Concessions Expected.

Because of economic failure of the occupation, M. Poincare will probably make large concessions to the Belgian view. His recent assertion the occupation had actually been profitable—it costs France 1,600,000 francs a day—is smiled at even by his best friends.

If some few million more francs have been squeezed from Germany than the 231,000,000 he was obliged to ask for by way of Ruhr credits, the general lost to France has been colossal. Her money has depreciated 10 per cent, three-quarters of her blast furnaces are closed; she is getting one-twentieth of the fuel the Reich formerly gave her; all other reparations in kind and cash have ceased.

Poincare promised the Ruhr would be an economic success. It manifestly is not. What, then, is he after? The French Premier started off as an annexationist, but finding public opinion against it so strong abroad and at home and particularly in Belgium, he modified his stand into one of bargaining or pressure, call it what you will, to be exerted on Britain and the United States.

He wants all his debts canceled, he wants a sort of pacific security pact applied to the Rhine with English and American signatures and he wants allied pressure on Germany to produce 26,000,000,000 gold marks for France.

He proclaims he will not quit the Ruhr, anyhow, but it is probable the military, distinct from the civil occupation, would cease if the above demands were met.

SHRINERS ENTERTAINED HERE; TO RESUME TRIP TOMORROW

Caravan Reclaims 22 Automobiles Shipped After Muddy Roads in Kansas Delayed Journey.

Sixty Shriners from California and other Western states, who started on a transcontinental automobile trip to Washington, D. C., to attend the Shrine Imperial Council, June 4-7, arrived in St. Louis yesterday afternoon by train. They reclaimed their 22 automobiles, shipped here from Kansas City to regain time lost on bad roads in Kansas, and will resume their motor trip today, leaving at 7 a. m. for Terre Haute, Ind.

The motor caravan left Oakland, Cal., May 1, and kept on schedule time until muddy roads in Kansas were encountered. Fear of similar roads in Missouri caused the tourists to ship their cars to St. Louis when Kansas City was reached. The visitors were guests of local Shriners at dinner last night at Hotel Statler.

SAYS YOUTH HAS RADICAL IDEAS

Admiral Moffett Cautions the Young in Talk to Boys.

CHICAGO, May 26.—There are too many radical ideas in the minds of young people at present, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, former commandant at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, told members of the American Sentinel today.

Rear Admiral Moffett and Dr. George T. Harding of Columbus, O., brother of President Harding, were guests of honor at the annual athletic and Mardi Gras of the boys' organization today.

FRENCH EXECUTE SCHLAGELER FOR TERROR CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, May 26.—Albert Schlageler was executed by French troops today for sabotage on railroads in the occupied regions and other offenses. He was shot in a stone quarry near a cemetery and his body was delivered forthwith to the cemetery authorities. This is the first execution in the occupied zone. Schlageler was escorted to the quarry by two priests and went unfalteringly to his death. Ten shots were fired.

Besides sabotage, Schlageler, a former Prussian officer, was convicted by a French courtmartial of espionage and association with criminals. He admitted he had blown up railroad tracks and bridges. The French regarded him as a chief of the murder gangs which have been carrying on a campaign of terror against the occupation of the Ruhr.

A strong protest gainst the execution of Schlageter was made this afternoon to the French by Herr Lutterbeck, Acting District President of the German administration. It complained of this measure carried out by the French military upon a German citizen on German soil.

"A dollar a day" is the slogan being used by the workmen in many cities throughout the Ruhr in their strike demands for higher pay. They desire to be paid in American money, because of the instability of the mark, and point to the use by the French of the dollar unit in imposing fines against the Ruhr municipalities.

U. S. SEEKS ORDER TO ENJOIN 40 FIRMS IN SAN FRANCISCO

Complaint in Equity Charges Conspiracy to Monopolize Building Trade Industry.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—The United States Attorney filed in Federal Court here today a complaint in equity which seeks a permanent injunction to restrain 40 firms and individuals from conspiring to monopolize trade and commerce in the building industry. The complaint was filed under the Sherman anti-trust law.

The firms and individuals named in the complaint recently were acquitted in a State court here when they were tried on criminal charges of violating the State anti-trust law.

The complaint alleged the defendants, including the California Industrial Council, the Industrial Association of Santa Clara County, the Builders' Exchange of San Jose, and the Master Plumbers' Association, have conspired for three years to restrain trade and commerce in the building industry.

The court is asked to declare the defendants to have formed illegal combinations to dissolve them and to restrain them from forming new associations.

CHINA COMPLIES WITH U. S. DEMANDS IN COLTMAN CASE

Apology, Dismissals and Payment of $25,000 Indemnity Promised for American's Death.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Minister Schurman at Pekin cabled the State Department today that the Chinese Government had "complied with the demands of the United States" for restitution for the killing of Charles Coltman, the American merchant shot to death last December by Chinese soldiers.

"The Chinese Government," said an announcement by the Department, "made a formal apology for the incident, which was not considered sufficient by this Government. As the outcome of prolonged negotiations, the Military Governor, Gen. Chang, consented to make a personal apology to the American Minister at Pekin; and the Chinese Government has agreed to pay an indemnity of $25,000; and to dismiss, by presidential mandate, the chief of staff, the officer immediately responsible for the shooting. Other officers concerned, the adjutant and assistant adjutant were also dismissed by order of the Ministry of War."

MRS. PHILIP N. MOORE CALLS ON HUGHES WITH INVITATION

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Women of intelligence and responsibility must interest themselves in eugenics "to make America safe for Democracy," Dr. Elizabeth B. Thelberg, of Vassar College today told the board of directors of the National Council of Women.

"We must improve the race," Dr. Thelberg insisted, "if our republic is to be protected from the Moron vote."

Dr. Thelberg and Mrs. Philip N. Moore, of St. Louis, president of the council, visited Secretary Hughes this afternoon and invited the Government to take part in the International Council of Women meeting here in 1925. The proposal was taken under consideration by Mr. Hughes.

HARDING'S REPLY TO GARY IS CAUSE OF APPREHENSION

Republican Leaders Fear Disagreement Over 8-Hour Day May Bring Trouble to Party.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Harding's disagreement with Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation, on the subject of the eight-hour day has jarred Republican leaders who fear it may presage a split between the party heads and the chiefs of industry.

The President's frank expression of "disappointment" over the refusal of Judge Gary to abolish the 12-hour day for one of eight is regarded as an acceptance of the challenge thrown down by the steel trust magnate. Under the circumstances it is believed the President will have to yield the point in controversy, of making further public efforts to bring about the proposed change, if for no other reason than to demonstrate the sincerity with which he has hitherto stood for the short working day.

Would Remove Barriers.

Back of the Gary statement is seen a new effort to break down the present immigration law—an effort which organized labor will be quick to combat. The attitude of opposition to the White House in the 12-hour day recalls the fight over the last railroad strike settlement when the railway heads flouted the President. It is acknowledged there has been bad feeling between the White House and certain railway leaders over that issue which has continued and the President only a short time ago in a letter to a representative of the striking railroad men in New Jersey criticised the heads of railways who had failed to make a settlement with their striking employes.

The compromise plan which President Harding suggested at the time of the railway strike was bitterly resented by some of the railway leaders. Their plans had been thoroughly made at that hime, in conjunction with industrial leaders and general leaders elsewhere to force the issue with organized labor and make a fight for a general reduction of wages all along the line.

While the President's formula for the settlement of a strike was rejected by some of the railway heads it effectually stopped any plans for the big fight for wage reductions. The President was regarded as having muddled the situation. The Daughterty injunction against the railway strikers caused labor to feel even more antagonistic to the administration than the industrial leaders who had been balked in their effort to hammer down wages.

Views of Challenge.

Republican leaders view the challenge to the administration thrown down by Judge Gary with differing emotions. Some of them welcome it in the hope that it will lessen the solidarity of labor opposition to the party in power while others see in it a threat of cutting off large campaign contributions in the future.

Judge Gary's reference to the scarcity of labor is interpreted as a reopening of the fight to let down the immigration bars. Efforts are already on foot to secure skilled labor from England under the provision of the immigration law which permits them to enter, under certain conditions. The difficulty faced in this effort is the fact that the British quota is filled and the Immigration Bureau so far has refused to overrule the quota law as it affects Great Britain.

30 MORE LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS FINED $100 EACH

Penalties Collected During Present Term of Federal Court Here Total $58,150.

Federal Judge Dyer yesterday imposed fines of $100 each against 30 defendants who pleaded guilty of violating the national prohibition laws. The arraignments were the last of a long docket at this term of the Federal Court.

At the beginning of the call Judge Faris let it be known he had changed his policy of imposing jail sentences in cases where sales or manufacture was charged, and that to induce pleas in order to clean up the congested docket he would assess fines, unless the case were aggravated. Judge Faris' fines ranged from $140 to $500, and the average was something over $200.

Judge Dyer took the bench May 12, when Judge Faris was called to sit with the Court of Appeals at St. Paul. He made the fines lighter than had Judge Faris. There was $58,150 collected in fines for liquor law offenses during the term.

Kiwanians on Way to Convention.

Special cars of delegates bound for the international convention of the Kiwanis Club, which meets in Atlanta, Ga., tomorrow, arrived in St. Louis yesterday from Denver, Kansas City and Kansas points, and were entertained by the local Kiwanis Club on an automobile ride and at luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association. A special train carrying these delegates and those from St. Louis, Sedalia and other Missouri towns, departed for the convention over the Louisville & Nashville Railroad at 4:20 p. m.

DELAY IN PAYMENT OF AMERICAN WAR CLAIMS INDICATED

Reluctance of Allies to Allow Expenses of Army of Occupation, It Is Said, Shows Tendency.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

(Copyright, 1923.)

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Settlement of the controversy over America's claim for the expenses of the Army of Occupation on the Rhine ends one of the most disagreeable chapters in American diplomacy. It threatened not only to cause a breach between the United States and the Allied Powers, but it probably has done already more harm toward the cause of international co-operation than anything else since the war.

No doubt of the legality of the American claim for reimbursement ever has existed. The armistice agreement specifically provided that expenses for the occupying armies should constitute a prior claim against Germany. The allies collected a certain sum, but did not reimburse America. The withdrawal of the American forces from the Rhine was as much due to the handling of the expense account as it was to the complications in the Ruhr.

Allied Attitude Puzzling.

Just why the United States should have had to battle for months with the diplomats of the European Powers on a claim that was plainly established has not been clear and probably never will be. The impression that America was so wealthy that it could afford to ignore a relatively small sum like $250,000,000, especially at a time when many billions of reparations were not being collected by the allies, dominated the minds of the Europeans and they confidently expected the United States to waive the matter. As it is, America does not now get her share of the cash already collected by the allies for Rhine Army expenses, but has simply a promise of future payments.

There almost developed incidentally a serious political embarrassment for President Harding out of this controversy. The Republican National Committee headquarters hearing of the exasperation of some of the American officials over the attitude of the allies, issued some caustic comments about the allies in which references to "crooked" nations abroad and their attempts to bilk the American people were conspicuous. The Department of State heard about it and so did the President and National Committee headquarters was asked to withdraw the statement, which it did with the public announcement that the Department of State wanted it withdrawn.

Fun for Democrats.

The Democratic National Committee has had some partisan fun out of the episode, pointing out that discord reigns in Republican ranks and that the left hand doesn't know what the right is doing and so on. Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee is away from Washington. The publicity men who issued the statement have had a free hand and in recent weeks have issued other statements which the administration itself might have wished to modify.

The President, at his regular meeting with the correspondents on Friday, brushed aside the mixup at Republican publicity headquarters and pointed to the satisfactory settlement of the main controversy over Rhine army expenses. He naturally would like to forget all about the outgivings of the National Committee on the subject for it was embarrassing. Out of it may come the fixing of more definite responsibility for the issuance of publicity statements under the auspices of the committee.

Tendency of Allies.

Apart from the domestic phases of the controversy and the certain use which opponents of co-operation with Europe are bound to make of the allies' attitude over a valid claim for expenses, there is another disappointment in connection with the diplomacy manifested in this case. It is the tendency of the allies to fight tooth and nail against the payment to America of any sums which might otherwise go to their reparations fund.

This means a delay in the settlement of the claims of American citizens against Germany. It may yet force the retention by Congress of alien property or some plan whereby the income from these properties is made to pay American claims.

Certainly the allies have shown that they consider all sums available from Germany to belong more logically to them for restoration of devastated territory and other war claims than for any American pocketbooks. The legal battles over war claims will be with the allies and not Germany. And the time and trouble taken in settling the expenses of the American army for occupying the Rhine after the armistice—a work undertaken at the request of the allies and for moral effect and not military purposes—does not augur for an easy collection of American war claims.

Oswald Garrison Villard Tells Why Henry Ford Should Not Be Elected President of U. S.

His Mental Processes Weak, Without Yankee Gumption, Plays a Lone Hand and Is Dangerously Uncontrolled, Declares Student of Politics.

An article on "Why Henry Ford Should Not Be President," by Oswald Garrison Villard, published in the issue of The Nation for May 30, is reprinted below, in part:

"In my opinion he could realize his supreme ambition if he were to follow the example of a good shoemaker and stick to his last, that is, to the human and production problems in industry, and leave national, international and racial problems alone." Thus wrote Dr. Samuel S. Marquis upon the political ambitions of Henry Ford. No one could know Mr. Ford better than the man who has been for years his candid friend, his pastor, and his employe. For three years the head of the sociological department of the Ford Motor Co., Dr. Marquis has seen the inside of that amazing organization as have few others; and the results of his observation of Henry Ford the man, the manufacturer and the employer, he has set forth in a volume of collected magazine studies, "Henry Ford, an Interpretation," just published. It is a book of especial significance at this time, but it is remarkable in itself for its extraordinary detachment and its refreshing honesty. • • • Should Mr. Ford be nominated for the presidency this book ought to be placed in the hands of every voter. For on almost every page are convincing reasons why he should not be sent to the White House. • • •

Dr. Marquis feels the menace of that candidacy throughout his study of the man, precisely as he reveals his belief in the unfitness of Henry Ford for the presidency. Every detached observer who has studied the career of Henry Ford and knows the requirements of the greatest of offices at this juncture in the affairs of humanity must shudder at the thought of this man being in control of our national destinies. This is not because he is an uneducated man. . . . There are unschooled men who have natural aptitudes and good horse sense whom one would trust in any position. They have the inborn wisdom and patience of Lincoln; they have achieved an understanding of human nature; and, above all, they are rooted in fixed principles.

Lacking in Yankee Gumption.

But Henry Ford is not one of these, despite his amazing successes. The milk of human kindness is not within him, though he may be charitable and philanthropic. He is without the traits to offset the blanks in his scanty education. He is without a quality for which I can find no better word than the old-fashioned Yankee "gumption," which has helped so many a man over obstacles otherwise insuperable. He is without that patience which is wisdom and beyond price. He has no philosophy of the universe upon which to build. "He has," records Dr. Marquis, "the not uncommon conviction among mortals that he has a real message for the world, a real service to render to mankind." He would like, so Mr. Ford himself has said, "to make the world a little better for having lived in it." Yet with this laudable ambition he has not learned to control and subordinate his self, or to think things through, or to order his mind. Dr. Marquis is quite clear on the latter point: "He (Ford) has in him the makings of a great man, the parts lying about in more or less disorder. If Henry Ford were properly assembled! If he would only do in himself that which he has done in his factory!" There lies the reason for his intellectual failure and the eminent danger of putting him in any position in which his mental processes would be compelled to make far-reaching decisions outside the realm of automobiles and factories, and the multiple production. It is the reason why, in my judgment, it would be possible to stop at any one of the great factories that line the New Haven Railroad between New York and New Haven and pick out in each one some foreman earning $50 a week with no better education than Henry Ford, who would be a far safer choice for the White House than the richest man in the world.

Mental Process Weak.

Inevitably my mind goes back to the day when Henry Ford announced his peace ship, not merely because I was with him and was the second man to be asked to go on the Oscar II and the first to decline (on the spot), but because that episode illustrates so clearly the weakness of the man's mental processes. I am quite of Dr. Marquis' opinion that the motive behind that venture "was a laudable one" . . .

It was the mind of a suspicious child with which we had to deal; a mind without the necessary background of history and human experience to think its way through the first essentials of such a vast human problem. The instinct was sound; the necessary gumption lacking. So he and his guests went to sea in the Oscar II without his having even had the business sense to see for himself if those who had gotten him into the venture had any real assurances that their argosy would be welcomed by the neutral nations, to say nothing of the belligerents. . . . One dreads to think what a mind like this might do if intrusted with the handling of our foreign affairs.

To this a distinguished Republican Senator replied the other day that he would be willing to take a chance on that because Henry Ford would surround himself with able men. But this was precisely the argument advanced on behalf of Warren Harding when he was a candidate—and look what we got! More than that, there are certain traits in Henry Ford which were the worst traits developed by Woodrow Wilson during his sojourn in the White House. He plays a lone hand. Dr. Marquis even goes so far as to say that if Ford were President we should have a cheap administration because he would dispense with the Cabinet and a good many executives. Just as Mr. Wilson secluded himself more and more, so Henry Ford has said to an employe: "You know me too well; hereafter I am going to see to it that no man comes to know me as intimately as you do." Of Mr. Wilson the same words have been written which Dr. Marquis uses in describing Henry Ford: "The isolation of Henry Ford's mind is about as near perfect as it is possible to make it. For this reason the confidence born in him of success along one line never forsakes him when he enters other spheres of thought and action. Adverse criticism reaches him, of course, but it does not penetrate." Elsewhere this biographer speaks of Ford's "one-way mind"—ominous reminiscence of a "one-track mind" in the White House! . . .

Dangerously Uncontrolled.

Dr. Marquis deplores and cannot defend the fact that Ford has quarreled with and discharged all the magnificent group of men who with him built his success. Every one of these men has been forced out of the company. Sometimes the quarrel was open and resulted in litigation; sometimes they were just dropped out. Sometimes subordinates have been thrown out under circumstances that reflect the utmost discredit upon Ford himself and reveal a side to his character that stamps him as at moments dangerously uncontrolled. Dr. Marquis observes that in many cases in which gross injustice was done to employes, Henry Ford, when cognizant of the facts, refused to lift a finger to right the wrong.

It is not surprising that Dr. Marquis adds: "It is sufficiently painful and humiliating to be brought face to face with unemployment and all that follows—loss of income and of savings, accumulations of debts, eviction and hunger—without being kicked like a dog into it." Elsewhere he squarely places upon Mr. Ford's own shoulders the responsibility for this policy of "treat 'em rough" which seems to pervade the organization. More than 80 men in one department went home one evening without any intimation whatever that they were dismissed. "They came to work the next morning to find their desks and chairs taken from the room in which they worked. They were left to find out as best they could that they had been fired. The request to be permitted to tell men in a decent, gentlemanly manner that the company no longer required their services met with refusal." More than that, some employes came to work to find their desks smashed with an ax—a kind of sadistic vengeance which in no wise suggests the self-control and sense of justice which surely are requisite in any one who would guide the destinies of 115,000,000 of Americans. What if Henry Ford were President: if he became angry with some country whose methods he could perhaps not comprehend, would he not use our army and navy precisely as he turned to the ax to destroy his own property in the spirit fo an angry child or of a defective? More than that, he is the victim of great gusts of passion as "sudden and terrible as those which break over the tropics." What havoc would not such storms create in the executive mansion?

Opposes All Unionism.

To my mind labor has gone strangely wrong in its attitude toward Henry Ford. True he gives a $6 a day minimum wage, but as Dr. Marquis says, there was no excuse for a company in such a position not giving the original $5 a day. It is also true that he has a fine social philosophy as to the "down and out" and the ex-convict, that his theory of well-paid work as the salvation for most human shipwrecks is eminently sound. But these things do not offset the absolute despotism of the Ford management, its bitter opposition to all unionism, its refusal to introduce co-operation, and its working human beings at a terrific speed at such monotonous jobs as must inevitably affect the mental and physical health of those who labor for hours at one single, never-varying task. No, the American laboring men my be spellbound by the success of this mechanic who toiled with his hands, but they will err, indeed, if by their votes they place him in the position of ruling over the country's destinies.

Now, it would not be just, of course, to judge Mr. Ford solely upon the acts set forth above. Beyond question he is a genius in his own field, and his desire to create more work in the world for human beings is altogether to his credit. The fact that his companies continue to do well after the loss of all his earlier associates and executives shows that Mr. Ford is master of his business. His ability to get on without going to the banks for aid when he was apparently in distress several years ago is another achievement which reflects luster upon his industrial generalship. He is the only man I know who can do things that would ruin any other capitalist and still "get away with it." There seems to be no limit to his power of industrial achievement. • • •

Mr. Ford is beyond question philanthropic—he does give money away. There is a hospital upon which he has lavished millions, and he has doubtless done many private acts of generosity, though it seems to me he has by no means mastered either the art or the happiness of giving on a large scale. • • • He, too, apparently feels that he can do no wrong; he, too, looks with suspicion and positive hatred upon anyone who hares to oppose him or to thwart him.

No Regret at Ignorance.

Nor has Mr. Ford ever expressed any regret at his own lack of educational opportunities. He has all the readiness, as the peace-ship venture showed, of the successful business man to consider himself fitted to deal with all sorts of questions without adequate preparation therefor. • • • Take Henry Ford's crusade against the Jews. I attribute it to nothing else than utter ignorance. He fell for the long-since exploded and overworked protocols and every old slander—I have no doubt that if he does not believe in ritualistic murders it is only because he has not been plausibly told about them. So in the matter of finance, Henry Ford is utterly unsound. He would be guided by the fiat-money views of his friend Thomas Edison rather than by the opinion of the most liberal and detached students of finance and economics. • • •

Yet there is no doubt that the movement for Henry Ford is very strong, and in the face of Dr. Marquis' testimony to his former employer's tremendous political ambition, it is impossible to take seriously the interviews which are beginning to appear setting forth that Ford is really not a candidate. Let anyone who is interested talk with the Ford agents; let him examine what is being done in certain States to nominate him in the presidential primary; let him investigate the reports of the opening of Ford headquarters in various cities, and then let him read the announcement that if the public wants Henry Ford for President it will have to draft him. One can then draw one's own conclusions. The plain people are convinced that he is just one of them who has broken the bank, who played the luckiest card ever played by any mortal and carried off the largest sweepstakes from the green-baize table of fate. They believe that somehow or other in some miraculous way he will make over the Government of the United States into that efficient, up-to-date, smooth-working organization it ought to be, and if he makes it over on the lines of his numerous properties nobody will object. They like him because, being rich, he still hates Wall street and refuses to be drawn into it. They don't mind if he makes Fords and drives a Rolls-Royce, nor that he lives in a big and particularly ugly house. They are tired, supremely tired, of politicians of the Harding type and others of the college-president type. They want a successful man of themselves to try his hand at the Government game and bring them some relief. The farmers are crying out for him. He gave them the tractor; they would like to see him try to solve their other problems.

Sees Disaster If Ford Is Elected.

So that is why the best-informed political observers say that if Ford is nominated on the Democratic ticket he will sweep the country. That is why many of them think that even without the indorsement of either of the major parties he can run on a third ticket and be elected. If either contingency should come to pass the result would be disastrous to Henry Ford and to the country; it might readily bring about the complete collapse of our governmental machinery, which is steadily sagging to the breaking-point. It would be the triumph of the unfit; it would probably be the final attempt in American political life to fill the Presidency on the theory that any American, no matter what his education, his experience, his talent or his knowledge, is equal to the job of solving the multitude of complex problems that sometimes make it questionable whether any man can be found with all the qualities essential to a successful President of the United States.

I have been observing political conditions in the United States and writing about them for the press for 30 years. It is my deliberate belief that during that time no candidate has been suggested as absolutely unfit for the White House as Henry Ford.

3 COUPLES WIN ANCIENT TROPHY BY SWEARING TO WEDDED BLISS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 26.—There are at least three couples in England who are bold enough to admit they know how to be happy though married. Even in the face of the present long list of cases awaiting the attention of the divorce courts their statement was accepted as bona fide by a jury composed of old maids and bachelors.

This discovery of marital bliss came about through the awarding of the "Dunmow Flitch" which, being interpreted, refers to the ancient custom of bestowing a slab of bacon upon the couple who take oath while kneeling on the famous Dunmow stones that they have been married a year and a day without quarreling or wishing they were single.

The custom originated in 1244, since which time only 19 couples are on record as having qualified for the bacon. This year the jury allowed Tom Groves, a labor M. P., to take home the trophy after he and his wife had knelt on the famous stones and taken the oath. The McChester and Kent couples also fulfilled the requirements and the jury allowed them a half flitch of bacon each.

E. F.—The cedar chest and tar paper bags are both successfully used in packing away furs for the summer. The furs should be beaten lightly and thus freed from dust and loose hairs. If using the cedar chests, new cedar chips may be scattered over the fur; then wrap in a newspaper or sprinkle with camphor. It is never well to delay packing away furs until late in the season, for moths will very early commence depredations. When packing the coat or scarf, do not roll so tightly as to crush and damage the fur.

N. B.—The groom's expenses at his wedding are: 1. The engagement ring. 2. A wedding present for the bride. 3. His bachelor dinner. 4. The marriage license. 5. A personal gift to his best man and each of his ushers. 6. To each of the above he gives their wedding ties, gloves and boutonnieres. 7. The bouquet carried by the bride. 8. The wedding ring. 9. The clergyman's fee. 10. From the moment the bride and groom start off on their wedding trip all the expenditure becomes his. The bride, although she selects the dresses to be worn by her bridesmaids, does not pay for them, however, she gives each of her bridesmaids a present.

A. B. C.—Aesop is the name of a famous Greek writer of fables, who is said to have been born a slave in Samos late in the seventh century, B. C., and to have gained his freedom by his cleverness. We may, however, well doubt whether he ever existed, as we have the most varied accounts of him, many of which on their face, are pure inventions, and the fables which passed under his name were certainly not written until long after the period in which he is supposed to have lived. Socrates, in prison, turned some of the current Aesopic fables into elegiac verse, and about 320 B. C. Demetrius of Phalerum made a prose collection of the fables known to his day. Whatever are the facts as to Aesop's existence, it is certain his name soon became a generic one attached to those beast fables which are part of the common property of the Indo-European peoples. The collection which now bears his name is for the most part prose paraphrases made by Babrius.

IN MEMORIAM

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.
Sadly missed by THE FAMILY.

In memory of my dear husband, Frank Donovan, who departed this life one year ago, May 27, 1922.
You are gone but not forgotten, and never will be. Sadly missed by HIS WIFE, MRS. CORA DONOVAN, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Barbara Fritzinger, who was called from us May 23, 1922.
Peaceful be your rest, dear mother—
'Tis sweet to breathe your name.
We loved you very dear in life,
In death we do the same.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Will H. Bollman, who departed this life six years ago, May 27, 1917.
Day by day we sadly miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sadness,
That's within our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by his wife, daughter, and many who loved him. (c)

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Louis, who departed this life, May 28, 1922.
Today recalls sad memories
Of the loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
MR. AND MRS. G. H. VOGT AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Flora Budek, who died May 25, 1922.
Some time some day an eye shall meet
The face we loved so well.
Some time our hands shall press in her's
And never say farewell;
Her merry laugh we hear no more,
Her voice we loved is still
And all that is left for memory
Is a grave on a distant hill.
Sadly missed by her daughters and sons.
MRS. A. GERDES, MRS. E. FINK, PHIL AND JOHN BUDEK.

Nor shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory lasts
We shall remember thee.
Sadly missed by: THE CHILDREN. (c)

In memory of our darling mother, Mrs. Francis Donewald who departed this life May 27, 1922.
She bade no one a last farewell,
She said goodby to none,
Her loving heart had ceased to beat,
And before we knew it she was gone.
And when we lost you, dear mother,
We lost our dearest pal.
We love you and we miss you
And forever shall.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN(c)

In loving memory of our darling baby, Geraldine Lenz, who departed this life, May 24, 1920.
Dear is the grave
Where our loved one is laid,
Sweet is the memory,
That never shall fade.
Loving hearts shall ever linger
Around the grave, where you are laid.
Sadly missed by mother, sister, grandmother, auntie and all who loved her.

In loving remembrance of Rev. Daniel Graef, who passed away five years ago, May 27, 1918.
God's golden sun is shining,
Upon our father's grave;
The one we loved so dearly,
And tried so hard to save;
And when we lost our father
We lost our dearest friend.
We love you and we miss you,
And surely always will.
So rest in peace, dear father,
Your face in heaven's bower.
The day when we will meet you
Grows nearer every hour.
Sadly missed by
MRS. DANIEL GRAEF AND CHILDREN.

WOMAN, HELD IN DRY RAID, NAMES CONSTABLE

Warrant for Caseyville Official Charges Extortion—Six Others Named in "Moonshine" Case.

Warrants were issued yesterday at Belleville against Charles Colanski and his wife, Annie, and William Scharden, living near Caseyville, John Zagar of East St. Louis and Mike Evenoski of Fairmount City, charging them with violating the prohibition law, and against John Staten, a constable of Caseyville, charging him with extortion. They were based on information obtained when Sheriff Schnipper and three deputies, Friday, raided a still on the farm of John Jenkins, one and a half miles southeast of Caseyville.

Jenkins, who some time ago, rented his farm to Scharden, became suspicious there was a still being operated on the farm and swore out a search warrant. The spot to which he directed the officers in the hills could not be reached by automobile. After they left their machine they had a cross a footbridge which was in view from the house. They were seen and two women fled to the woods.

One of them was found in the underbrush. She proved to be Mrs. Colenski. The other woman escaped. Mrs. Colenski admitted she had been operating the 70-gallon still which the officers found, together with 32 barrels of mash and 15 gallons of "monshine" whsiky, and named her husband, Scharden, Zagar and Evenoski as being interested in it. She also said that Constable Staten had demanded $50 for "protecting" the still and that she had given him the money. Zagar and Scharden were arrested. The others are being sought.

News Field of the National Capital with Federal Government Press Agent of Own Activities

Correspondent of Baltimore Sun Tells Missouri Journalism Students How Presidents, Secretaries of State and Others Confide in Newspaper Men.

A VIEW of the news field of Washington, with the Federal Government appearing as press agent for its own activities, was given to the students of the Missouri University School of Journalism, and Journalism Week guests at Columbia, in a talk made Wednesday by J. Frederick Essary, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun.

"I wonder," the speaker said, "if you realize the extent of the news field of Washington as it has developed with the growth of Governmental activities, or have stopped to consider the enormous volume of news printed in American newspapers under Washington date lines. This is accounted for by the fact that Washington is no longer a political center merely. The Federal Government has reached far afield in recent years and has drawn practically all national interests toward the capital of the republic. This centralization extends to the railroads, which are largely controlled through the Interstate Commerce Commission; to banking and credit, which are controlled through the Federal Reserve Board and the Treasury; to foreign and domestic commerce, which maintain constant contact with the Department of Commerce; to ordinary businesses which are regulated through the Federal Trade Commission; to labor, which is represented in the Government, and in the Cabinet itself by the Department of Labor; to American shipping, which is dominated by the Shipping Board, and so on down the line.

News Field Broad.

"Practically every great national interest has its nerve center in Washington, either in Congress or in the administrative departments of the Government, thereby broadening enormously that field of newsgathering.

"The Federal Government is engaged in propaganda. Every executive department is seeking publicity. In virtually every department there is a chief of the bureau of information, which is merely a polite title for a departmental press agent. The boards and commissioners of the House and Senate who can afford such a luxury, engage the services of former newspaper men or professional press agents to keep them favorably before the public.

"It has been a practice of certain statesmen for decades to employ active newspaper men to write their speeches. One colleague of mine made a specialty of memorial addresses, to be delivered upon the death of a Senator or of a Congressman. On one occasion he inadvertently disposed of the same funeral speech to two legislators who by a curious coincidence delivered the solemn address on the same day and in memory of the same departed brother. Neither listened to the speech of the other, and the duplication was not discovered until after the Congressional Record had been printed.

No Censorship of News.

"There is no censorship in Washington, and there has been none except that voluntarily submitted to by the men during the period of the war. And I might add right here that the censorship of that period is a tribute to the professional integrity of the 500 or more men who fought the war on their typewriters in Washington. There was scarcely a day during that time when we did not receive in confidence, military and naval secrets which would have been invaluable to the enemy. We knew week by week how many men were being landed in France and the identity of the troops. We knew in detail the system of convoy of the transports. We knew how many naval vessels were engaged in the anti-submarine campaign off the Irish coast and how many naval units were in the North Sea. We knew of the great project to blockade the German submarine base, by a mine barrage, from its very inception. And we knew of these things and countless others, not by snooping around the War and Navy Departments, not by burrowing in, but we knew them direct from the men in command. This vital information came straight from the Secretary of War or the Chief of Staff of the Army, and from the Secretary of the Navy and his chief of operations.

"Not one time from first to last, so far as I know, was one breach of faith committed. Although we were in possession of highly important facts from the first day of the war to the last, facts which would have made big first page news, we guarded those facts as jealously as if they had been family skeletons and even debated the propriety of confiding so much as a line of what we knew to our own editors.

"This censorship, be it remembered, was self-imposed. There was no law to enforce it. The Creel Committee was there, it is true, but its mission was to release publishable news, not to suppress that which was not publishable. The Government guarded all cable and wireless communication to prevent information of value to the enemy from getting out of the country, but no such guard stood over the wires radiating out of Washington. None was necessary. American newspaper writers were patriots and needed no overlord to dictate or to delete their stories. All they needed was a measure of guidance as to material which should or should not be used, and the Government set up an efficient organization to provide that guidance.

Editors Also Co-Operated.

"Nor was the wartime conduct of Washington correspondents more to their credit than was the conduct of American newspapers in general. Practically all of them suppressed their enthusiasm for big vital news when it involved anything which the enemy might seize upon. Thousands of stories of one sort or another filtered into the newspaper offices of the country but where the slightest doubt existed as to the propriety of carrying these stories, they were referred to Washington for verification and release. If a release was refused on a given story, it was killed, notwithstanding the fact that no legal obligation rested upon the editor either to submit his story to tfitsafciedltip mfwcmfcmm mf the Government or to hold it out of the paper.

"There is a curious Senate tradition that the executive sessions of that body are sacred and that nothing which takes place behind the closed doors must be reported. Although Senators sitting in secret session are honor bound not to reveal anything that is said in executive debates, the proceedings of such sessions are almost invariably and accurately reported in the newspapers. These leads have resulted in many indignation meetings on the part of strict constructionist Senators in days gone by and many futile investigations have been ordered in an effort to dry up the sources of executive session information.

"In this general connection I am reminded of an amusing circumstance that developed a decade or so ago. There came to town about that time, George G. Hill, a new member of the New York Tribune staff. Not knowing the routine or the rule regarding the supposed inviolability of executive sessions, Hill approached the late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, one of the most austere of men, and politely asked the Senate leader what had taken place at a certain executive session. At first Hoar merely glared furiously at the correspondent, then suddenly relenting, asked if Hill were not a new arrival. Finding that Hill was a newcomer, the Senator led the young man to a dark corner and gave him full and complete account of all that had happened.

Hoar Lectured Himself.

"The next day Senator Hoar arose in his place in the Senate and in a voice that quivered with simulated wrath, he read aloud the report of the executive session, which Hill had written, reminding the Senate that it was accurate in every detail. Then turning upon his colleagues, he declared with mock solemnity that such a report could only have come from some Senator, some man who had so far forgotten his duty to his country, the sacredness of his oath and his own sense of personal honor as to reveal the secret proceedings of the Senate. Mr. Hoar then added that if the Senator responsible for that outrageous and disgraceful breach of faith were present, it was fervently hoped that he would take to heart the lecture then being delivered.

"This was the same George Hill, I might say, parenthetically, who afterward became chief of the Tribune Bureau in Washington, and who administered a rebuke to one of his new men some years ago, worthy of the best traditions of the corps of Washington correspondents. It was at the time of Jessie Wilson's marriage at the White House to Mr. Sayyre. Only representatives of the press associations were admitted to the East Room on that occasion. But a new man had come down to join the Tribune staff, a typical New Yorker, with all the cheap New York devices for getting news. He approached Hill on the night of the wedding with an air of triumph. He said he had sent his wife to bribe a White House cook to allow her inside as a helper; that she would witness the wedding in that fashion and would give the Tribune a big special story. Hill allowed his man to finish, then turned upon him savagely, saying:

"'When you have been here a little longer you will learn that Washington correspondents get their news from the front door, not the back door of the White House.'

Competition in Field Keen.

"I would not have you assume, however, that Washington correspondents do not treasure a scoop. A great news beat is as much the glory of the Washington correspondent, as it is of the reporter elsewhere. Moreover, Washington with its small army of news-gatherers is perhaps the most competitive field in the world, albeit there is more friendly co-operation among the men, that is, less of the cut-throat business than is found among rival staffs in many cities.

"One of the historic scoops which is still talked about in Washington was executed back in 1898, by Matthew Tighe of the Hearst newspapers and illustrates the fact that most beats are not matters of careful planning, but are the result of eternal vigilance.

"The war with Spain was being fought. Cervera's fleet had been bottled up in the harbor of Santiago. The thrilling voyage of the old Oregon around the Horn had just been accomplished. Hobson had made himself a hero by daringly sinking a collier in the harbor's mouth. It was not deemed probable that the Spanish men-of-war would venture forth and give battle, but would remain blockaded during an indefinite siege.

"On Saturday, the third of July, however, the Spanish Admiral, leading his column, made a mad dash for the open sea and, as you know, his fleet was destroyed in the most thrilling naval engagement which had ever taken place in the waters of the Western Hemisphere. There was no wireless in those days. Even cable communication was slow and difficult. Dispatch boats were used both by the navy and by the newspapers in making their reports and these were often delayed.

A Memorable "Beat."

"About noon on Sunday following the battle, the country still unconscious of what had taken place off Santiago, Tighe was at his post at the White House and alone. The Secretary of the Navy, John D. Long, unexpectedly emerged from the executive mansion, and as he walked away, Tighe approached him and inquired casually if there were any news.

"The Secretary believed not, but as he proceeded down the driveway, Tighe still accompanying him, he drew from his pocket a cablegram, saying:

"By the way, I have just received this message from Admiral Sampson, saying that the fleet under his command had engaged and destroyed the Spanish squadron. I have just shown it to the President. Perhaps it may be of some interest.'

"Of some interest Tighe, scarcely able to control himself as he made a copy of it, opined mildly that it might interest a few people. At the gate he said goodbye to the Secretary, after learning that Mr. Long was on his way to the home of a friend for luncheon, and would therefore scarcely be accessible to other newspaper men for several hours.

"Tighe ran like mad for the Hearst bureau and arousing a sleepy telegraph operator, flashed his great story. The Hearst newspapers were abroad with extras in half an hour, and not until these papers appeared were their rivals aware of what had happened. And it was more than two hours later before Mr. Long was found and official confirmation of the Tighe story was obtained.

Still at Hearst Bureau.

"There is a story in Washington that Tighe's great scoop so commended him to Mr. Hearst that the publisher issued an order that no man but himself should ever discharge Tighe from the Hearst service. Whether that is literally true or not, Matthew Tighe has remained on the Hearst bureau all these years and is still there, although scores of men have come and gone from that bureau in the meanwhile.

"But appreciation of this sort is not always the reward of the reporter in Washington or elsewhere. Perhaps the story of another and a more recent beat, emphasizing what I mean, would interest you. During the course of the disarmament conference in Washington the Four-Power Pacific Treaty was secretly negotiated. Many of us who were covering the conference had received faint intimation of what was going on, but it remained for A. Maurice Low, Washington correspondent of the London Morning Post, to spring the real story, including the fact of the treaty itself and all essential details of its terms.

"If this story had been printed only in London those of us who had been trimmed, so to speak, would about it, but the New York Herald not have felt particularly mortified had an arrangement to reprint all of Low's dispatches and carried the story in full.

Repudiated True Story.

"Almost as soon as the Herald reached Washington an avalanche of denials from official quarters seemed to bury it as well as to discredit it. For reasons satisfactory to themselves, those who participated in the negotiations repudiated the story. The Herald, instead of standing loyally by its reporter until the facts were known, accepted the denials at full face value and promptly apologizing for the alleged "fake," fired Low out of its columns.

"In less than a week, however, the conference formally announced the conclusion of the treaty and along the exact lines, moreover, laid down in Low's exclusive article.

"May I tell you another story involving Maurice Low and illustrating the feuds that sometimes endure between Washington correspondents and the public men with whom they have news relations. Low is an Englishman, but for many years he was the Washington correspondent of the Boston Globe. During that period of service he became involved in a bitter dispute with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, resulting in deep-seated enmity on both sides.

Vindictiveness of Lodge.

"Three times during the period of this feud, Low was recommended by British Ambassadors in Washington to their sovereign, for knighthood. And three times, Senator Lodge, becoming aware of such recommendations, intervened, and using his geat influence as a Senator and a powerful member of the Foreign Relations Committee, defeated Low's ambition. I would hesitate to believe this story or to impute such smallness to a man of Mr. Lodge's position in public life if the Senator himself had not related it in my present and with manifest pride in his achievement.

"I might add that a fourth recommendation to the Crown went forward a few months ago from Ambassador Geddes, and Senator Lodge standing aside, the newspaper man became Sir Maurice Low.

"President Roosevelt was an ardent ornithologist and spent much of his time talking birds to his friends. He once put in a hurry call for Edward B. Clark, then Washington correspondent of the Chicago Evening Post, who also had the bird hobby. Clark imagined that he had a big story coming and flashing his paper a bulletin to hold space for an important White House announcement, hurried to the executive offices. When he arrived, the President dismissed all other business before him, took Clark by the arm and leading him mysteriously out on the lawn pointed with great enthusiasm to a nest of young owls that had just been discovered.

"Some years later, in 1912, to be definite, Col. Roosevelt became a candidate for the presidential nomination against President Taft. It was one of the great political contests in recent American history. The convention was about to assemble in Chicago and the Roosevelt managers had telegraphed him to come immediately to the scene of the fight. The Colonel dashed from Oyster Bay to the convention city, arriving early in the evening. He was received by a great and noisy multitude. He had come to put his own candidacy across. With the aid of a regiment of police he had forced his way through the mob gathered about the Congress Hotel and finally landed in his apartments. It was a thrilling time and the excitement was intense. The fate of the nation seemed to hang upon this one man. It was arranged that the candidate was to see the newspaper men immediately upon his arrival, and with the crowds still urging and shouting outside and the bands still roaring, we were ushered in, perhaps 100 of us.

Talked About Birds Again.

"We formed in line to shake hands with the man of the hour, before he should address us. When about half of the line had passed, Col. Roosevelt suddenly came upon Ed. Clark. Stopping the whole reception and forgetting politics, presidencies and the rest of it, Mr. Roosevelt grabbed Clark, led him into a corner of the room and talked to him animatedly for half an hour about a new bird he had just encountered.

"I am purposely omitting a detailed story of how we get our news in Washington, how we write it and how we dispatch it. I fear that I would bore you if I confined myself too much to the mechanics of our work. It is important to know, however, that Presidents, Secretaries of State and others with whom we hold regular conferences confide much to us which we are not permitted to use, and confide even more than we are allowed to use without citing our authority. This accounts in large measure for the frequent appearance in Washington dispatches of such terms as 'it is learned upon high authority,' or 'it can be stated with offocial consent,' or 'it is declared in well-informed quarters.' Nine times out of ten, such expressions are employed to carry information or intimations which proceed straight from the President or from some other spokesman of the Government."

U. S. OPIUM CONTROL PLAN GAINS SUPPORT AT GENEVA

Four Representatives on League Committee Reported Favorable to American Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, May 26.—The American proposal for the control of opium traffic seemed today to be gaining ground among members of the Opium Advisory Committee of the League of Nations, and the American delegates are hopeful of the adoption of the main points of their plan.

China, Siam, Germany and Portugal are reported favorable, while France and Great Britain are doubtful, and Japan, Holland and India oppose the plan. The opposition stands on The Hague convention, which, it is contended, allows the use of prepared opium.

Mrs. Hamilton Wright, the American assessor on the committee, informed the meeting she was authorized by the Turks at Lausanne to say that Turkey would ratify the opium convention as part of the Lausanne treaty. This is of importance to America, which gets most of its opium and opium derivatives from Turkey.

The Social Value of an Automobile

By One of America's Best Known Psychologists

I KNOW a man, an ordinary man, who in a few months developed a personality by means of an automobile. Not much of an auto, not more than the average, and yet together in combination they enhanced each other's value to an amazing degree.

The man's achievement of personality was obtained more by accident than design. There was no ulterior motive back of his actions. He was not trying to placate anyone, he was not striving for effect, or currying favor. He is a salesman with a territory which includes St. Louis County. For years he had been fine-combing that community in the interest of his business. Suddenly it occurred to him that he might become independent of suburban cars by investing in an automobile. His company encouraged the idea and offered to share the costs.

When the newness had worn off, and he became sure of himself in a crowded thoroughfare, he drove downtown one day to the company's office. Of course the office force saw the car and admired it. It was a four-seater of good make. As they admired the car it was revealed quite spontaneously that seven of the office force had never been inside a car of any kind despite the fact that one out of every eleven people in the United States now owns an automobile.

This gave the man an idea. Ideas came to him slowly and never stayed long. This one remained. He took three of the office girls to their homes in his car one night. That was a big event in their lives and a bigger one in his. It was the first time he had given others pleasure in such a measure. He had given it because he imagined they would like it—and for no other reason.

He had some poor relations that his immediate family seldom saw. He sought them and on a Summer evening took them around Forest Park. The joy of giving joy was a new experience. The effect was immediate and to the man amazing. He became the recipient of gratitude. He knew people were getting a new conception of him—a new appraisal was in the making and he imagined he was being overestimated.

"This thing is getting too heavy for me," he said to his wife—"people are thinking that I'm a good fellow and all that sort of thing when as a matter of fact, by the use of a car I have discovered a way to make up for a dull intellect and a commonplace life."

"Keep it up!" she urged. "An automobile as a door into the Kingdom of Heaven is a new idea, but it's working!"

I have known an automobile to be the point of departure in the making of a snob. I think the influence of a car in a man's life is mostly in the opposite direction. The possession of a car launches the owner, with or without his consent, into a new ethic. A new aspect of the science of behavior comforts him. There are new rules to be observed. Not the rules that a traffic policeman is supremely concerned about, but the amenities and courtesies incumbent upon those who have put their hands to the wheel.

Personality is the sum total of the mental, moral and spiritual values in a man—plus that intangible something which cannot be defined and for which there is no name. My friend made a later discovery which his employers valued very much. The kindness of heart generated by the use of a car, increased with use and somehow spilled over in places where he sold their goods.

No man need be without the pleasure, profit and comfort which a car gives. Many cars, both new and only slightly used, are offered for sale Today in the Post-Dispatch. Let them lead you into the happiness of car ownership so that you can always look back on this day as a Red-Letter Day.

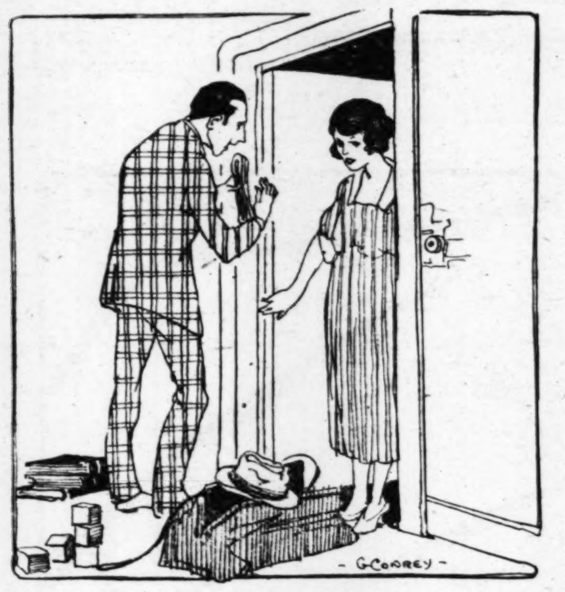
BUTTERFLIES

Add These To Your O. Henry Library

Sketches written by great American master of the short story more than 25 years ago are re-discovered—What the canvasser didn't guess—Adverse criticism as an incentive to ambition—What she wanted for the baby—Fooling the man who knew too much—A forecast of feminism—An elopement with typical O.Henry finish



He was a good salesman, but a bad guesser.

NEW writings by O. Henry! More than 25 years ago this master fictionist was trying his literary wings as a writer on the staff of the Houston Post in Texas. He wrote many sparkling stories, sketches and gems of ironical humor which had long been forgotten until they were rediscovered and brought to light recently. Not one of these writings is included in any published collection of O. Henry's works. So far as the general reading public is concerned they are new and they will no doubt be received with delight by all lovers of this facile story writer. The Post-Dispatch here publishes the first of a group of these writings. Others will follow.

GUESSED EVERYTHING ELSE.

A MAN with a long, sharp nose and a big bundle which he carried by a strap went up the steps of the gloomy-looking brick house, set his bundle down, rang the bell, and took off his hat and wiped his brow.

A woman opened the door and he said:

"Madame, I have a number of not only useful but necessary articles here that I would like to show you. First, I want you to look at these elegant illustrated books of travel and biography, written by the best authors. They are sold only by subscription. They are bound in"——

"I don't care to see them. We have sm"——

"Small children, eh? Well, madam, here are some building blocks that are very instructive and amusing. No? Well, let me show you some beautiful lace window curtains for your sitting room, handmade and a great bargain. I can"——

"I don't want them. We have sm"——

"Smoking in the house? It won't injure them in the least. Just shake them out in the morning and I guarantee not a vestige of tobacco smoke will remain. Here, also, I have a very ingenious bell for awakening lazy servants in the morning. You simply touch a button and"——

"I tell you we have sm"——

"Have smart servants, have you? Well, that is a blessing. Now, here is a clothesline that is one of the wonders of the age. It needs no pins and can be fastened to anything—fence, side of the house or tree. It can be raised or lowered in an instant, and for a large washing is the most convenient and labor-saving invention that"——

"I say we have small"——

"Oh, you have a small family. Let's see, then; I have here a"——

"I'm trying to tell you," said the woman, "that we have smallpox in the family and"——

The long-nosed man made a convulsive grab at his goods and rolled down the steps in about two seconds, while the woman softly closed the door just as a man got out of a buggy and nailed a yellow flag on the house.

CONVINCED.

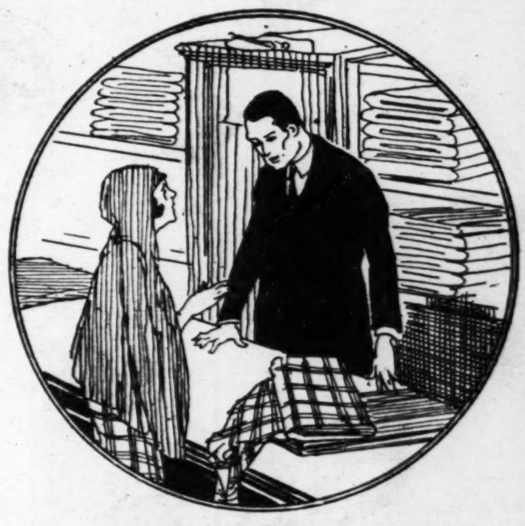
HOUSTON is the dwelling place of a certain young lady who is exceptionally blessed with the gifts of the goddess of fortune. She is very fair to look upon, bright, witty and possesses that gracious charm so difficult to describe, but so potent to please, that is commonly called personal magnetism. Although cast in such a lonely world, and endowed with so many graces of mind and matter, she is no idle butterfly of fashion, and the adulation she receives from a numerous circle of admirers has not turned her head.

She has a close friend, a young lady of plain exterior, but a sensible and practical mind, whom she habitually consults as a wise counselor and adviser concerning the intricate problems of life.

One day she said to Marian—the wise friend: "How I wish there was some way to find out who among these flattering suitors of mine is sincere and genuine in the compliments that are paid me. Men are such deceivers, and they all give me such unstinted praise, and make such pretty speeches to me, that I do not know who among them, if any, are true and sincere in their regard."

"I will tell you a way," said Marian. "The next evening when there are a number of them calling upon you, recite a dramatic poem, and then tell me how each one expresses his opinion of your effort."

The young lady was much impressed with the idea, and on the following Friday evening when some half-dozen young men were in the parlor paying her attentions, she volunteered to recite. She has not the least dramatic talent, but she stood up and went through a long poem, with many gestures and rolling of eyes, and pressing of her hands to her heart. She did it very badly, and without the least regard for the rules of elocution or expression.



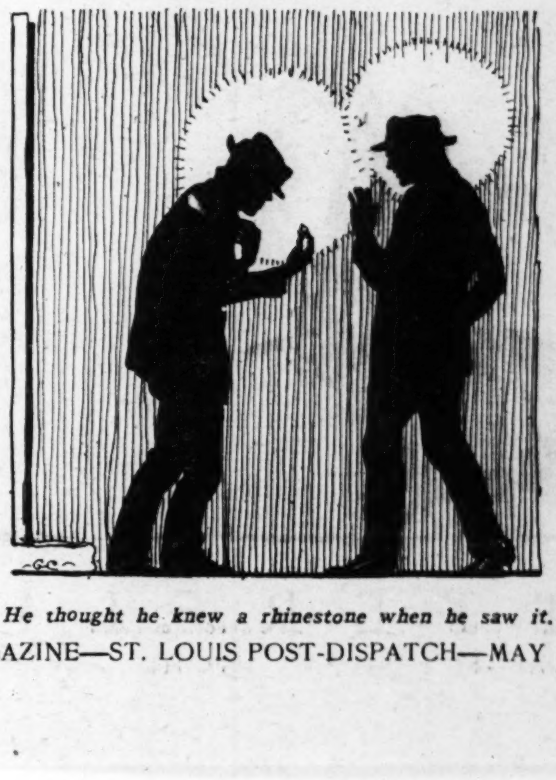
She wanted to buy something for a baby.

Later on her friend, Marian, asked her how her effort was received.

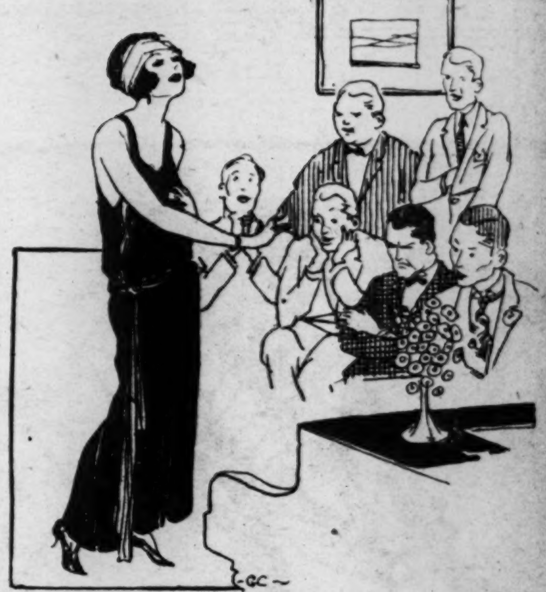
"Oh," she said, "they all crowded around me, and appeared to be filled with the utmost delight. Tom, and Henry, and Jim, and Charlie were in raptures. They said that Mary Anderson could not have equaled it. They said they had never heard anything spoken with such dramatic effect and feeling."

"Every one praised you?" asked Marian.

"All but one. Mr. Judson sat back in his chair and never applauded at all. He told me after I had finished that he was afraid I had very little dramatic talent at all."



He thought he knew a rhinestone when he saw it.



She got them together and recited for them.

"Now," said Marian, "you know who is sincere and genuine."

"Yes," said the beautiful girl, with eyes shining with enthusiasm. "The test was a complete success. I detest that odious Judson, and I'm going to begin studying for the stage right away."

SOMETHING FOR BABY.

THIS is nothing but a slight jar in the happy holiday music; a minor note struck by the finger of fate, slipping upon the keys, as anthems of rejoicing and Christmas carols make the Yuletide merry.

A reporter stood yesterday in one of the largest fancy and dry goods stores on Main street, watching the throng of well-dressed buyers, mostly ladies, who were turning over the exquisite stock of Christmas notions and holiday goods.

Presently a little slim, white-faced girl crept timidly through the crowd to the counter. She was dressed in thin calico and her shoes were patched and clumsy.

She looked about her with a manner half mournful, half scared.

A clerk saw her and came forward.

"Well, what is it?" he asked, rather shortly.

"Please, sir," she answered in a weak voice, "mamma gave me this dime to get something for baby."

"Something for baby, for a dime? Want to buy baby a Christmas present, eh? Well, now, don't you think you had better run around to a toy shop? We don't keep such things here. You want a tin horse, or a ball, or a jumping jack, now don't you?"

"Please, sir, mamma said I was to come here. Baby isn't with us now. Mamma told me to get 10 cents' worth of crape, sir, if you please."

TOO WISE.

THERE is a man in Houston who keeps quite abreast of the times. He reads the papers, has traveled extensively and is an excellent judge of human nature. He has a natural gift for detecting humbugs and fakirs, and it would be a smooth artist indeed who could impose upon him in any way.

Last night as he was going home, a shady-looking man with his hat pulled over his eyes stepped out from a doorway and said:

"Say, gent, here's a fine diamond ring I found in de gutter. I don't want to get into no trouble wid it. Gimme a dollar and take it."

The Houston man smiled as he looked at the flashy ring the man held toward him.

"A very good game, my man," he said, "but the police are hot after you fellows. You had better select your rhinestone customers with better judgment. Good night."

When the man got home he found his wife in tears.

"Oh, John," she said, "I went shopping this afternoon and lost my solitaire diamond ring. Oh, what shall I"——

John turned without a word and rushed back down the street, but the shady looking man was not to be found.

His wife often wonders why he never scolded her for losing the ring.

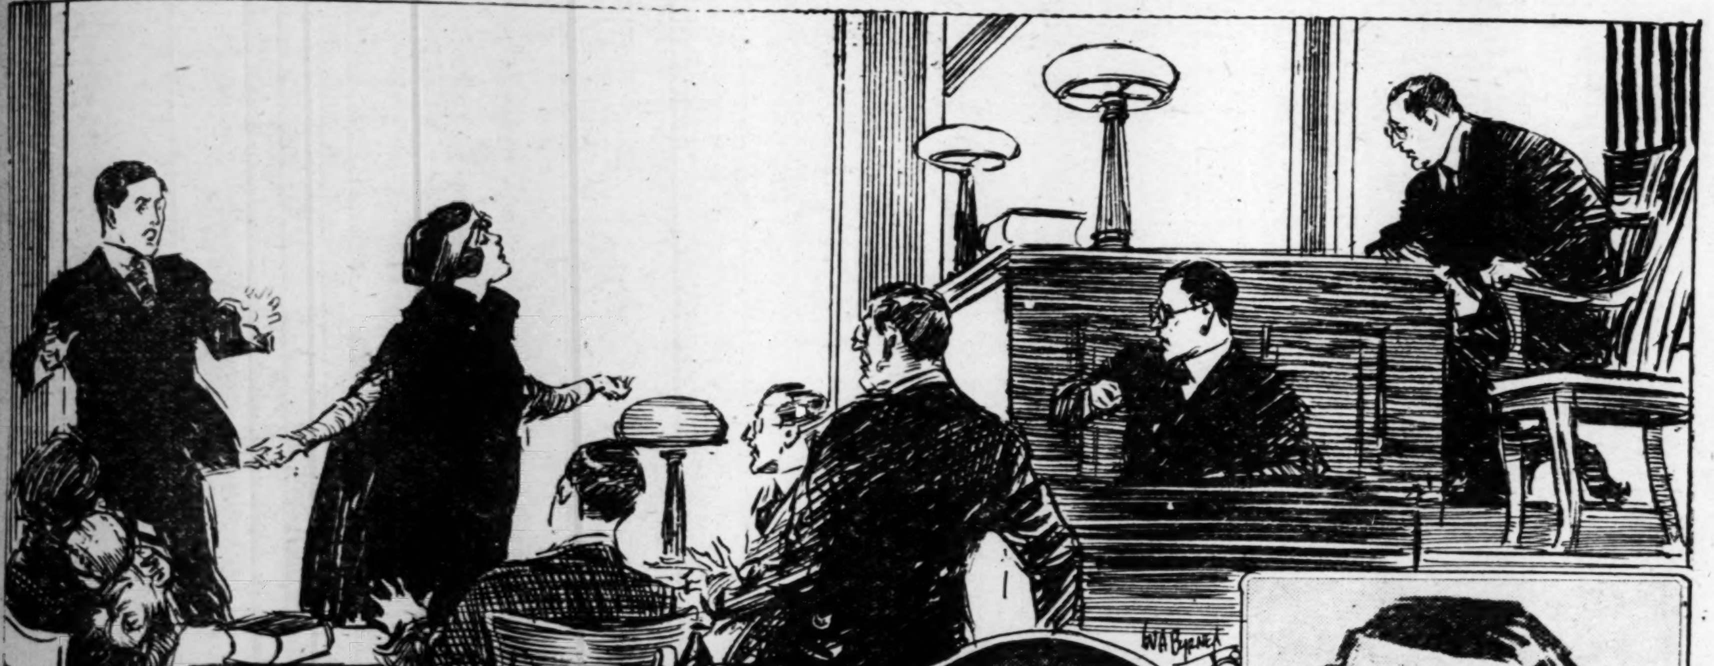
A GOOD SAMARITAN WHO NEARLY WENT TO PRISON



Manuel Fameles, the California waiter whose befriending of a nameless babe got him into a criminal court.

Miss Jean Daniels, who would not tell the name of the infant's father but saved benefactor from prison sentence. An artist's sketch.

Manuel Fameles, kind-hearted waiter in restaurant at Sacramento, Cal., promised a chance customer to care temporarily for her nameless infant—Then he couldn't keep up the $25 monthly board, and was prosecuted—Only the dramatic re-appearance of the mother, on the day of sentence, saved benefactor from imprisonment :: :: ::

FROM being an object of scorn and loathing, actually on trial for an offense of which he was not guilty, the hero of this true story in just a few crucial moments saw the tide turn.

Instead of the penitentiary sentence which he actually was standing up to receive in the courtroom at Sacramento, Cal., when the unexpected intervened to save him, the defendant's hand was warmly shaken by Judge and jurors.

One moment he stood there, the focus of all the eyes in that crowded room, a liar and contemptible creature who wanted to abandon his infant child. Then the truth came out, suddenly and surely as a thunder clap. He was not the selfish villain painted by the prosecutor, but a generous man whose very kindness had all but put him into a convict's cell.

Talk about the dramas of the courtroom! In real courtrooms they usually are tame enough. Or such thrills as they afford are but transient and quickly forgotten. This one is big enough for an old-fashioned melodrama. You'll say that is where it belongs. But it did occur, just a few weeks ago, as it is here set down. And people in California are not yet through talking about the affair.

Manuel Fameles, young Greek waiter in the Saddle Rock Restaurant of Sacramento, was busy with a party of early diners at the only occupied table when he saw a girl enter, carrying a baby. She was dressed neatly, but plainly. Manuel knew there would be no tip at her table, but he stepped quickly forward and adjusted her chair. She was decidedly pale and worn; her manner nervous, as one under a strain.

"A cup of coffee and buttered toast," she murmured faintly, and adjusted the infant more easily in her arms.

"Coffee and buttered toast," Manuel repeated the words, then stood there waiting for her to order something more.

"That is all," she said, and relaxed in utter weariness.

Manuel hurried away. He gave the order for the toast, drew the coffee, thinking she might want it immediately, and placed the cup at her elbow. From the curtained doorway of the kitchen he watched the eagerness with which she sipped the warm coffee.

As he passed her table, the young mother motioned to him. "The toast?" she queried.

Mrs. T. C. Darlow, with the baby which she first took as a boarder, at $25 a month, and now has adopted.

"In a moment." He went again to the kitchen and brought the order.

"Can't you eat more than that?" he asked.

"I have no money to pay for more."

Manuel hurried back again to the kitchen. "I thought so," he murmured. He came to her table a third time, and now his tray was loaded. There was an order of roast chicken, with dressing, steaming hot potatoes, peas and accessories. And a bottle of warmed milk for the baby.

"Oh!" she said. "I do not understand"——

"This is on me," he explained, awkwardly. The young woman blushed, then thanked him profusely. For a moment the waiter watched the infant, which had fallen asleep in its mother's arms. Then he hurried away to his other customers.

The young mother ate the satisfying meal in silence, but her heart was moved as it had not been for many weeks. As she was finishing the meal, and during a lull in the rush, Manuel came again to her table.

"You have been a friend," she said. And she told him her story, the story of a pretty girl, employed as entertainer in a restaurant; of the man who sought her out, with large promises; of the way he had left her before the baby came.

"I am still Miss Jean Daniels," she added.

"And the man?"

"He is a prosperous business man of San Francisco. His name? What is the use to bring it up now? He is happily married, and I have suffered too much trouble to bring trouble to another woman."

Then she told him of her difficult problem—how to care for the baby; how she hesitated about going back into the gaiety of the cafe entertainer's routine; how without doing so she could not make enough money to appease her own hunger, much less bring up the little boy. In either event the boy was better away from her.

"Leave the kid with me," said Manuel. "I'll look after him until you get over this stretch of hard luck, then come around for the youngster."

Miss Daniels agreed gladly.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Darlow had been Manuel's friends. To them he took the infant, after realizing that there is nobody in this world as helpless as a young man with a baby on his hands, unless he has a woman to guide him.

The day after that fateful meeting in the restaurant, Miss Daniels failed to appear. Other days passed, then weeks. Each woman who came into the restaurant was scanned by the anxious young waiter in the hope that she might be the pretty young mother.

Yet Manuel's conscience was at ease. He had done a noble deed, played the Good Samaritan. How different it was to do that than to play the role of the prosperous business man who disowned the child.

Twenty-five dollars a month he paid for the keep of the baby, and the arrangement was satisfactory

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

“MRS. O. D. DALTON, 35 years old, of Valdosta, Ga., is believed to be the youngest mother of 10 children in the United States.”

This underline appeared in the Sunday Post-Dispatch rotogravure section May 6.

It was a rash comment on the part of the editor. So many other claimants to the distinction of being an even younger mother of 10, have written in, that it is amounting almost to a contest.

The evidence forthcoming is enough to upset the theory that large families are not a thing of this generation, at any rate.

It is impossible to investigate the claims of all these challenges and some obviously cannot produce the documentary evidence presented by the 10 Daltons, since although a number of mothers under 35 have brought more than 10 children into the world, not all the children are living.

The first three large families heard from were visited by a reporter. Probably the most remarkable record established by the family of Joseph Schneier at Seventy-six, Mo. Mrs. Schneier will not be 32 years old until September and her tenth child was born four months ago. There are no twins in this family and none has been claimed by death. Helen, the oldest child, is 15 years old, Alice, 14; Pauline, 12; Edwin, 11; Billie, 9; Margaret 8; Mary, 6; Eva, 4; Marvoline, 3; Jean Francis, 4 months.

The family of Louis Swoboda, Washington, Mo., numbers nine living children, one dead in infancy, and Mrs. Swoboda passed her thirty-second birthday since her tenth child was born, eight months ago. There are no twins in this family. The children's ages are: Herman, 16; Veronica, 14; Anthony, 13; Gertrude, 11; Francis, 9; Jerome, 6; Blanche, 4; Louis, 2, and Leander, 8 months.

Then there is the family of R. M. Hulsey, 235 Military road, just outside the southern limits of St. Louis. Mrs. Hulsey was but 35 years old when her fourteenth child was born, last Christmas Day. The fourteenth child weighed 14 pounds at birth. There are two sets of twins in this family and there have been three deaths, leaving now 11 children, the eldest of whom is 16.

Mrs. C. Shepard of Foley, Mo., sends a photograph in evidence of a family of nine children, with the information that she was but 32 when her tenth child was born, one child having met with an accident which caused its death at two years.

The first three families are much alike in some particulars, and in this especially that their worldly wealth is to be rated as extremely modest. And in that they are all of the Roman Catholic faith and are all happy families, regarding children as a great blessing conferred upon them. The mothers have been between the ages of 16 and 18 when married and it is a coincidence that the father in each case is now 41 years old.

To some of us who find it difficult to live within our income, whatever it is, and even without dependents, it is interesting to note how these courageous parents “make out.” I got that phrase from Mrs. Hulsey. It is a motto with her.

“If I haven't what I want to do with, I make out with something else. But I always make out, somehow,” she said.

In the case of both the Swoboda and Hulsey families, the fathers are shoe factory workers. Swoboda is an inseamer whose income has been known, during the war, to reach $50 a week, but, what with factory shutdowns and layoffs, according to the state of the shoe market, his income is a fluctuating one. They own their own home at the edge of town and have saved enough to start payment on a farm upon which some of the boys who already have shown an aptitude for farming will be turned loose later on. So congenial is this family that though the eldest boy was sent last year to a Franciscan college in Illinois, he this year refused to be separated from the family, preferring to finish his education at the parochial schools nearer home.

They are a thrifty family, producing on their small plot of ground their own milk, butter and eggs and vegetables and butchering their own hogs. There were three or four bicycles, toys and other luxuries in sight.

The Schneier family solve the problem of livelihood through the father's being Assistant Postmaster and manager of the general store—through which he is able to purchase family supplies at wholesale prices—and the mother's running the hotel patronized by traveling men who visit a large territory of which Seventy-six is the railroad point. They possess an automobile, from which also, probably, a slight income is derived. The income from the hotel no doubt supports the table and Mrs. Schneier could proudly point to wonderful stores of fruits and vegetables of her own preserving. The house they live in also is one of the perquisites, rent free, of the store superintendent.

The Hulsey family, living under city conditions, has a more difficult time of it. The father is a sidelaster at the St. Louis and Jefferson avenue plant of the International Shoe Co. His wages rarely exceed $30 a week, though now that the older children have reached an age of production, each bringing in from $8 to $10 a week, things are much easier. In fact, just lovely, they tell you, cheerily. Those who know how hard it is to rent an abode when you have just one child will appreciate the difficulties of the Hulseys as their lively brood increased until now it numbers 11. After many forced moves it became obvious, a long time before it was actually accomplished, that they must own their own home. But how to do this when there never was more than enough with which to provide for so many hungry mouths and growing bodies, how to get the necessary first installment upon a piece of real estate, remained a problem. At last, just four weeks after the last set of twins were born, there came what Mrs. Hulsey seems to have regarded as a gracious opportunity. A canning factory opened up in the neighborhood and in the busy season was employing women at night. When she had attended to all the daytime wants of her household Mrs. Hulsey went to work in the factory at nights. Saving every cent through several seasons, she at last accumulated the amount with which to make the first payment on the $1200 six-room house in which they now reside. It was a bargain at the price, surely, though it is explained that Mr. Hulsey has practically rebuilt it after working hours.

Naturally, the lot is a narrow one and cannot be expected to produce much more than a playground for the children. The outlay for expenses has to be watched very closely. As a result Mrs. Hulsey has become so systematic she can tell you where each cent goes. The item of greatest expense in most menus, meat, she dispenses with almost altogether. It is only upon rare occasions that a piece of fresh meat finds its way to the table and a slice of bacon, one to each child, is dealt out once a week. From the fat and rosy appearance of the children this deficiency is amply made up in other foods, it would seem. Five quarts of milk per day are taken in, two from the milkman, three from the grocer, because they have not yet come to afford an icebox.

A bushel of potatoes per week and half a bushel of apples and as many oranges as can be afforded when they are cheap; cereals and stewed fruits and as many vegetables as possible, complete the dietary list, except for bread. Eight loaves of bread hardly suffice for one day, but cornbread, which is cheaper and just as nutritious, is to be relied upon when there seems danger of exceeding the household budget. In all, the outlay for food and fuel never is allowed to exceed $20, and $15 a week is the average.

With each of these families, the item of shoes for busy little feet looms as the greatest bugbear, though ordering in lots of a dozen pairs at a time and being given the advantage of wholesale prices mitigates this expense somewhat.

While the other two mothers disavowed observing any set regime in the regulation of their children's habits and diet, Mrs. Hulsey had several theories learned from experience, not from books or other authorities, she said. She sees to it that her children avoid sweets, for which there is a natural craving, but which she has observed destroys their inclinations toward other wholesome foods. And she shields them from all excitement and influences of the city streets. They never are allowed outside the yard except on some specific errand. One purpose in abstaining from meat, she said, is that meat makes children excitable. The oldest boy, when he became footloose, also became movie struck. One day, in his mother's absence, he gathered up all the little ones and took them to see a film. They were all frightened, and haven't entirely recovered, and thus far refuse to repeat the experience. One excursion to Forest Park to see the animals in the zoo has provided inspiration in their play and conversation ever since.

A significant observation was that for all its necessary simplicity elsewhere, this house affords a parlor and it contains a piano. The first investment of the eldest daughter when she went to work was in a piano. And it has proved its worth, the mother believes, since all the children became increasingly fond of music and it keeps them contentedly at home.

"The thing I dread most now," said Mrs. Hulsey, "is when my girls begin to want to go out with the boys. They argue that I married young and they point to this girl friend and that, already going out and even getting married. I say I wouldn't mind if they got as good a man as their father, but I think there are not so many of them nowadays, and in the city especially. And, anyway, if I had had as good a home as this myself when I was young, I shouldn't have wanted ever to leave it at all."

Each of the mothers was asked if she desired her daughters to marry young and have large families. Each was undecided. It was about six of one and half a dozen of the other. It was hard when there were many small dependents at once, hard on the parents, though the children didn't seem to feel it. The children had a happy time together and the more of them there were the more unselfish they seemed to become; the more they developed fine traits of helpfulness and protectiveness, one of the other.

And on the other hand, if you waited too long, you were apt to become hard to please in the selection of a mate and a large family coming along later in life was more difficult to adjust one's self to. "The worst is over; now we've got a long life ahead in which to reap our reward, seeing our children and our children's children grow up before us." That seemed the general attitude.

When Missourians Were "Lowbrows" Because of Skull-Binding

READERS of the article in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine of April 1, which told of the discovery by M. R. Harrington of the remains of a prehistoric race in Southwest Missouri which he named "the Ozark bluff dwellers," may be interested in the appended account of the finding of a deformed human skull in the same region, and in an eminent anthropologist's opinions as to how and why the deformity was caused. Mr. Harrington, who directed an expedition from the Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, New York City, disinterred the skull. The following bulletin has been sent from Washington by Science Service:

"A prehistoric female from Missouri has created a stir in science circles here. Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, anthropologist of the United States National Museum, has just received a deformed skull, discovered in a small cave near Noel, Mo., which suggests a people earlier than any known Indians of that section and connected with tribes found in South America. The shape and markings of the skull, Dr. Hrdlicka said, indicate that the deformation was produced by tying a circular band about the head of the newborn infant. Thousands of skulls treated in this way have been found in Peru and Bolivia, but this is the third so far discovered on this continent. The Aymara people, contemporaries of the Incas of Peru and still found in that country, made this head-tying a custom.

"The treatment of the head in this way, Dr. Hrdlicka pointed out, was to produce a low-browed effect, which these people evidently considered superior to the normal head. The pressure caused the head to be low-browed, but the growing brain made the skull bulge out toward the back. The desire for a low brow probably originated in some religious belief. These people probably were trying to imitate, in their young, the head-form of some animal which they regarded as superior or sacred. Later the binding may have become a custom, associated with the belief in the superiority of the low, long skull.

"Two deformed skulls have previously been found in North America, one on Vancouver Island and the other near Lexington, Mo."

AND NOW THEY ARE FORGING FINGERPRINTS!

When a convict in Leavenworth Prison touched a vase and left thereon the digital signature of a man long dead and buried, the United States Secret Service identification expert sat up and took notice — Police Chief August Vollmer of Berkeley, Cal., former president of the international body of police heads, also got busy when a former Secret Service man showed him a crook can commit a crime and leave the finger marks of an innocent person as evidence :: :: ::

Convict No. 15733, just out of Leavenworth, first to reveal fact that fingerprints could be forged. He is examining real and forged prints under magnifying glass, which fails to show any difference between the true and the false.

HEREAFTER it may be unwise for you to leave your fingerprints lying around loose, lest some crook make it his business to involve you in crime by forging them. That this hitherto incontestable human "signature," commonly believed to be unforgeable, can be forged or counterfeited, is a fact that has dawned but recently upon the consciousness of experts in criminology.

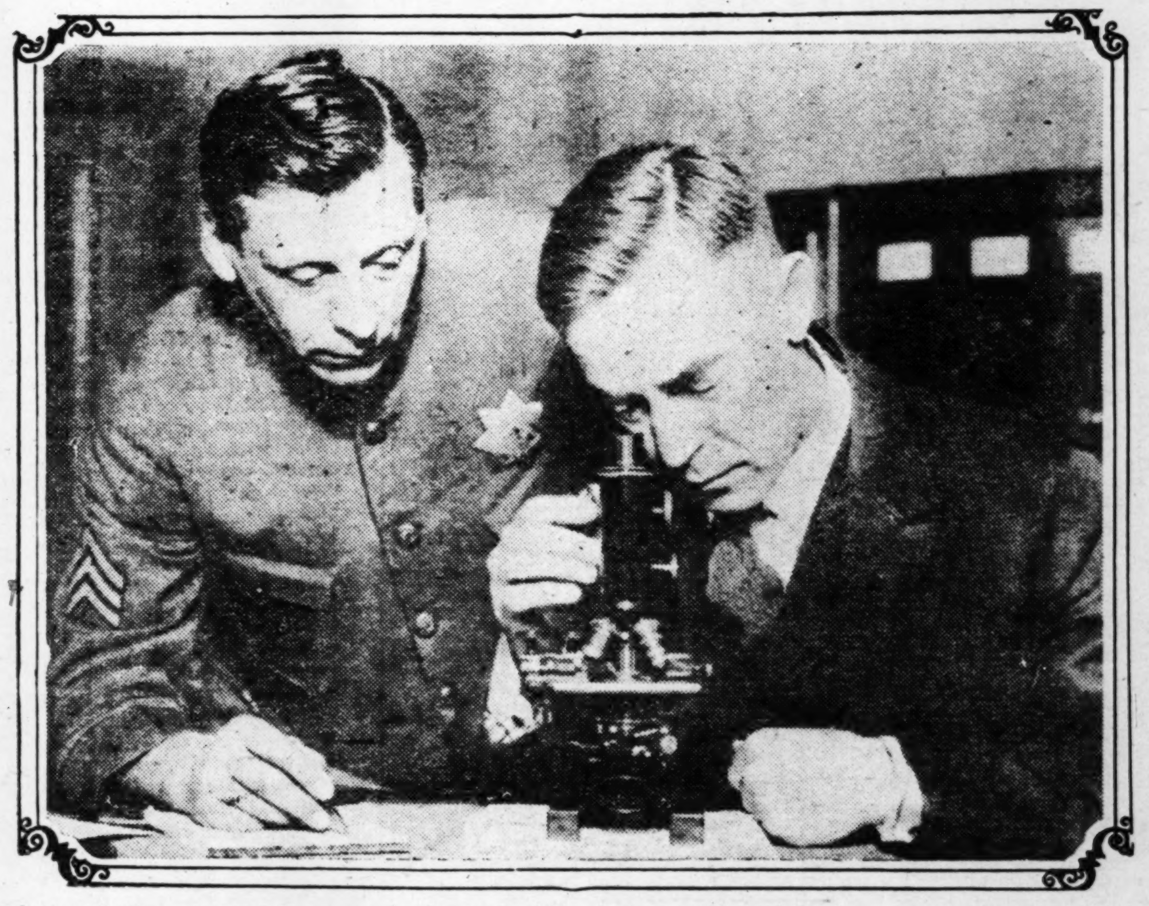
According to recent revelations, it appears quite possible for a criminal to divert suspicion from himself to an innocent person. Let it be assumed, for instance, that a yeggman plans to blow a safe. He adds to his working equipment the fingerprints of a man who has absolutely nothing to do with the job. The cracksman himself is careful to wear gloves, so that his own digital signature shall not be left anywhere on the premises. As a substitute, he "signs" the innocent person's finger marks.

Closeup of a counterfeit fingerprint which was "planted" as evidence to throw suspicion on innocent man, in police demonstration.

Experts from the local bureau of identification find certain fingerprints on the cracked safe. Who committed the crime? Why, the man who left his fingerprints, of course. Now let it be assumed that in some way the cracksman was able to get possession of the fingerprints of a clerk in the establishment where the safe was robbed. Having transferred these prints to the surface of the safe, he departs with his loot.

"An inside job," suggests the Chief of Detectives.

This leads to a request that all the employes of the robbed concern permit the bureau operatives to take their fingerprints.



August Vollmer (right), former president of International Association of Chiefs of Police, examining with an assistant some fingerprints and some counterfeit impressions in effort to find wherein they differ, to nullify newest ruse of criminals.

Quite naturally, every employe is willing. The particular clerk whose finger marks are the subject of the inquiry goes smilingly to the test. Knowing himself innocent, he assumes that he has nothing to fear. His prints taken at the bureau correspond exactly with those found on the safe. The Chief of Detectives orders his arrest.

"What's the joke?" asks the accused clerk, still smiling.

"No joke whatever—quite a serious matter, young man," replies the Chief.

"You surely don't mean"——

"I surely do—just that. The evidence is right here. You can't deny that you did this job. Here, officer, lock this fellow up."

Thus far, perhaps, such an incident has not happened. But that it is a possibility, even a probability, is indicated quite strongly by the recent discovery that the human fingerprint is not immune from forgery and transference. Not many days ago there arrived in San Francisco an ex-convict, just out of Leavenworth Penitentiary with the first word to the outside world that fingerprints were being counterfeited, that the prison authorities at Leavenworth and the Department of Justice at Washington were trying to keep the matter a secret in the public interest.

The story of convict No. 15733 created a sensation, for if true it meant that the foundation of the great identification system had been destroyed.

Another development ensued. A few days ago O. E. Brown, formerly of the United States Secret Service, now with the San Francisco Postoffice, demonstrated at a private meeting with Pacific coast police officials that it is possible to transfer fingerprints from one place to another. In other words, it is possible for a criminal to take the print of an innocent man and place it at the scene of a crime, thus casting what heretofore has been considered incontrovertible evidence of guilt on a man who has had no part in the deed.

In this way the story of Convict No. 15733 found confirmation, at least in its important aspects. The demonstration before the police heads was marked by unusual secrecy. There are but a few persons in America who know the method. It is being carefully guarded lest wholesale use be made of it, thus nullifying the work of thousands of investigators in bureaus of identification throughout the country.

Brown's revelations read like the creations of fiction. He showed that the following could be done:

A burglar outlines a "job." He plans in advance to throw the police off his track. Perhaps he has an enemy. He secures that person's fingerprints. When he commits the crime he takes the prints of the innocent man with him, "plants" them on a window or some other object, and leaves. He himself has worn gloves. In the morning the police get the prints of the innocent man.

A murderer plans his crime. He not only desires to slay his victim, but to cast the suspicion of guilt on an enemy. He follows the procedure outlined above. Men have been hanged and gone to the elec-

Pope Pius XI As A Mountaineer—Told In His Own Words

When just Monsignor Achille Ratti he was a well-known Alpinist, and wrote several modest accounts of his exploits for the Italian Alpine Club — Translated into English, these narratives have been published in book form and reveal an engaging personality, as well as interesting pictures of a manly and hazardous sport :: ::

SOME 30 years ago, one of the well-known Alpine climbers in Europe was Abate Achille Ratti of Milan, Italy. Today he climbs no more, but walks in the beautiful gardens of the Vatican, at Rome. The brilliant scholar, intrepid Alpinist and devoted priest has become Pope Pius XI.

But long before the mountaineer went to the Vatican he had, at the request of editors, written spirited accounts of some of his more noteworthy exploits, which appeared in various publications of the Italian Alpine Club.

Newly translated into English, these modest narratives possess double interest—that of achievement in a sport which has produced many a tragedy, and that of the author's engaging personality. The future Pope did not confine himself to the comfortable little trips which anybody may take in Switzerland. At the same time, he heartily disapproved of what he himself termed "rash attempts and deplorable catastrophes."

Consequently, as is pointed out in a foreword to "Climbs on Alpine Peaks" (Houghton Mifflin Co.), by Douglas W. Freshfield, formerly editor of the Alpine Journal in London and himself a distinguished mountaineer, Monsignor Ratti sometimes was confronted by a moral dilemma.

One example of it was the clash between his patriotic desire for an all-Italian ascent of the precipitous face of Monte Rosa, and the danger which such an expedition would incur from avalanches and falling stones. The trip was made, successfully, after the eminent climber had taken precautions which satisfied his scruples.

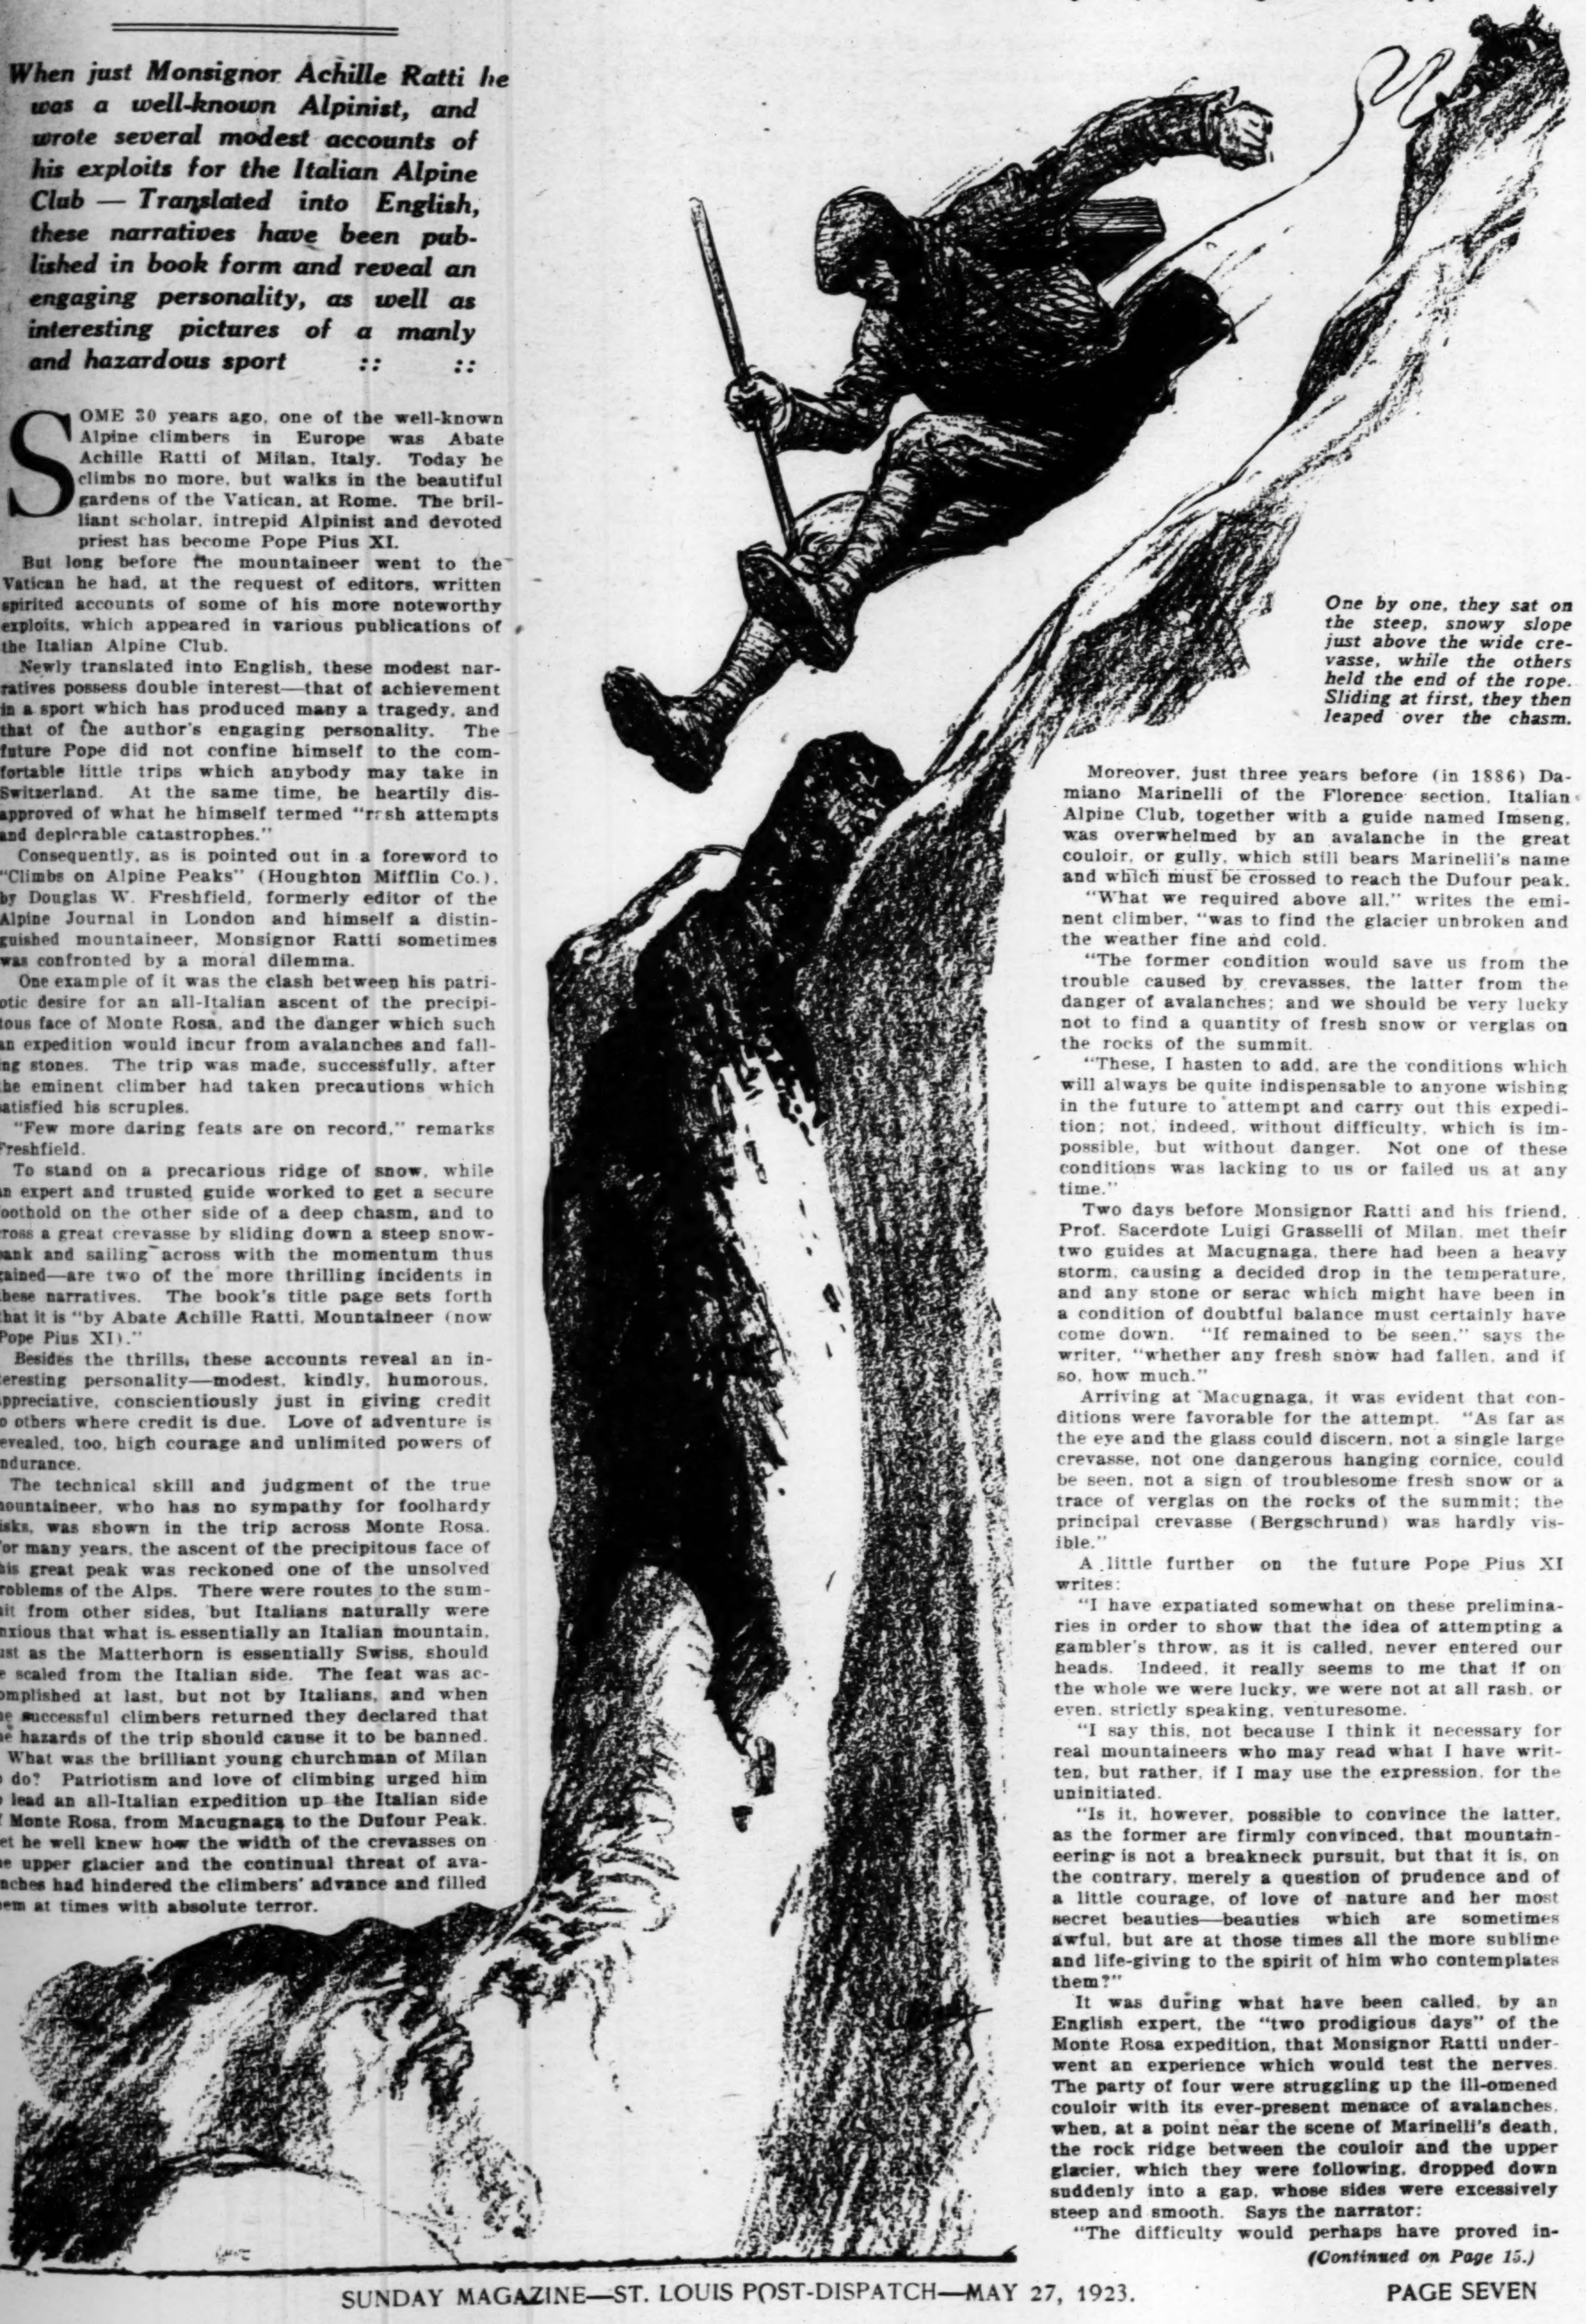
"Few more daring feats are on record," remarks Freshfield.

To stand on a precarious ridge of snow, while an expert and trusted guide worked to get a secure foothold on the other side of a deep chasm, and to cross a great crevasse by sliding down a steep snowbank and sailing across with the momentum thus gained—are two of the more thrilling incidents in these narratives. The book's title page sets forth that it is "by Abate Achille Ratti, Mountaineer (now Pope Pius XI)."

Besides the thrills, these accounts reveal an interesting personality—modest, kindly, humorous, appreciative, conscientiously just in giving credit to others where credit is due. Love of adventure is revealed, too, high courage and unlimited powers of endurance.

The technical skill and judgment of the true mountaineer, who has no sympathy for foolhardy risks, was shown in the trip across Monte Rosa. For many years, the ascent of the precipitous face of this great peak was reckoned one of the unsolved problems of the Alps. There were routes to the summit from other sides, but Italians naturally were anxious that what is essentially an Italian mountain, just as the Matterhorn is essentially Swiss, should be scaled from the Italian side. The feat was accomplished at last, but not by Italians, and when the successful climbers returned they declared that the hazards of the trip should cause it to be banned.

What was the brilliant young churchman of Milan to do? Patriotism and love of climbing urged him to lead an all-Italian expedition up the Italian side of Monte Rosa, from Macugnaga to the Dufour Peak. Yet he well knew how the width of the crevasses on the upper glacier and the continual threat of avalanches had hindered the climbers' advance and filled them at times with absolute terror.



One by one, they sat on the steep, snowy slope just above the wide crevasse, while the others held the end of the rope. Sliding at first, they then leaped over the chasm.

Moreover, just three years before (in 1886) Damiano Marinelli of the Florence section, Italian Alpine Club, together with a guide named Imseng, was overwhelmed by an avalanche in the great couloir, or gully, which still bears Marinelli's name and which must be crossed to reach the Dufour peak.

"What we required above all," writes the eminent climber, "was to find the glacier unbroken and the weather fine and cold.

"The former condition would save us from the trouble caused by crevasses, the latter from the danger of avalanches; and we should be very lucky not to find a quantity of fresh snow or verglas on the rocks of the summit.

"These, I hasten to add, are the conditions which will always be quite indispensable to anyone wishing in the future to attempt and carry out this expedition; not, indeed, without difficulty, which is impossible, but without danger. Not one of these conditions was lacking to us or failed us at any time."

Two days before Monsignor Ratti and his friend, Prof. Sacerdote Luigi Grasselli of Milan, met their two guides at Macugnaga, there had been a heavy storm, causing a decided drop in the temperature, and any stone or serac which might have been in a condition of doubtful balance must certainly have come down. "It remained to be seen," says the writer, "whether any fresh snow had fallen, and if so, how much."

Arriving at Macugnaga, it was evident that conditions were favorable for the attempt. "As far as the eye and the glass could discern, not a single large crevasse, not one dangerous hanging cornice, could be seen, not a sign of troublesome fresh snow or a trace of verglas on the rocks of the summit; the principal crevasse (Bergschrund) was hardly visible."

A little further on the future Pope Pius XI writes:

"I have expatiated somewhat on these preliminaries in order to show that the idea of attempting a gambler's throw, as it is called, never entered our heads. Indeed, it really seems to me that if on the whole we were lucky, we were not at all rash, or even, strictly speaking, venturesome.

"I say this, not because I think it necessary for real mountaineers who may read what I have written, but rather, if I may use the expression, for the uninitiated.

"Is it, however, possible to convince the latter, as the former are firmly convinced, that mountaineering is not a breakneck pursuit, but that it is, on the contrary, merely a question of prudence and of a little courage, of love of nature and her most secret beauties—beauties which are sometimes awful, but are at those times all the more sublime and life-giving to the spirit of him who contemplates them?"

It was during what have been called, by an English expert, the "two prodigious days" of the Monte Rosa expedition, that Monsignor Ratti underwent an experience which would test the nerves. The party of four were struggling up the ill-omened couloir with its ever-present menace of avalanches, when, at a point near the scene of Marinelli's death, the rock ridge between the couloir and the upper glacier, which they were following, dropped down suddenly into a gap, whose sides were excessively steep and smooth. Says the narrator:

"The difficulty would perhaps have proved in-

FOOLS AND THEIR MONEY: The Keely Mo

How the vibration of windows from certain notes of a church organ gave a Philadelphia boy a notion which, developed many years later, mystified the scientific world for 25 years and caused the credulous public to contribute $5,000,000 to a motor that ceased to "mote" immediately on the death of John W. Keely, the sleight-of-hand man who constructed it and who kept its secret of fakery to the end :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

PERPETUAL motion—that's the big idea. A motor that will "mote" indefinitely, at a minimum expenditure for upkeep and nothing for fuel. Use air and water, which are free. Operate all the world's machinery on a lungful of air and a palmful of water. Wood, coal, oil? Junk 'em! No further use for such things—they cost money.

Along in 1850 a boy living in Philadelphia stayed home from church one Sunday morning. He noticed that the windows of his home shook, or vibrated, to certain notes of the organ in the church, which was not far away. Little Jack Keely feared at first it was spirits rattling the windows. Maybe it was daylight ghosts. Oo-oo-oo! Next Sunday he was good, and went to church, and spoke to the priest about the windows that shook when the organ played certain notes.

"You must have been imagining things, my son," said the priest, reassuringly.

And, as a matter of fact, John W. Keely spent a large part of his life imagining things. His imagination became so strong that it was able to coax approximately $5,000,000 out of the pockets of a too credulous public which believed implicitly that Keely had "discovered" perpetual motion.

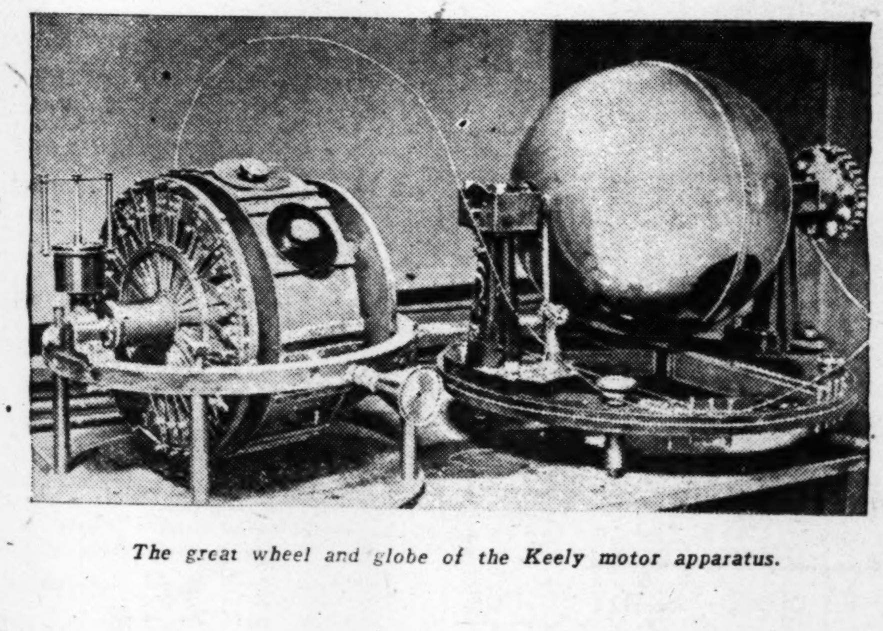
Keely was the world's most successful perpetual motionist. He succeeded, strangely enough, because he did not really believe in the theory of perpetual motion. He believed in the people, however, in the childlike credulity of a considerable section of the so-called human race; and he imagined things which, from the standpoint of a man who meant to get the money, were by no means vain. His imaginings resulted in the celebrated "Keely motor," which blew up suddenly and permanently when John W. Keely died in his native city, the well-known City of Brotherly Love, Nov. 18, 1898. The explosion caused large numbers of investors in the Keely Motor Co. to change their prospective Thanksgiving bird course from roast turkey to chicken stew, or perhaps to plain pork chops.

And all this had its start when the church organ shook the windows.

Keely was a carpenter by trade. But when carpentering came to feel too much like work he changed his line of activity. The occupation he took up carried him about the country considerably, so that he had opportunity to meet all sorts and conditions of people and thereby get a focus on human nature. A reasonably keen comprehension of human nature was highly important to Keely in the third and last of his occupations.

Keely possessed a talent for making people believe a thing was there when it wasn't. This talent he had cultivated studiously for years. It had become, quite likely, a positive passion with him long before he quit handling saw and plane and took up a more delicate and perhaps more esthetic implement. This was the tuning fork.

Nevertheless, Keely was not particularly musical. He remembered those windows that shook on the day he flunked on churchgoing, and he was going to make practical use of the boyhood memory. If the church organ could cause windows to vibrate, maybe the tuning fork could be persuaded, by a man with a massive imagination, to make a wheel go round. Possibly, by severe stretches of the imagination, the tuning fork could be made to lift prodigious weights, or at any rate to make the credulous, if innocent, bystanders so believe. And so Jack Keely, ex-carpenter, proceeded thus to put himself in tune with the Infinite.



The great wheel and globe of the Keely motor apparatus.

Keely was 36 years old when, in 1873, he found at last his permanent vocation. In that year he opened to certain selected units of the great American public his workshop or laboratory in Philadelphia, where outsiders got their first glimpse of a mysterious apparatus which, for a quarter of a century was to be known as the Keely motor and was to win the implicit faith of thousands. Keely called it his "hydro-pneumatic-pulsating-vacuo-engine." There was also a large steel globe with a seven-leagued name. Keely had a fondness for big words, and for words whose meaning was unknown to the average person. Some of the terms he employed were unknown to everybody. "Apergy," for instance. The present writer has failed to find it in either of two big dictionaries, both revised since Keely's time.

"The great wheel you see revolving," Keely told his invited guests, "is moved by apergy."

The guests looked properly interested. Apergy, they figured, must be something mighty powerful.

As they watched the wheel revolve, Keely explained—if one may call it that—the principles of its operation. He talked of "triune currents of a polar flow of force," and "the reflex action of gravity," and "chords of mass," and "sympathetic outreaches of distance," and "depolar etheric waves," and of many other obstruse things. Mystify the average man, and you have him going, was Keely's theory. He surely had those men mystified.

For instance, when he struck a tuning fork a brass ball began spinning around at a speed of 600 revolutions a minute. More apergy, no doubt, or possibly some "chords of mass" applied. The visitors were impressed.

Then Keely scraped a violin bow across the tuning fork. Forthwith another apparatus lifted an enormous weight. It was exerting a pressure of 25,000 pounds to the square inch, Keely told his gape-mouthed guests. The eyes of some of them wellnigh bulged.

Marvelous! Nothing like it ever before. Verily, Mr. Keely had discovered the secret which thousands had sought in vain, century after century. If not absolute perpetual motion, then surely something very near akin. Think of touching a tuning fork and making a big brass ball revolve rapidly! Think of scraping the fork with a fiddle bow and lifting 25,000 pounds!

Of course, a report of this first look into the laboratory of mystery got into the newspapers. From day to day other groups went to see the new wonder. Keely became the talk of America. "Magician," "Wizard," with a big W—these were some of the terms used in describing him. The Keely motor was to revolutionize the industry of the world.

"I can run a train of 30 railroad cars from Philadelphia to New York at a mile a minute, and the only source of motive power used will be the amount of water one of you can hold in the palm of his hand," Keely declared. "Why, a bucket of water contains enough of this force I have discovered to move the world out of its course. A steamship can be run so fast with it that the ship would be split in two."

Mr. Keely liked to boast of what his new-found force could do, and it was not to be disputed that it was doing things quite remarkable, right there in the laboratory, before the eyes of the privileged persons who witnessed the experiments. He alone know the magic secret, and for the present he was not to divulge it to the eager world.

New York capitalists became interested. Keely's discovery looked like mountains of gold to them, if properly exploited. The Keely Motor Co. was organized and the necessary capital was subscribed. Every week there were pilgrimages of scientists, engineers and financiers to Philadelphia, to see the Keely motor "mote." It moted mightily. There could be no doubt as to that. One cannot dispute the evidence of one's own eyes. Those who saw the machine in operation were wonderstruck. More like a miracle than a feat of engineering was the Keely motor.

Mr. Keely's explanations, it seems, grew more and more puzzling as the months and years went by. However, the machinery worked, and, so far as the capitalists could see, that was all that was necessary. Reports of "progress" being published from time to time, more and more money was subscribed. Big and little capitalists, and many who were not in

After months had passed and no machine had left the Keely shops, some persons began to wonder. Inquiries were made. The directors explained that Mr. Keely was making further experiments; he wanted to make his machine perfect. More capital was required, they said; and it was forthcoming.

Years sped by, as the old-fashioned fictionists used to say. As they sped, Keely kept working away at something in his laboratory. He had designed a new engine, something sure to startle the world—so said everybody who saw it operate. More apergy, of course. Probably more sympathetic outreaches of distance. Assuredly more money, for many of the kind that is born every minute were sympathetic and made inreaches of cash for Keely Motor stock. Those triune currents of a polar flow of force, so learnedly yet so nonchalantly mentioned by Mr. Keely as he explained the principles of his machine, were sucking in the suckers from every direction.

More years sped past. Still not a machine had left the Keely shops. Some of the shareholders got peeved. They had expected action, with large dividends on stock. The world still had to get along with old-fashioned steam engines and windmills; though another and a real wizard, one Thomas A Edison, in a Jersey suburb of New York, was making matters lighter and brighter by certain applications of electricity to human needs. The electric current also was being used for motive power, and there was a hint that kerosene, known more familiarly as coal oil, presently would be running engines.

Keely would have to hurry if he avoided being run over and passed by other people's motors. In 1888, about 15 years after the first test of the Keely motor in the presence of outsiders, some of the shareholders began to get truly impatient. What was the good of being interested financially in a world beater if it never got outside a Philadelphia workshop? Court proceedings against Keely were instituted, to compel him to explain the workings of his contrivances. He refused steadfastly to divulge even the primary principle, save to talk some more about apergy and chords of mass. The Judge sent him to jail.

That created a profound sensation. John W. Keely, Wizard, in jail! Though by now many of his former adherents had fallen away from him, there were those who still stuck by. One of these was Mrs. Bloomfield Moore, who professed undying confidence in the proposition. Keely was let out of jail presently. Mrs. Moore financed him further to the extent of $100,000, so that he could carry on his apergetic and triunic efforts and ultimately show the world that John W. Keely was nobody's fool or knave.

Hundreds of people continued to visit the Keely laboratory. Most of them went away convinced that the man had discovered some important principle of physics, some hitherto secret force of nature which in time must revolutionize the industrial world, and through that reconstruct the social compact. Though to many persons the Keely motor had become a joke, to a considerable number it was not safe for anybody to jest about the proposition. These were unyielding enthusiasts. For them the Keely motor moted, and it would continue to mote until time's end.

Clamor for a real public demonstration of the motor was loud. "Bring the thing outside the shop and let us see the wheels go round in the open air," demanded the doubters. Keely finally consented. He gave a demonstration at Sandy Hook, in the presence of scientists and financiers. But Keely himself stood by and was master of ceremonies. The motor worked and the mystification widened. A group of engineers invited Keely to permit them to take the machine apart, in the laboratory, but the inventor refused. He really felt insulted. Such a suggestion was an insinuation that he was tricking them! It made his chords of mass vibrate violently to be thus misunderstood. His depolar etheric waves lashed themselves into angry foam.

Years to the number of 25 sped onward, though to many of the investors they seemed to lack speed. Mr. Keely had lived quite comfortably all those years. About $5,000,000 had been poured into the wheel of fortune known as the Keely motor. Then, when Keely died shortly before the Thanksgiving Day of 1898, and no longer could stand by to protect his stupendous secret, the biggest bunco bubble of the nineteenth century burst with a loud report, its fragments falling with dull and sickening thuds. Both Mr. Keely and the Keely motor were no more.

The shareholders had, it is true, a collection of 3000 engines he had built in his 25 years of effort. There were also bundles of manuscripts left by Keely, which, his patent attorney, Charles B. Collier, said contained information enough to enable him and Sylvester Thomas, a director of the company, to make the invention a paying proposition. But the manuscripts were no less mystifying than had been Keely's life utterances.

Now that Keely was unable to be present and stand guard, the insides of the Keely motor could be examined. Expert engineers visited the workshop and took a look. They found that the steel globe which Keely had called his "sympathetic-negative transmitter" was built to contain compressed air. A fine tube of platinum, which had been represented to be a wire, carried the air to the motor. It was this force that made the big wheel revolve, lifted great weights, performed all the engineering marvels that had turned the heads of many men.

And then it became known to the general public that Keely, when a young man, had given up carpentering to become a circus performer. In the circus he became interested in prestidigitation. He developed into a skillful sleight-of-hand performer. One of his stunts was to make an appliance called by him a resonator, lift weights. This appliance he made a part of the Keely motor.

Mary Roberts Rinehart

THE probationer was entered in the training school as N. Jane Brown.

When the man in this story opened his eyes after the wall of the warehouse dropped, N. Jane Brown was sitting beside him. He lay quite still for a moment. Then:

"My right leg is off," he said.

"I'm afraid it's broken. But you still have it." She smiled.

The morphia did a curious thing to him. It made him create. He lay there and invented for Jane Brown a fictitious person who was himself. This person, he said, was a newspaper reporter, who had been sent to report the warehouse fire. He had got too close, and a wall had come down on him.

After a time he felt that she was not as really interested as she might have been, so he introduced a love element, Mabel, suppressing her other name.

Mr. Middleton—now officially "Twenty-two," did not see Jane Brown again. And at last he inquired for her.

"The first day I was in here," he said to Miss Willoughby, "there was a little girl here without a cap. I don't know her name. But I haven't seen her since."

Miss Willoughby reflected.

"Without a cap? Then it was only one of the probationers. Probably Jane Brown."

By April 6 "Twenty-two" had progressed from splints to a plaster cast, which he named Elizabeth, and a roller chair.

Rolling back toward the elevator and the terra incognita which lay beyond, he saw a sign which interfered considerably with a plan he had in mind. The sign was of tin, and it said:

"No private patients allowed beyond here."

Twenty-two sat in his chair and stared at it. The plaster cast stretched out in front of him, and was covered with a gray blanket.

Far beyond, down the corridor, was somebody in a blue dress and no cap. It might be anybody, but again——

Twenty-two looked around. Over all the hospital brooded an after-luncheon peace.

Followed in sequence these events: (a) Twenty-two wheeled back to the parlor, where old Mr. Simond's cane leaned against a table, and, while engaging that gentleman in conversation, possessed himself of the cane. (b) Wheeled back to the elevator. (c) Drew cane from beneath blanket. (d) Unhooked sign with cane and concealed both under blanket. (c) Worked his way back along the forbidden territory until he came to H ward.

Jane Brown was in H ward.

"I came back on purpose to see you," said Twenty-two. "Because, that day when I came in and you looked after me, you know, I—must have talked a lot of nonsense."

"Morphia makes some people talk," she said, in a frightfully professional tone.

"But," said Twenty-two, stirring uneasily, "I said a lot that wasn't true. Now that about a girl named Mabel, for instance"——

He stirred again, because, after all, what did it matter what he had said? And as he stirred Mr. Simond's cane fell out. It was immediately followed by the tin sign, which gradually subsided, face up, on the bare floor, in a slowly diminishing series of crashes.

Jane Brown stooped and picked them both up and placed them on his lap. Then, very stern, she marched out of the ward into the corridor, and there subsided into quiet hysterics of mirth. Twenty-two followed her in the chair.

"I should think," she suggested, "that if you slipped it behind that radiator, no one would ever know about it."

Soon afterward Twenty-two squeaked back to his lonely room. He was rid of Mabel, but was still a reporter, hurt in doing his duty. He had let this go because he saw that duty was a sort of fetish with the probationer.

That evening Jane Brown heard an unmistakable shuffling of feet in the corridor. She knew this sound, and it filled her with terror. It was the scuffling of four pairs of feet, carefully instructed not to keep step. It meant, in other words, a stretcher.

Jane Brown feverishly tore the spread off the emergency bed and drew it somewhat apart from its fellows. Then she stood back and waited.

Came in four officers from the police patrol. Came in the senior surgical interne. Came the stretcher, containing a quiet figure under a gray blanket.

In a very short time the quiet figure was on the bed, and the senior surgical interne was writing in the order book: "Prepare for operation."

Jane Brown read it.

"But—I can't," she quavered. "I don't know how. I won't touch him. He's—he's bloody!"

Then she took another look at the bed and she saw—Johnny Fraser.

Now Johnny had, in his small way, played a part in the probationer's life, such as occasionally scrubbing porches or borrowing a half-dollar or being suspected of stealing the eggs from the henhouse. But that Johnny Fraser had been a wicked, smiling imp.

Here lay another Johnny Fraser, a quiet one, a Johnny of closed eyes and slow, noisy breathing.

"Why, Johnny!" said the probationer, in a strangled voice.

The senior surgical interne was interested.

"Know him?" he said.

"He is a boy from home." She was still staring at this quiet, unimpudent figure.

The senior surgical interne went to the medicine closet and poured a bit of aromatic ammonia into a glass.

"Sit down and drink this," he said, in a very masculine voice.

Some time after the early hospital supper that evening Twenty-two, having oiled his chair with some olive oil from his tray, made a clandestine trip through the twilight of the corridor to H ward. And there he found the probationer mothering a quiet figure on a bed.

"Is he going to live?" Twenty-two inquired. He could see that the ward nurse had an eye on him, and was preparing for retreat.

"O, yes," said Jane Brown. "I think so now. The interne says they have had a message from Dr. Willie. He is coming." There was a beautiful confidence in her tone.

She was frightfully tired next day. There seemed to be nothing to do for Johnny but to wait. Dr. Willie had requested no operation.

She had entirely forgotten Twenty-two. She was rather worried, to tell the truth. For a staff surgeon going through the ward had stopped by Johnny's bed and examined the pupils of his eyes, and had then exchanged a glance with the senior surgical interne that had perplexed her.

In the chapel at prayers that evening all around her the nurses sat and rested, their tired hands folded in their laps. Someone near was talking about something that was missing.

"Gone?" she said. "Of course it is gone. The bathroom man reported it to me and I went and looked."

"But who in the world would take it?"

"My dear," said the first speaker, "who does take things in a hospital, anyhow? Only—a tin sign!"

Jane Brown offered up a little prayer that night for Johnny Fraser, and another little one without words, that Dr. Willie was right. She sat and rested her weary young body, and remembered how Dr. Willie was loved and respected, and the years he had cared for the whole countryside. And the peace of the quiet room brought rest to her.

It was when prayers were over that the Head made her announcement. She rose and looked over the shadowy room, where among the rows of white caps only the probationer's head was uncovered, and she said:

"I have an announcement to make to the training school. One which I regret, and which will mean a certain amount of hardship and deprivation.

"A case of contagion has been discovered in one of the wards, and it has been considered necessary to quarantine the hospital. The doors were closed at 7:30 this evening."

There were policemen at all the hospital doors quite suddenly. They locked the doors and put the keys in their pockets, and from that time on they opened them only to pass things in, such as newspapers or milk or groceries or the braver members of the staff. But not to let anything out—except the staff.

At first there was a great deal of confusion, because quite a number of people had been out on various errands when it happened. And they came back, and protested to the officers. One or two of them got quite desperate and tried to crawl up the fire escape, but failed.

This is of interest chiefly because it profoundly affected Jane Brown. Miss McAdoo, her ward nurse, had debated whether to wash her hair that evening or to take a walk. She had decided on the walk.

The next morning the first assistant gave Jane Brown charge of H ward.

"It's very irregular," she said. "I don't exactly know—it's a great chance for you. Show that you can handle this ward, and you are practically safe."

Twenty-two made three brief excursions back along the corridor that first day of the quarantine. But Jane Brown was extremely professional and very busy.

On the third trip, however, Jane Brown was writing at the table. Twenty-two wheeled himself into the doorway and eyed her with disapproval.

"What do you mean by sitting down?" he demanded, sarcastically. "Don't you know that now you are in charge you ought to keep moving?"

She smiled at him. They were quite old friends already. It is curious about love and friendship and all those kindred emotions. They do not grow nearly so fast when people are together as when they are apart. Twenty-two and Jane Brown were infinitely closer friends than four or five meetings really indicates.

The days went by, three, then four, and a little line of tension deepened around Jane Brown's mouth. For Johnny Fraser was still lying in a stupor.

The senior surgical interne had developed a tendency to wander into H at odd hours, and sit on the edge of a table. It was during one of these visits that she spoke of Dr. Willie.

"Because he is a country practitioner," she said, "you—you patronize him."

The senior surgical interne waved a hand toward Johnny's bed.

"Look there," he said. "You don't think that chap's getting any better, do you?"

"If," said Jane Brown, with suspicious quiet, "if you think you know more than a man who has practiced for 40 years, and saved more people than you ever saw, why don't you tell him so?"

Humor, Romance and Heroism in This Tale of Hospital Life

Discourse between a probationer and an interne is supposed to be limited to yea, yea, and nay, nay. But the circumstances were unusual.

"Tell him!" exclaimed the senior surgical interne, "and be called before the Executive Committee and fired!"

Twenty-two, who was out on crutches that day for the first time, looked back from the elevator shaft and scowled. And the senior surgical interne went down to the pharmacy and thereby altered a number of things.

"Hello!" said the pharmacy clerk. "Shut the door."

The senior surgical interne shut the door, and sniffed. "Smells like a barroom," he commented.

The pharmacy clerk turned around.

"A little experiment of mine," he explained. "Simple syrup, grain alcohol and some flavoring extract. It's an imitation cordial. Try it."

The senior surgical interne was not a drinker, but he was willing to try anything once. So he secured a two-ounce medicine glass, and filled it.

After he had finished it, he felt about seven feet tall and very important. He had a strong inclination to go up to H and tell Jane Brown the truth about Johnny Fraser—which he yielded to.

"Your man's wrong, that's all there is about it," he said. "I can't say anything and you can't. But he's wrong. That's an operative case. The staff knows it."

"Then why doesn't the staff do it?"

"Because, dear child," he said, "it's your man's case. You ought to know enough about professional ethics for that."

He went away then, but he had sowed something in the probationer's mind.

Twenty-two got over his sulking and planned a concert in the chapel. So that morning he took Elizabeth, the plaster cast, back to H ward.

He put the concert up to Jane Brown with a certain amount of anxiety; if she refused to take any part, he did not intend to have a concert.

"I can play," she said.

"Good," he said. "You know, I like the way you say that. It's so—well, it's so competent." He got out a notebook and wrote: "Miss Brown, piano selections."

On the very day of the concert the quarantine was broken for a few minutes, forcibly, and by an officer of the law. A little newsie, standing by a fire at the next corner, had caught fire. The big corner man stripped off his overcoat, rolled the boy in it, and ran to the hospital. Here he was confronted by a brother officer, who was forbidden to admit him. The corner man laid the newsie on the ground, knocked out the quarantine officer in two blows, broke the glass of the door with a third, slipped the bolt, and, his burden in his arms, stalked in.

It did not lessen the majesty of his entrance that he was crying all the time.

The probationer pondered. After all, laws were right and good, but there were higher things than laws. She went and stood by Johnny's bed for a long time, thinking.

Twenty-two presided at the concert that night. He was extravagantly funny, and the sort of creaking solemnity with which things began turned to uproarious laughter very soon.

Everything went off wonderfully. The musical event of the evening was Jane Brown's playing. She played Schubert without any notes, because she had been taught to play Schubert that way.

And when they called her back, she played little folk songs of the far places of Europe. Standing around the walls, in wheeled chairs, on crutches, these aliens in their eddy listened and thrilled.

At the end she played the Minuet, with a sort of flaming look in her eyes that puzzled Twenty-two. He could not know that she was playing it to Johnny Fraser, lying with closed eyes in the ward upstairs. He did not realize that there was a passion of sacrifice throbbing behind the dignity of the music.

Dr. Willie had stayed over for the concert. He sat, beaming benevolently, in the front row, and toward the end he got up and told some stories. After all, it was Dr. Willie who was the real hit of the evening. The convalescents rocked with joy in their roller chairs.

The first assistant called to the probationer that night as she was passing her door.

"Come in," she called. "I have been looking for you. I have some news for you."

Jane Brown looked small and tired and very, very young.

"We have watched you carefully," said the first assistant. "Although you are young, you have shown ability, and—you are to be accepted."

"Thank you, very much," replied Jane Brown, in a choked voice.

Before she went to bed that night, Jane Brown slipped back to her ward.

By the one low light near the doorway she went back to Johnny's bed, and sat down beside him. In her room other things pressed in on her. But here she saw things right.

The night nurse found her there some time later, asleep, her hunting-case watch open on Johnny's bed and her fingers still on his quiet wrist. She made no report of it.

The probationer went to Dr. Willie the next day.

"Dr. Willie," she said, "won't you have him operated on?"

He looked up at her over his spectacles.

"Operated on? What for?"

"Well, he's not getting any better," she managed, desperately. "I'm—sometimes I think he'll die while we're waiting for him to get better."

"There's no fracture, child," he said, gently. "If there is a clot there, nature is probably better at removing it than we are. The trouble with you," he said, indulgently, "is that you have come here, where they operate first and regret afterward. Nature is the best surgeon, child."

"But—suppose the staff thinks that he should be?"

"The staff!" he said, and looked at her searchingly. Then his jaws set at an obstinate angle.

"Well, Nellie," he said, "I guess one opinion's as good as another in these cases. And I don't suppose they'll do any cutting and hacking without my consent." He looked at Johnny's unconscious figure. "He never amounted to much," he added, "but it's surprising the way money's been coming in to pay his board here. A good lot of people are interested in him. I can't see myself telling them he died on the operating table."

He patted her on the arm as he went out.

"Don't get an old head on those young shoulders yet, Nellie," he said as he was going.

The ward watched him out with affectionate eyes. Jane Brown watched him, too, his fine old head, the sturdy step that had brought healing and peace to a whole county. She had hurt him, she knew that. And she had done no good.

That afternoon Jane Brown broke another rule. She went to Twenty-two on her off duty, and caused a mild furore there. "I have to talk to somebody," she said, simply. "And I came to you, because you've worked on a newspaper, and you have had a lot of experience. It's—a matter of ethics. But, really, it's a matter of life and death."

He felt most horribly humble before her. There was something so direct and childlike about her. The very way she drew a chair in front of him, and proceeded, talking rather fast, to lay the matter before him, touched him profoundly.

"You see how it is," she finished. "I can't go to the staff, and they wouldn't do anything if I did—except possibly put me out. Because a nurse really only follows orders. And—I've got to stay, if I can. And Dr. Willie doesn't believe in an operation and won't see that he's dying. And everybody at home thinks he is right, because—well, he's been right a good many times."

He listened attentively.

"Well," he said at last, "we'll just make the staff turn and do it. That's easy."

"But they won't. They can't."

"We can't let Johnny die, either, can we?"

The hospital's attitude was firm. It could not interfere. It was an outside patient and an outside doctor. It was regretful—but, of course, unless the case was turned over to the staff——

He went back to the ward to tell her. But she was not surprised.

"It's hopeless," was all she said. "Everybody's right, and everybody's wrong."

It was the next day that, going to the courtyard for a breath of air, she saw a woman outside the iron gate waving to her. It was Johnny's mother, a forlorn old soul in what Jane Brown recognized as an old suit of her mother's.

"Dr. Willie bought my ticket, Miss Nellie," she said, nervously. "It seems like I had to come, even if I couldn't get in. I've been waiting around most all afternoon. How is he?"

"He is resting quietly," said Jane Brown, holding herself very tense, because she wanted to scream. "He isn't suffering at all."

"Could you tell me which window he's near, Miss Nellie?"

She pointed out the window, and Johnny Fraser's mother stood, holding to the bars, peering up at it. Her lips moved and Jane Brown knew that she was praying. At last she turned her eyes away.

"Folks have said a lot about him," she said, "but he was always a good son to me. If only he'd had a chance—I'd be right worried, Miss Nellie, if he didn't have Dr. Willie looking after him."

Jane Brown went into the building. Johnny Fraser must have his chance, somehow.

In the meantime a second case, although mild, had extended the quarantine. Discontent grew and threatened to develop into mutiny.

And all the time, fighting his battle with youth and vigor, but with closed eyes, and losing it day by day, was Johnny Fraser.

Then, one night on the roof, Jane Brown had to refuse the senior surgical interne. He took it very hard.

"I suppose," he said, with some bitterness, "that I'd have stood a better chance if I'd done as you wanted me to about that fellow in your ward—gone to the staff and raised the mischief."

"I wouldn't have married you," said Jane Brown, "but I'd have thought you were pretty much of a man."

It was the next day that Twenty-two had his idea. Jane Brown was not enthusiastic.

"It would help amuse them, of course, but how can you publish a newspaper without any news?" she asked.

"News! This building is full of news. I have some bite already. Listen!" He took a notebook from his pocket. "The stork breaks quarantine. New baby in O ward. The chief engineer has developed a boil on his neck. Elevator man arrested for breaking speed limit. Wanted, four square inches of cuticle for skin grafting in W. How's that? And I'm only beginning."

Jane Brown listened. Somehow, behind Twenty-two's lightness of tone, she felt something more earnest. She did not put it into words, even to herself, but she divined something new, a desire to do his bit, there in the hospital.

He explained about publishing it. He used to run a typewriter in college, and the convalescents could mimeograph it and sell it. There was a mimeographing machine in the office.

Up to this point Jane Brown had been rather too worried to think about Twenty-two. She had grown accustomed to seeing him coming slowly back toward her ward. And to his being, in a way, underfoot a part of every day.

But two things happened that day to turn her mind in onto her heart. One was when she heard about the artificial leg. The other was when she passed the door of his room, where a large card now announced "Office of the Quarantine Sentinel." She distinctly heard most unhospitallike chatter within. Judging from the shadows on the glass door, too, the room was full. It sounded joyous and care free.

Jane Brown's heart sank about two inches.

She went back to the ward and sat beside Johnny. But that night she went up on the roof again, and sat on the parapet. She could see, across the courtyard, the dim rectangles of her ward, and around a corner in plain view, room Twenty-two. Its occupant was sitting at the typewriter, and working hard.

The first number of the Quarantine Sentinel was a great success. It relieved the monotony, brought the different wards together, furnished laughter and gossip. Twenty-two wrote the editorials, published the paper, with the aid of a couple of convalescents, and in his leisure drew cartoons. He drew very well, but all his girls looked like Jane Brown.

The children from the children's ward distributed them, and went back from the private rooms bearing tribute of flowers and fruit. A wave of friendliness swept over everyone, and engulfed particularly Twenty-two.

This was the first popularity he had ever earned, and because he valued it he felt more and more unworthy of it.

But it kept him from seeing Jane Brown.

Through it all, Johnny lived. His thin young body was now hardly an outline under the smooth, white covering of his bed. And still she had found no way to give him his chance.

She made a last appeal to Dr. Willie, but he only shook his head gravely.

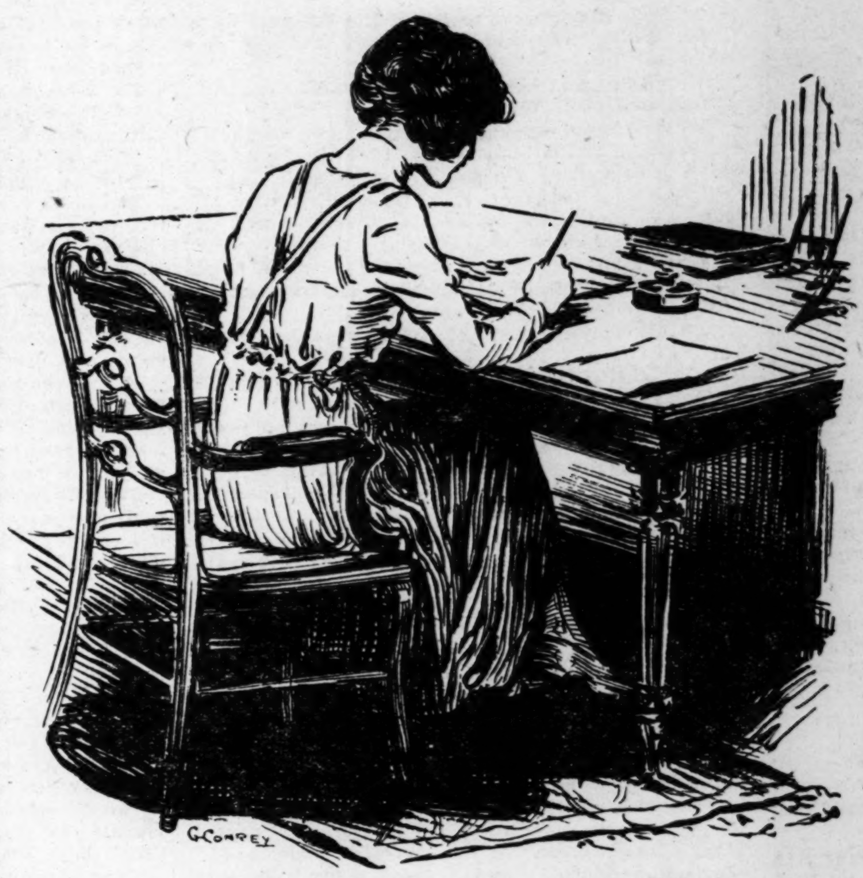
"Even if there was an operation now, Nellie," said Dr. Willie, "he could not stand it."

It was the first time that Twenty-two had known her name was Nellie.

That was the last day of Jane Brown's probation. On the next day she was to don her cap. The Sentinel came out with a congratulatory editorial, and at 9 o'clock that night the first assistant brought an announcement, in the head's own writing, for the paper.

"The head of the training school announces with much pleasure the acceptance of Miss N. Jane Brown as a pupil nurse."

That night Jane Brown fought her battle and won. She went to her room immediately after chapel, and took the family pictures off her little stand and got out ink and paper. She put the photographs out of sight, because she knew that they were counting on her, and she could not bear her mother's eyes. And then she counted her money—the ticket home was expensive.



That night Jane Brown fought her battle and won.

After that she went to work.

It took her a long time, because she had a great deal to explain. She said that no one understood how she felt—that hospitals were to save lives and not to save feelings. It seemed necessary, after that, to defend Dr. Willie—without naming him, of course. How much good he had done, and how he came to rely on himself because in the country there was no one to consult with.

However, she was not so gentle with the staff. She said it was standing by and letting a patient die, although they had all agreed among themselves that an operation was necessary. And would they refuse to pull a child from in front of a locomotive because it was its mother's business, and she didn't know how to do it?

Then she signed it.

She turned it in at the Sentinel office the next morning through a crack in the door. The editor saw that she wore no cap.

"But—see here," he said, "you're accepted, you know. Where's the—the visible sign?"

"After you read that," she said, "you'll understand."

He read it immediately, of course. Its sheer courage made him gasp.

"Good girl," he said to himself. "Brave little girl. But it finishes her here, and she knows it."

While he was getting it ready he felt as if he was sharpening a knife to stab her with. Her own knife, too.

The paper came out at 2 o'clock. At 3 the first assistant, looking extremely white, relieved Jane Brown of the care of H ward.

Jane Brown eyed her wistfully.

"I'm not to come back, I suppose?"

"I'm afraid not," the first assistant said.

Jane Brown went up the ward and looked at Johnny Fraser. Then she gathered up her bandage scissors and her little dressing forceps and went out.

The first assistant took a step after her, but stopped. There were tears in her eyes.

Things moved very rapidly in the hospital that day, while Jane Brown sat alone in her room.

First of all, the staff met and summoned Twenty-two. He went down in the elevator—he had lost Elizabeth a few days before, and was using a cane—ready for trouble. He had always met a fight more than halfway. It was the same instinct that had taken him to the fire.

But no one wanted to fight. The staff was not angry. On the contrary, it was trying its extremely intelligent best to see things from a new angle.

The senior surgical interne was waiting outside, as unhappy as an interne can be.

"What the devil made you publish it?" he demanded.

Twenty-two smiled.

"Because," he said, "I have always had a sneaking desire to publish a paper where public questions can be discussed. If this isn't a public question, I don't know one when I see it."

But he was not smiling when he went in.

An hour later Dr. Willie came. He had brought some flowers for the children's ward, and his arms were bulging. He was invited to the staff room.

To the eternal credit of the staff, Jane Brown's part in that painful half-hour was never known. The staff was careful, too, of Dr. Willie, particularly since, after the first two minutes, every one of them liked Dr. Willie. He took it so awfully well. He faced the white-coated staff and said that he hoped he was man enough to acknowledge a mistake, and six opinions against one left him nothing else to do. The senior surgical interne, who had been hating him for weeks, offered him a cigar.

He had only one request to make. There was a little girl in the training school who believed in him, and he would like to go to the ward and write the order for the operation himself.

Which he did. But Jane Brown was not there.

Late that evening the first assistant, passing along the corridor in the dormitory, was accosted by a quiet figure in a blue uniform, without a cap.

"How is he?"

The first assistant was feeling more cheerful than usual.

"Of course, it is very soon, but he stood it well," she said. "Run up to the operating room and help to clear away."

She was very wise, the first assistant. For Jane Brown went, and washed away some of the ache with the stains of Johnny's operation. Here, all about her, were the tangible evidences of her triumph, which was also a defeat. A little glow of service revived in her. If Johnny lived, it was a small price to pay for a life. If he died, she had given him his chance.

It was the night nurse who told Twenty-two that Jane Brown was in the operating room. He was still up at midnight, but the sheets of tomorrow's editorial lay blank on his table.

"There's a rumor going about," she said, "that the quarantine's to be lifted tomorrow."

"Tomorrow!" said Twenty-two, in a startled voice.

"I suppose you'll be going out at once?"

There was a wistful note in her voice. He had been an oasis of cheer in the dreary rounds of the night.

"I wonder," said Twenty-two, in a curious tone, "if you will give me my cane?"

He was clad in a hideous bathrobe, purchased by the orderly, over his clothes, and he had the expression of a person who intends to take no chances.

"Thanks," said Twenty-two. "And—will you send the night watchman here?"

Some time later Jane Brown stood in the doorway of the operating room and gave it a farewell look. Over all brooded the peace of order, the quiet of the night.

Outside the operating room door she drew a long breath, and faced the night watchman. She had left something in Twenty-two. Would she go and get it?

"It's very late," said Jane Brown. "And it isn't allowed, I'm sure."

However, what was one more rule to her who had defied them all? A spirit of recklessness seized her. After all, why not? She would never see him again. Like in the operating room, she would stand in the doorway and say a mute little farewell.

Twenty-two's door was wide open, and he was standing in the center of the room, looking out.

He was horribly excited.

There was a sort of dreadful calm, however, about Jane Brown.

"The night watchman says I have left something here."

It was clear to him at once that he meant nothing to her. It was in her voice.

"You did," he said, and tried to smile.

"Then—if I may have it"——

"I wish to heaven you could have it," he said, very rapidly. "I don't want it. It's darned miserable."

"It's—what?"

"It's an ache," he went on. "A pain. A misery." Then, seeing her beginning to put on a professional look: "No, not that. It's a feeling. Look here," he said, "do you mind coming in and closing the door? There's a man across who's always listening."

She went in, but she did not close the door.

"What I sent for you for is this," said Twenty-two. "Are you going away?"

"I'm being sent away as soon as the quarantine is over. It's—it's perfectly right."

Suddenly Twenty-two limped across the room and slammed the door shut. Then he turned, his back against the door.

"I'm going when you do," he said, in a terrible voice. "I'm going when you go, and wherever you go. I've stood all the waiting around for a glimpse of you that I'm going to stand." He glared at her. "For weeks," he said, "I've sat here in this room and listened for you, and hated to go to sleep for fear you would pass and I wouldn't be looking through that door. And now I've reached the limit.

"And I want to say this," went on Twenty-two, "I don't care whether you want me or not, you've got to have me. I'm so much in love with you that it hurts."

Jane Brown faced Twenty-two with brave eyes.

"I love you, too—so much that it hurts."

The gentleman across the hall, sitting up in bed with an angry thumb on the bell, was electrified to see, on the glass door across, the silhouette of a young lady without a cap go into the arms of a very large, masculine silhouette in a dressing gown.

Late that night Jane Brown made her way back to H ward. Johnny was there, a strange Johnny, with a bandaged head, but with open eyes.

At dawn, the dawn of the day when Jane Brown was to leave the hospital, the night nurse found her there, asleep, her fingers still on Johnny's thin wrist.

She did not report it.

about declaring himself, and one night she hinted that her parents were beginning to object to her receiving his attentions.

It is human nature for a man to want anything all the harder when he finds that it is difficult to obtain, so the young man made up his mind in a flash that this was the only girl in the world for him. He proposed, was snapped up, and she laid her head coyly against three 10-cent cigars in his vest pocket.

Becoming truly alarmed about obtaining his treasure, now that he scented obstacles in the way, he suggested an immediate elopement. The girl hesitated for a long time, but finally consented and the next night was set for the deed. About 12 o'clock, when everything was still, the young man stood with anxiously beating heart beneath his loved one's window.

He had provided a carriage, which was waiting around the corner, and a rope ladder, down which she climbed with sundry little mouselike squeaks and squeals. At last she descended safely and the young man clasped her in his arms.

"At last, dearest," he said, "you are mine at last. Come quickly and we will fly from the power of your heartless parents. Good heavens! What is that?"

He saw something in fluttering white bearing a heavy burden, coming around the corner of the house.

"Don't be afraid, George," said his loved one, calmly; "it's only papa bringing down my trunk."

AN OPPORTUNITY NEGLECTED.

A FARMER who lives about four miles from Houston noticed a stranger in his front yard one afternoon last week acting in a rather unusual manner. He wore a pair of ducking trousers stuffed in his boots, and had a nose the color of Elgin pressed brick. In his hand he held a sharpened stake about two feet long, which he would stick into the ground, and after sighting over it at various objects would pull it up and go through the same performance at another place.

The farmer went out in the yard and inquired what he wanted.

"Wait just a minute," said the stranger, squinting his eye over the stick at the chicken house. "You see, I'm one of de ordnance corps of engineers what's runnin' de line of railroad from Columbus, O., to Houston. De other fellers is over de hill wid de tranist and de baggage. Dere's over a million dollars in de company, see? Dey sent me on ahead to locate a place fer a big passenger depot, to cost $27,000. De foundation will commence right by your chicken house. You charge 'em high for dis land. I gives you a pointer. See? Dey'll stand fifty thousand. 'Cause why? 'Cause dey's got de money and dey's got to build de depot right where I says. I've got to go on into Houston to record a deed for a right of way, and I never thought to get 50 cents from de treasurer. You might let me have de 50 cents and when de boys comes along in de mornin' tell 'em what you did, and any one of 'em 'll hand you a dollar. You might ask 'em fifty-five thousand, if you"——

"You throw that stick over the fence, and get the ax and cut up exactly half a cord of that wood stove length, and I'll give you a quarter and your supper," said the farmer. "Does the proposition strike you favorably?"

"And are you goin' to t'row away de opportunity of havin' dat depot built right here, and sellin' out"——

"Yes. I need the ground for my chicken coop."

"You refuse to take $50,000 fer de ground, den?"

"I do. Are you going to chop that wood, or shall I call for Tige"

"Gimme dat ax, mister, and show me dat wood, and tell de missus to bake an extra pan of biscuits for supper. When dat Columbus & Houston Grand Trunk Railway runs up against your front fence you'll be sorry you didn't take up dat offer. And tell her to fill up the molasses pitcher, too, and not to mind about putting the dish of cooking butter on de table. See?"

A MATTER OF DIRECTION.

"DO YOU mean to tell me," gasped the horrified gentleman from Boston, "that this man you speak of was shot and killed at a meeting of your debating society, and by the presiding officer himself, during the discussion of a question, simply because he arose and made a motion that was considered out of order?"

"He certainly was, sir," said the Colonel.

"This is simply awful," said the traveler. "I must make a note of this occurrence so that the people of my State can be apprised of the dreadful lawlessness that prevails in this section—a man shot down and killed at a social and educational meeting for the infringement of an unimportant parliamentary rule. It is awful to contemplate."

"That's whatever," said the Colonel, reflectively. "It is for a fact. But you might state, in order to do justice to our community town, which is, as it were, the Athens of Texas, that the motion made by the deceased was in the direction of his hip pocket.

BUT YET A WOMAN.

"JUST one more round," cried the gay crowd.

"Indeed, girls, you must excuse me," said Letitia Brown, glancing uneasily at the clock. "My husband will be expecting me and it is already 11 o'clock."

"Oh, she's tied to her husband's apron strings. Let her go," said a pert little blonde with a hat tilted over her eyes, who was sitting upon the table.

Letitia blushed. All her womanhood was aroused. She had not the moral courage to resist the taunts of her companions.

"All right, girls," she cried, striking a match on her bloomers and lighting a dainty cigarette. "Fill 'em up again."

The attendant brought another saucer of ice cream all around and Letitia soon forgot her waiting husband in the merry click of the spoons and the chatter of lively voices. Outside in the biting cold the thin, shivering form of her husband crouched against the wall, as he listened to the sounds of revelry.

A burly policeman passed and gazed suspiciously at him and then went her way crunching peanuts and twirling her rolling pin. He could stand it no longer and opened the side door of the saloon and entered.

"Letitia," he cried, "come home with me. You have already had enough cream."

The woman staggered to her feet.

"John," she cried, "this is no place for you. Go back to the children."

He turned sadly away.

"Very well," he said. "That good-looking young lady in the house next door is staying with them while I"——

"You wait for me, John Brown," said the lady, sternly. "I'm going home this minute. Good night, girls."

A Good Samaritan Who Nearly Went to Prison

all around. The months passed. Promptly at the beginning of each 30-day period Manuel paid the board. And still no word came from Miss Daniels. Then things grew a little slack at the Saddle Rock. Manuel's living expenses were increasing, and he found himself facing other obligations; there were people of his own blood who needed help.

"I guess the girl fooled me," reflected Manuel, as the weeks went by and all his efforts to locate the entertainer failed. "Perhaps she has forgotten about the baby."

He stopped the $25 payments. Mrs. Darlow protested, for she found herself with a baby on her hands in whom she could claim no legal possession, and the expense of his keep was increasing.

"If you do not pay, I shall bring suit," she told Manuel.

"But you cannot. You know I am not the father of the child; I merely told you that to explain my possession of him."

Mrs. Darlow laughed. "Do you expect any Court to believe that?" she asked. "I have witnesses to prove that you told me the child was your own."

In vain Manuel protested; explained how he had taken the baby as a work of mercy, but only for a limited time. Mr. and Mrs. Darlow filed complaint with the District Attorney.

When the trial opened more than half the spectators were women, many of them eager to catch a glimpse of the man who would disown his own child to save the few dollars a month for its keep. Manuel Fameles was charged with failure to provide for his infant son—a felony.

Manuel was placed on the stand. His eyes searched the courtroom. He had hoped that the publicity given the case might bring Miss Daniels there to clear him. But the girl mother was not present. Under oath the defendant told his story again. As he related the incident in the restaurant, there were snickers and smiles from some of the women. Sarcastic smiles played about the mouths of the lawyers.

Mrs. Darlow went on the stand. She told how Fameles had come to her house with the baby, how he had represented that he was the father of the boy, how they had made the agreement for his board. District Attorney J. J. Henderson dramatically pointed to the babe, and asked that its features be revealed to the jury and the Court. Mrs. Darlow held up the youngster. A hush ran through the courtroom. Eyes strained to catch a glimpse of the features of the child, and went from the infant's face to that of the Greek waiter. There was a striking resemblance, it appeared.

"Altruism," declared the prosecutor, "is a noble quality. But altruism such as is professed by this defendant is unknown except in the realm of fiction!" He called attention to the resemblance between the infant and his self-acknowledged parent, and demanded a verdict of guilty.

After a few minutes' deliberation the jury was ready with its verdict. The foreman stepped forward: "We find the prisoner guilty as charged, your honor!"

On the day when sentence was to be imposed, spectators filled the courtroom. There was little sympathy for the prisoner. The bailiff rapped for order.

"Manuel Fameles, stand up!" commanded the Court.

Judge Stanley Murray was framing the words that would have meant the penitentiary.

Abruptly, in the midst of the silent courtroom, a young woman arose. Eyes turned to her from the side, and spectators in front turned their heads to see the cause of the commotion. The attorneys arose inquiringly. The Judge paused and turned his gaze on the young woman, pretty of face behind the black veil she wore.

"I am Miss Daniels," the girl said, and advanced toward the witness stand.

"I cannot let an innocent man suffer," she said. "I am the mother of this child, and eve[illegible] word Mr. Fameles has said is true."

"I am the mother," she repeated, "but Mr. Fameles is not the father. The father is a former Sacramento man who is now a prominent San Francisco business man. He is now married."

She was pressed to reveal the identity of the father.

"I cannot do that," she said. "I see no reason why a man who is happily mated should be dragged into the case."

To questions of attorneys she convinced all present, including the court, that her story was true. On motion of State Senator J. M. Inman, counsel for the defense, the charge against Fameles was dismissed.

The waiter left the courtroom a free man, and a wiser one. Court, jury and attorneys pressed forward to shake his hand.

Miss Daniels went her way. Baby Clarence had won a place in the heart of Mrs. Darlow. Legal papers were signed giving the unnamed babe over to the Darlows, and his name is now Clarence Darlow.

"INDIAN SUMMER" FIRST NAMED BY FRENCHMAN.

"INDIAN SUMMER" as a term descriptive of our characteristic autumn season was first used by a Frenchman, Crevecoeur, in 1778, according to Prof. Robert DeC. Ward of Harvard University, who read recently a paper on that topic before the American Philosophical Society. Crevecoeur called it "l'Ete Sauvage," of which "Indian Summer" is a fair translation. Early writers thought the term received general use because of the resemblance of this deceiving and transitory season to the instabilities of the Indian disposition.

From a weather man's viewpoint Indian Summer is just a phenomenon resulting from a sluggish movement of the areas of high and low barometer across the country, and the fixation for a time of high barometer in the south with low pressure in the northwest, giving general southwest wind and mild weather. Such a pressure distribution may come at any season. In winter it brings a thaw, in spring the first hot days, in summer the exhausting hot wave, and after the first frost the warm languor of the Indian Summer.

COLLEGE-EDUCATED FARMER'S INCOME LARGEST OF ALL.

AN INVESTIGATION of the income of 554 farmers in one county of Missouri, made by the Missouri School of Agriculture, showed that the educated farmer's income was 71.4 per cent larger than that of the untrained farmer. A survey of the incomes of 635 farmers in seven counties of Kansas, made by the Kansas State Agricultural College, showed that the trained farmer has a greater income by nearly $1000 a year than those of farmers with a common school education.

The United States Department of Agriculture reports a survey of three representative areas in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. It is shown that tenant farmers with a college education received an average labor income $463 more a year than the man with a high school education and $979 more a year than the man with only a common school education.

Cornell University reports that men having more than a high school education received $225 more a year than farmers with a high school education and $529 a year more than farmers with a common school education. They also report that 5 per cent of the farmers with a district school education had labor incomes of more than $1000, and that 20 per cent of the farmers with a high school education had labor incomes of more than $1000. Thirty per cent of the farmers with more than high school education had labor incomes of more than $1000. A high school education is worth as much to the farmer as $6000 worth of 5 per cent bonds. A college education is worth twice as much.

And Now They Are Forging Fingerprints

tric chair on fingerprint evidence. It is said that suits are being filed in several states for new trials by men now serving time on fingerprint convictions. The first of such suits are those of three men serving in Leavenworth Penitentiary for train robbery. They were convicted on fingerprint evidence alone. Under habeas corpus proceedings they now demand their liberty, on the ground that the fingerprint system has been shown to be not infallible.

How a lone prisoner in Leavenworth shook the criminal identification system to its foundations one day a few months ago was told by Convict No. 15733, who prefers to be known by his number only, because his mother and other relatives are living and do not know of his prison record.

"It happened," he said, "when I was acting as confidential clerk in the fingerprint record clerk's office at Leavenworth. Albert Whede, a political prisoner from Chicago, came into the office one day and casually picked up a vase.

"He handed it to W. M. Fisher, head of the fingerprint record office. He asked Fisher to identify the fingerprints which he (Whede) had just left on the vase.

"'What's the idea?' demanded the puzzled head of the bureau.

"'Go on. I'll show you something,' the prisoner remarked, grinning.

"Something in his manner made Fisher send through the prints left on the vase by Whede. In about 20 minutes the clerks had traced down prints in the 100,000 records of the Government. Leavenworth, as is well known, is the nation's 'clearing house' for fingerprints.

"To his astonishment, when the prints were shown Fisher and compared with the records he found they were not the prints of the man who had left them on the vase at all. They were the fingerprints of a man who had died in Leavenworth prison many years before, and who was buried in the prison cemetery!

"Fisher could scarcely believe what he had seen. He hurriedly called the prisoner to his desk and asked him to place his fingers on another object. Laughing at the amazement of the celebrated prison official, Whede did so.

"Again they were 'developed' and showed that they were the prints of the dead man. There could be no mistake. The marks of the dead man and those of the convict were wholly dissimilar—as are all prints, for that matter. Nature does not make two alike.

"Other similar tests were made, during the course of which the prisoner remarked that he was 'getting even with the Government.' Then, to show his skill, Whede reproduced from his own finger tips the prints of other men in the prison—some alive, others dead.

"Whede was privately interviewed by high officials. They demanded an explanation of his method. The prisoner finally consented to explain the operation. Whede is an expert engraver, having been a Chicago jeweler before his incarceration. In counterfeiting fingerprints he uses the photo-engraving method. He photographed the prints of a man—in this case it was a dead man—from the record sheet in the files. Then he made a deep etching of the dead man's prints, showing the telltale ridges, loops, whorls, tented arches, deltas or whatever the prints contained.

"He then covered his fingers with a hard gelatin solution. As soon as the solution 'set' he pressed his fingers upon the line etching, and so had perfect impressions of the dead man's prints at the tips of his own fingers. The solution grew hard as thin bone or tough as whalebone and made the prints very durable.

"Every precaution was taken to keep the matter from 'leaking' beyond the prison walls. The Department of Justice began an investigation. But the facts got out enough to induce three train-robber convicts to bring suit. They had been sent up from Oklahoma on fingerprint evidence. Other suits are to follow."

Now comes the former secret service operative, O. E. Brown, with the demonstration before Pacific coast police officials. Brown's revelations caused even greater consternation than the statement of Convict No. 15733. Brown even moved fingerprints from one object to another, showing how a criminal may transfer evidence. The demonstration was guarded carefully, even from newspaper men.

Among those present was Chief of Police August Vollmer of Berkeley, identification expert and former president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Vollmer's statement indicates that Brown's method was different from that employed by the convict at Leavenworth.

"Brown's system of transferring fingerprints will work," said Vollmer, "but it will not overthrow the entire fingerprint system. It consists of the moving of the finger mark from one location to another.

"When a person's finger is placed on the smooth surface, such as glass or highly polished metals—and many other objects—there is an oily substance deposited, which is usually invisible to the eye, but can be developed by the use of chemicals. It is this mark that is necessary for the transferring of the fingerprint from one location to another. Brown has shown us that he is able to take this oily deposit and place it where he pleases.

"The greatest trouble to result from this discovery," says Vollmer, who is one of the nation's best-known fingerprint experts and who defended the system when the first news came from Leavenworth that counterfeiting was possible—"the greatest trouble no doubt will be that a criminal who knows the secret and wishes to cover up his crime will be able to leave the prints of another person around the place he worked, and then in some way throw suspicion on the innocent man and cause him to come under police investigation, in the course of which his fingerprint record would be taken. These prints would check up with those left on the scene of the crime.

"The fingerprints that the criminal might wish to use could be obtained very easily in an innocent manner, from any object the man touched, and by means of the new method placed on a window, a safe or wherever desired.

"Fortunately, however, the method is not known to more than a half-dozen men at present, and all efforts will be made to keep it a secret of trusted police officials.

"It does not mean necessarily that the fingerprint will no longer be of value as—evidence. Heretofore fingerprints have been accepted as prima facie evidence of guilt. But in the future a great difficulty undoubtedly will arise, as it will make jurors rather skeptical about the value of such evidence, since it is known to be possible to make a successful transfer of the mark of an innocent man.

"Even though the discovery has been quite recent, the police already are perfecting a means to counteract the effect of the new method."

At the demonstration given by Brown before the Berkeley School of Police the fingerprints of Chief Vollmer were transplanted to the scene of a crime, to make it appear that the chief had been about the premises and had something to do with the jimmying of a window, which, in reality, had been opened by an unidentified burglar.

Vollmer has given directions to his assistants to concentrate on methods to defeat the forgery peril. The Police Department at Berkeley has been carrying out a number of experiments with forgery and transference. These studies are being conducted by R. A. Abbey and C. D. Lee, handwriting and fingerprint experts of the department.

What the Fingernails Tell a Doctor

POLICE find fingerprints an invaluable guide to identification, but the fingernails exhibit a record of importance to the doctor.

"The hypersensitive nails are mirrors which reflect the disturbances of nutrition which fever and constitutional diseases have produced in our body," says Dr. William H. Rosenau of Baltimore, after studying many cases in Vienna and at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

"Small superficial depressions varying in size from that of a pin point to that of a pin head occur after about 95 per cent of the cases of acute rheumatic fever and St. Vitus' dance, particularly when heart complications are present," he declares. "These changes are temporary and may disappear, to reappear after a recurrence of the same disease or some other infectious disease.

"A certain area of tissue of the nail root is thrown out of action temporarily by the onset of the fever and five weeks or more later these little depressions are seen on the nail. This period corresponds to the time required for the part affected to grow out from beneath the skin. One may see these changes as late as 15 years after the last attack of rheumatic fever."

On the average a nail completely renews itself in 105 to 106 days. In the child it grows within from 80 to 96 days and in the adult in from 120 to 132 days. The growth is more rapid in grown people than children and slowest in old age. On account of its smaller size, the child's nail is renewed in a shorter time than the adult's, although it grows slower. Nail growth is more rapid in summer than in winter.

Seven-tenths of the cases of active tuberculosis also show these pits, but they are often associated with grooves.

The geophone, an instrument used in the World War to detect earth and rock sounds, made in the construction of military mines and tunnels, may be used in saving entombed miners.

Pope Pius XI as a Mountaineer

mountable had it not been for a narw snow arete, which rose light and nder from the base of the precipice d bridged the gap between rock and glacier.

"The passage was clearly none of the t, but there was no other, and, moreover, the snow, though very thin, was m and almost as solid as ice; and, after all, its whole length was no more than that of the rope between two of us, and, as all experts know, there is no ssage which cannot, in such conditions, be attempted with prudence and safety."

Gadin, the chief guide, asked the ers to hold the rope while he attempted to cross. Standing firmly braced on the rock, and following the guide with their eyes, Monsignor Ratti d his companions grasped their end the rope, ready to assist if the snow bridge collapsed. Gadin accomplished the traverse with what the narrator terms "a truly admirable security and ngfroid," and took up his position on the glacier.

Thereupon the others, one at a time, traversed the same precarious bridge of ow "without any incident but a halt a minute or two right in the middle the writer's acrobatic performance, which halt was imposed on him by Gadn, who no doubt felt the need of taking a still firmer position on the glacier.

"The situation must have been most rious in our brave guide's opinion, cause, when I found the unpleasant alting lasting too long, and asked him whether I might proceed, he replied, without even turning round: 'Monsieur, vous en prie, ne parlez pas; cela me range l'esprit'." (I beg of you, do t talk; it will disturb my mind.)

The gap thus was safely passed, other difficulties surmounted and the Ost pitze, or one peak of the double tooth rock comprising Monte Rosa's sumit, reached, but not until 7:30 p. m. ce to traverse the ridge and reach e other peak, the Dufour Spitze, also, as part of the undertaking, it became cessary to spend the night nearby. Driven by an insufferable wind, the rty descended about 100 feet to a ojecting rock which was almost free m snow.

"The spot where we were was not, ined, one of the most comfortable, and r people who had spent the day as had, it was certainly not as good as e beds and the comforts of the Riffel hotel). On the other hand, it was perctly safe for anyone who was reasonly sure of himself, though it was exemely small.

"It was impossible to take a step in y direction. Anyone sitting down und his feet dangling in space; we d, however, every facility for stampg them, provided we were careful not lose our balance. And these elemenry gymnastics were most necessary.

"The cold was intense; without being le to reckon the exact degree, I may ntion that our coffee was frozen hard, d our wine and eggs resembled it, in at they were neither respectively inkable nor eatable.

"We again had recourse to our chocote, and to a generous quantity of excellent kirsch, which we still had with

"In such a place and at such a temrature, it would have been the height imprudence to allow sleep to overme us. But who would have slept in t pure air, which pierced our marw, and in face of such a scene as we d before us?

"At the height . . . in the cenof the grandest of all grand Alpine ters . . . in that pure transent atmosphere, under that sky of epest blue, lit by a crescent moon d sparkling with stars as far as the e could reach . . . in that sice . . .

"Enough! I will not try to describe the indescribable. Both Prof. Grasselli and I are firmly convinced that nature is very unlikely ever to vouchsafe us a grander, a more magnificent spectacle.

"We felt ourselves to be in the presence of a novel and most imposing revelation of the omnipotence and majesty of God. . . . How could we even think of the fatigue we had endured, much less complain of it?"

The rocky ledge upon which they spent the night was 15,000 feet above sea level, and they had neither wraps nor shelter, but they did not complain. The next day was just as arduous, since they completed the ascent of the Dufour Spitze, forced the first passage of the Zumstein-Sattel, the gap in the watershed between the junction of the Dufour Spitze spur and the Zumstein Spitze, and descended by the Grenz Glazier, to be benighted again on the rocks before they reached a hotel.

Another bit of exciting work occurred during that next day's descent. The party were trying to get onto the glacier, separated from a very steep rock-pitch by a wide crevasse, which stretched as far as the eye could reach. Resting on those rocks, there extended up to the party one of the steepest snow slopes they had ever seen.

Down that snow bank they descended backwards, with faces to the slope, making large holes in the snow with feet and hands and taking care to dig in their axes as deeply as they could. It was like descending a ladder. Next they passed the rock-pitch, "not without difficulty," the writer says. There remained only the crevasse to cross, from which the party were now divided only by a moderately steep slope of good snow. They hoped, in time and with patience, to find a place where the crevasse was somewhat narrower or where there was a firm bridge across.

"Gadin suggested a quicker and an equally safe plan. He first of all, and then the rest of us, moving one at a time and taking the whole length of the rope, while the others stood ready to hold on if necessary, sat down on the slope just above the crevasse, first sliding and then leaping over the chasm, and so finally we found ourselves buried in the soft, deep snow which covered the underlying glacier.

"We had passed a place in a few minutes which might have cost us some hours. When we reached the glacier, we felt like people setting foot at last on a broad, comfortable highway, after wandering on paths of disaster."

A week later Monsignor Ratti started out with three guides to climb the Matterhorn in the day from Zermatt. Conditions not being altogether favorable, he was forced in the descent to spend the night on the rocks. This experience he describes as thoroughly enjoyable. Next year he ascended Mont Blanc, by the ordinary Courmayeur route, but came down by a route which in part at least was new.

Since he became "the first Alpinist Pope," the former Monsignor Ratti has not by any means lost his interest in mountain climbing. Witness the message which he sent to the English explorers on Mount Everest: "May God, who dwells on the heights, bless the expedition."

And a souvenir which His Holiness is reported to value highly is the fragment of rock which members of the Mount Everest expedition broke from the highest point they reached, had handsomely mounted in silver, with the names of all the party engraved on a plate, the whole mounted in a mahogany case and then sent to Pope Pius XI. When he received the handsome illustrated report of that famous exploit in the Himalayas, he sat up quite late at night reading it.

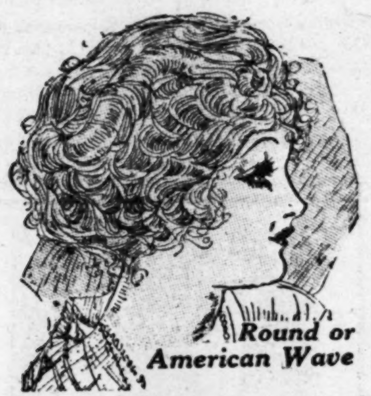
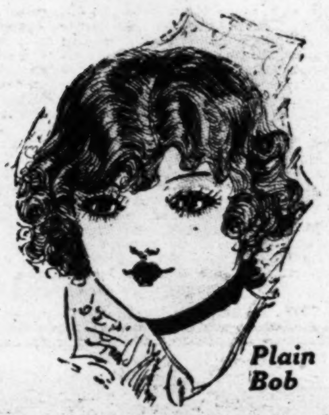
Of the Five Modes of Hair Waving which is Most Becoming to You?

Here are Waves for Every Type



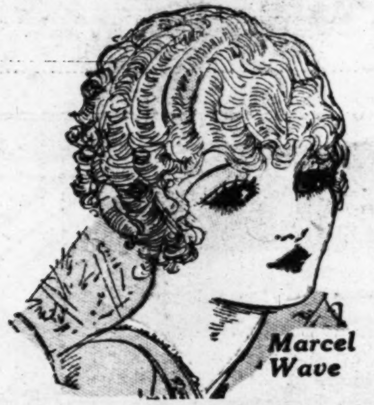
Round or American Wave

For the soft, loose ripples of the Round or American Wave, take thick strands of hair irregularly about the head and wind tightly about the Nell Brinkley Wavers. Comb out with the fine end of a comb for a fluffy effect.



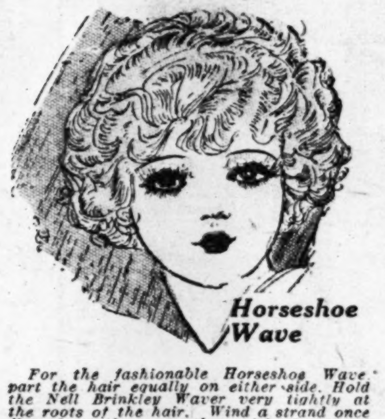
Plain Bob

The Plain Bob is waved by winding the hair around the frame instead of the arm. Begin with the tips and wind upward to the scalp, catching in the ends of the hair as you start winding. The top of the hair may be marcelled.



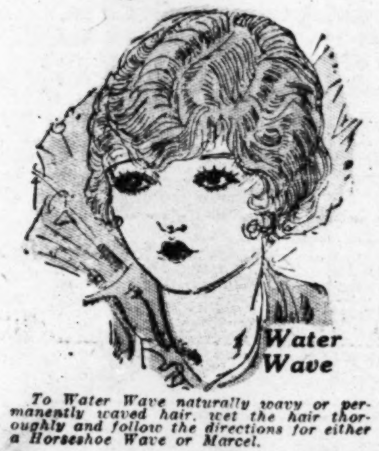
Marcel Wave

For a beautiful Marcel, part the hair in the direction the waves are to run. Holding the Nell Brinkley Waver rigid and close to the head, wind the hair about the arm in flat bands which overlap each other by half. Keep the hair smooth and firmly wound.



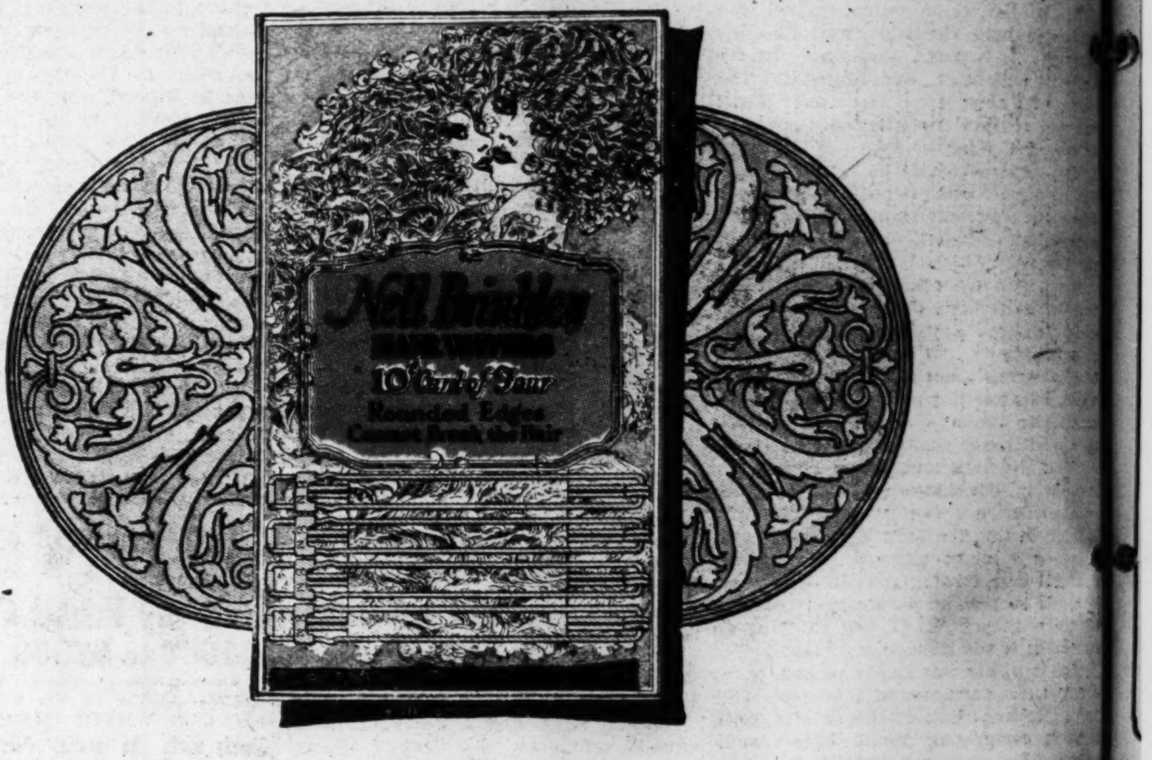
Horseshoe Wave

For the fashionable Horseshoe Wave part the hair equally on either side. Hold the Nell Brinkley Waver very tightly at the roots of the hair. Wind a strand once flat about the arm—then with the strand twisted wind around again. Alternate a flat and twisted wind until the waver is full.



Water Wave

To Water Wave naturally wavy or permanently waved hair, wet the hair thoroughly and follow the directions for either a Horseshoe Wave or Marcel.



STUDY these pictures carefully and select the most becoming wave. Then with the aid of these clever little wavers, make for yourself the waves that will frame your face in a soft, flattering aura.

Ringlets or Ripples—the Nell Brinkley Makes Every Wave

BECAUSE they are so flexible, Nell Brinkley Wavers receive easily a thick strand of hair for a marcel wave, yet their four bars hold with equal firmness a lock of hair for a mere wisp of a curl.

Extra long, these clever wavers successfully wave a longer strand of hair than is ordinarily possible.

Rounded bars permit you to wind your hair as tightly as you please without fear of breaking.

Comfortable to Wear and Quick-Waving

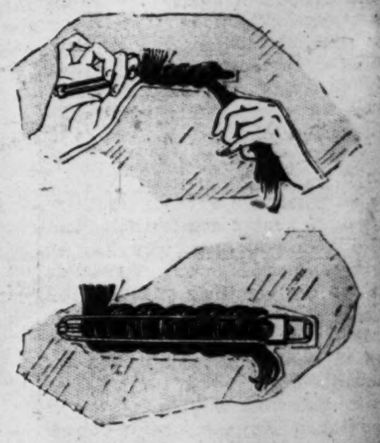
IN twenty minutes Nell Brinkley Wavers will give the hair a lovely, lasting, rounded wave. Overnight, Nell Brinkleys are infinitely more comfortable than the usual waver; they are flexible and have no sharp edges.

Air spaces between the bars permit the hair to wave quickly and keep it fresh when rolled up overnight.

Select YOUR Nell Brinkley Wave

THEN do up your hair on Nell Brinkley Wavers before dinner or bedtime. When you remove the wavers, your hair will fall naturally into the lovely waves which Miss Brinkley would wish you to have.

Remember — only Nell Brinkley Wavers, because of their exclusive construction, can make the five fashionable modes of hair waving.



After combing the hair, moisten it as much as you judge necessary. Wind a strand of hair firmly around the center arm in accordance with directions. When arm is full, close and push the slide forward until it locks.

Different in a Thousand Ways

—is this great summerland

By AN EASTERN BUSINESS MAN

SOUTHERN California is quite different than you may think it is in summer, for perhaps you, too, have thought of it as too warm in June, July and August.

I went there to a business meeting and stayed through July, sleeping under blankets every night.

And then, through curiosity, I looked up the records of summer temperatures and this is what I found:

The temperatures for 44 years—U. S. Government, official readings in a great central city in Southern California are as follows:

Average mean temperature, 44 Junes	66
Average mean temperature, 44 Julys	70
Average mean temperature, 44 Augusts	71
Average mean temperature, 44 Septembers	69

With that great summer weather summer visitors and vacation seekers there find the ideal summer playground of the United States—different in a thousand ways from any other place I ever saw.

It's worth while if you have only two weeks. Change of scene—that's what does you the good. Different country, different foliage, different sights everywhere, almost different people, they're so healthy and happy looking. You catch the same spirit and same look the first day you're there. It's "a little trip around the world" in a short time and at a cost that anybody can afford. I know no better way to invest some of my savings than in a great trip like this, for my family.

The palm trees, the snow-capped mountains, the orange groves, the old missions, the desert, the beaches, the big hotels, the canyons and the wonderful side trips by trolley or automobile amaze you. 4,000 miles of paved motor roads—and such places as they take you to! Unlike anything you've ever seen unless you've been to England, France, Switzerland and Italy.

There's big business there, too, to interest any man. The moving picture industry is a tremendous thing.

The variety of interests, entertainment, rest and recreation is almost unlimited. The golf courses are excellent to play on and beautiful to see.

And summer is the rainless season, so no matter what you plan today to do the next day or a certain day a month later you can do it as you planned.

Motor anywhere you want without rain or dust, and do it any time—even a short vacation is a good one because you always get it—weather never interferes.

These are the reasons why I like this section in the summer better than any other that I know.

You, too, will be enthusiastic when you've had the same fun there that my family and I have had.

Go this summer. That's my advice to people who want real change of scene and a new brand of fun.

At least find out how comfortable, interesting and inexpensive this great trip is. The round-trip fares on all the transcontinental railroads during the summer between May and October, are only a little more than the usual one way fare. Your local railroad ticket agent can tell you. Or forward coupon. Find out now. Then go there and find a summer wonderland.

Letters from all over America tell how this fresh corrective food is restoring health to thousands

Already we have received thousands of them. Hundreds more come every week—letters from men and women of all ages, in every walk of life.

All telling how Fleischmann's Yeast has helped them!

One of the most universal ailments is constipation. Comparatively few people realize what it means to be wholly free from it—the strength and vigor of a body really free from poisons. That accounts for the enthusiasm of many of these writers who have suffered from constipation for years, and now suddenly realize that they are restored to normal health.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants which soften and increase the bulk of the waste matter. This greater bulk gently encourages the intestinal muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

Every such action gives these intestinal muscles normal, natural exercise (something that violent cathartics can never do) and so gradually trains them back to a strong, healthy, active state.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of relieving constipation by naturally exercising the intestinal muscles. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. Recent experiments have shown that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active—that it loses its laxative effect when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Fleischmann's Yeast, like any other food, must be eaten regularly to secure results. Eat at least two or three cakes a day—plain, or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal or the last thing at night. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep several days in a cool, dry place. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast! All grocers have it. Send for free booklet, "The New Found Value of Fleischmann's Yeast in Building Health." The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

Constipation corrected—skin and complexion cleared—run-down condition built up

The following are typical extracts from the letters we receive every day: "Nothing equal to it as a strength builder and corrector of constipation"—"My vitality is back to normal and every morning I get up full of pep and ambition"—"Constipation has completely disappeared"—"The boils disappeared after the first week, and now I never need laxatives"—"I can truly say it has made me feel 100% better than I have felt since I left the farm some 15 years ago."

DODGE BROTHERS
TOURING CAR

Dodge Brothers dealers report a Spring demand for Touring Cars unprecedented in their eight years' experience.

Motorists, it seems, have determined to turn the disappointments of other years to good account by placing their orders earlier.

They have learned that many delightful weeks of Spring and early Summer driving are frequently lost by a failure to act before the peak of popular demand has been reached.

This year it becomes increasingly evident that in spite of Dodge Brothers vast daily production—greater than ever before—this exceptional early buying will develop a definite shortage of Touring Cars.

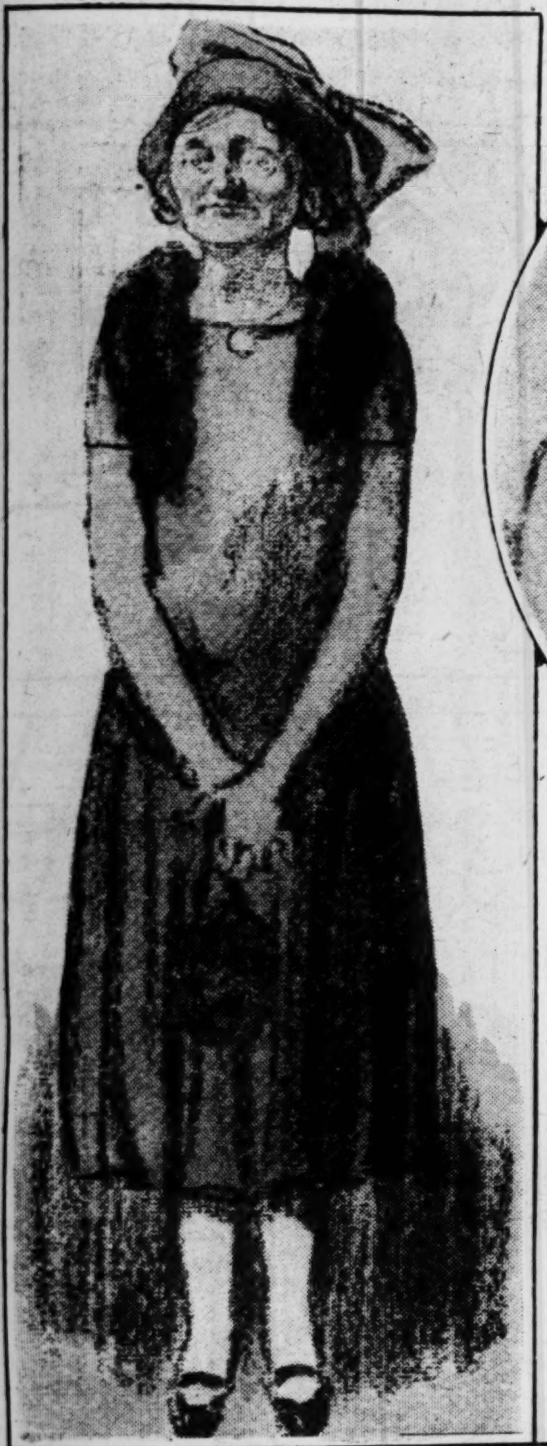
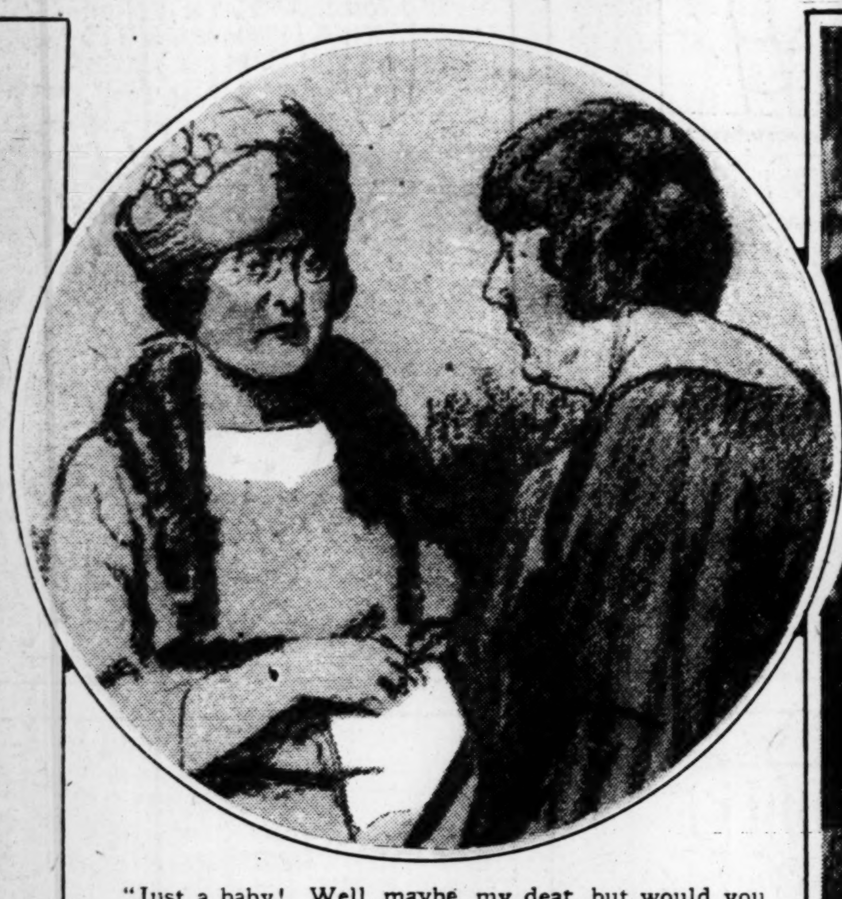
THE QUIET EVENING AT HOME

(COPYRIGHT)

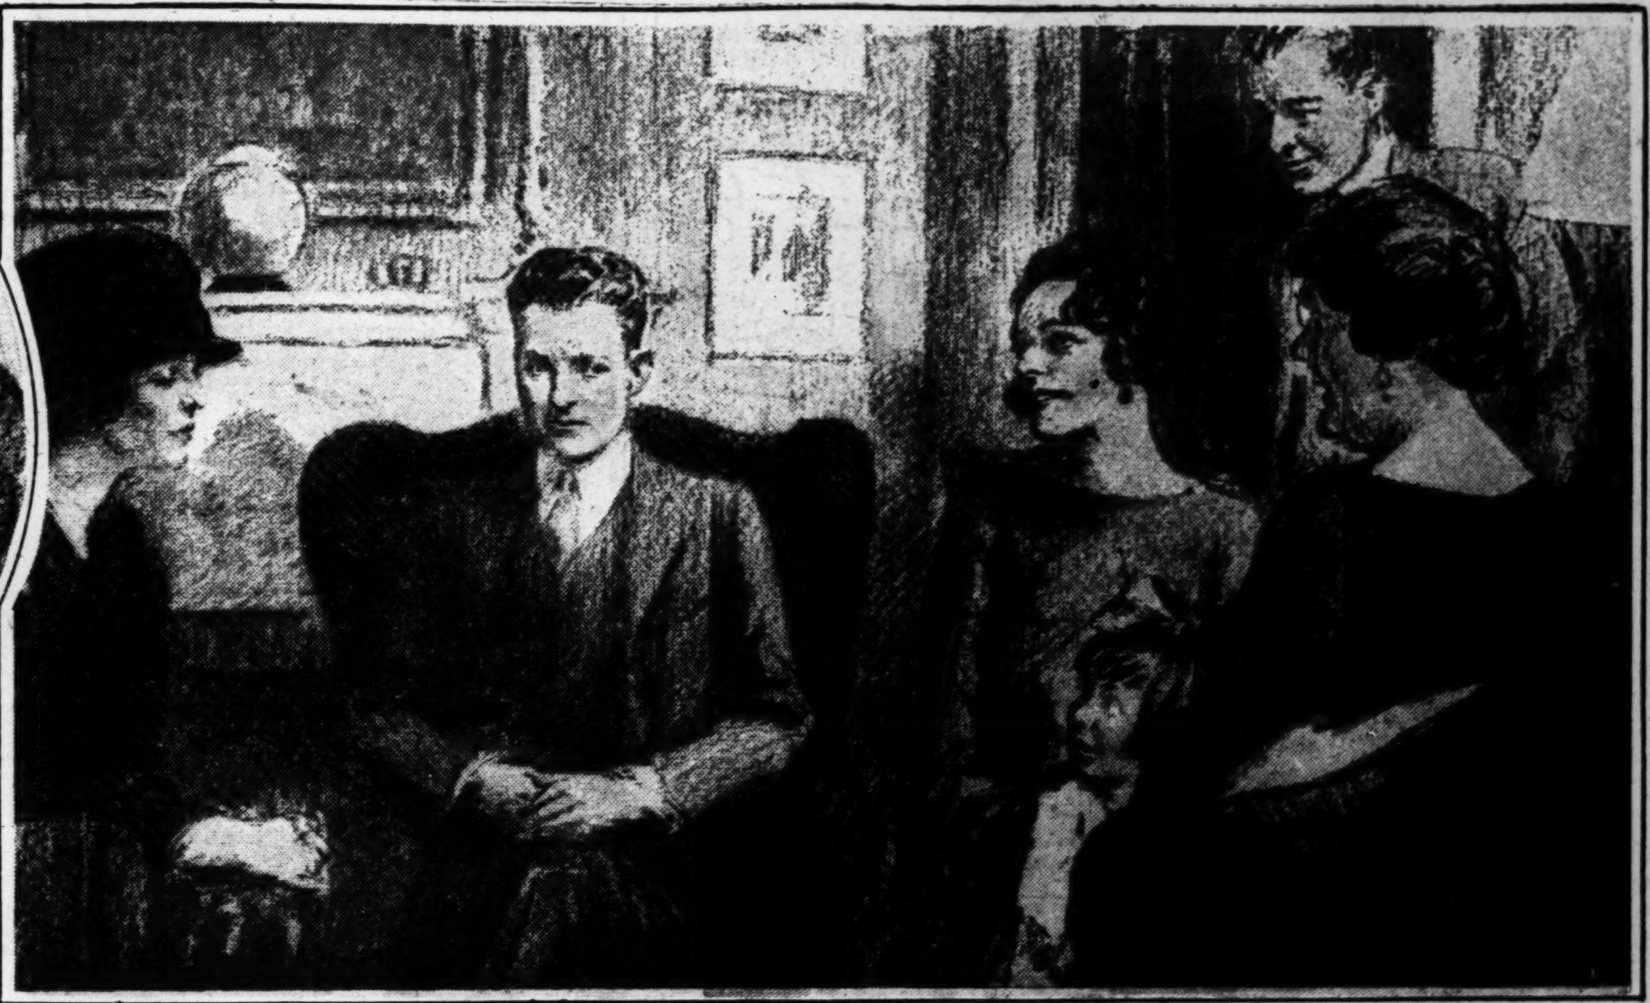
By W. E. HILL



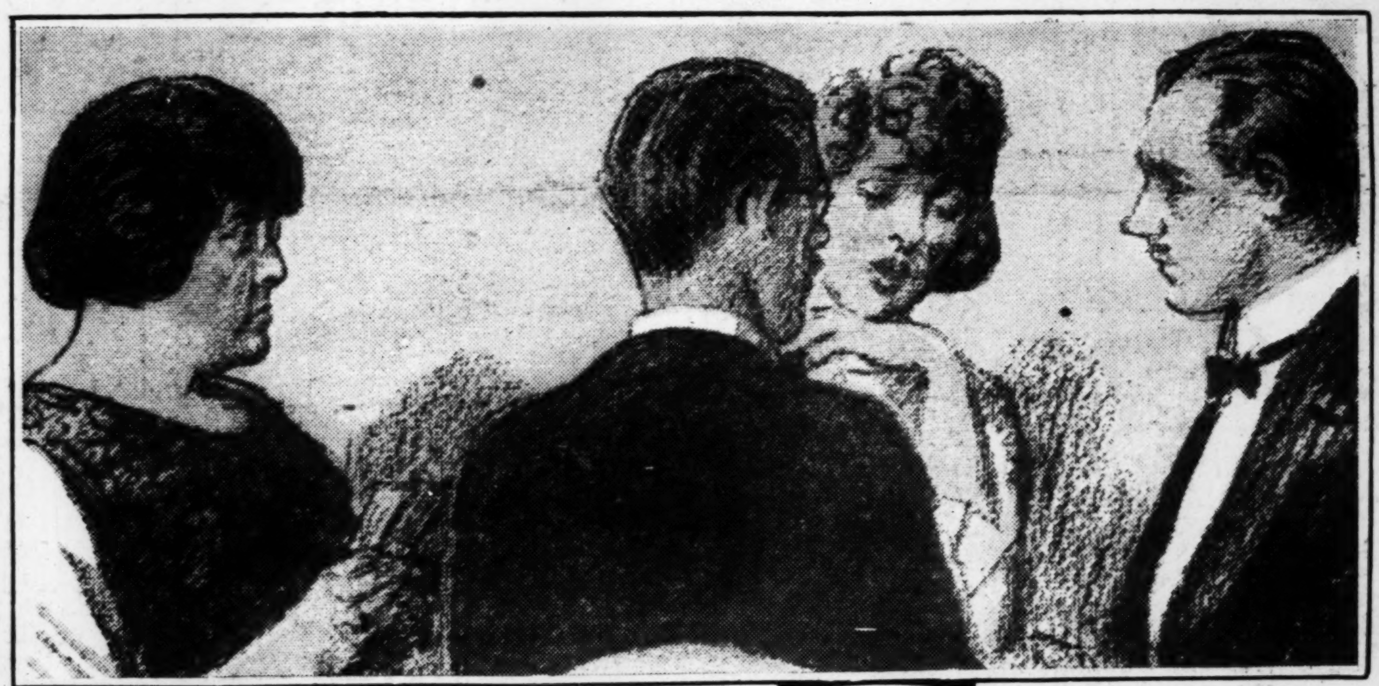


"Just a baby! Well, maybe, my dear, but would you believe it, we missed Georgie from the breakfast table today, and where do you think he had gone? Upstairs to peek at his Aunt Della dressing!" Mrs. Button's darling little boy is growing up. The spring may have something to do with it. Anyhow, his mamma is worried.

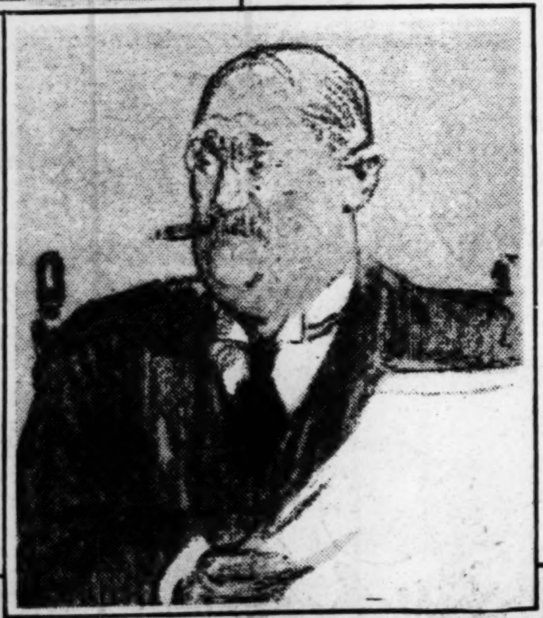
Ingrid, the beautiful Scandinavian girl friend of Tolfta, the Smiths' maid, has called to spend a conversational evening in the kitchen. Ingrid is urging Tolfta not to make a slave of herself. "Don't work too hard, dear, sometimes it doesn't pay," is Ingrid's parting advice.



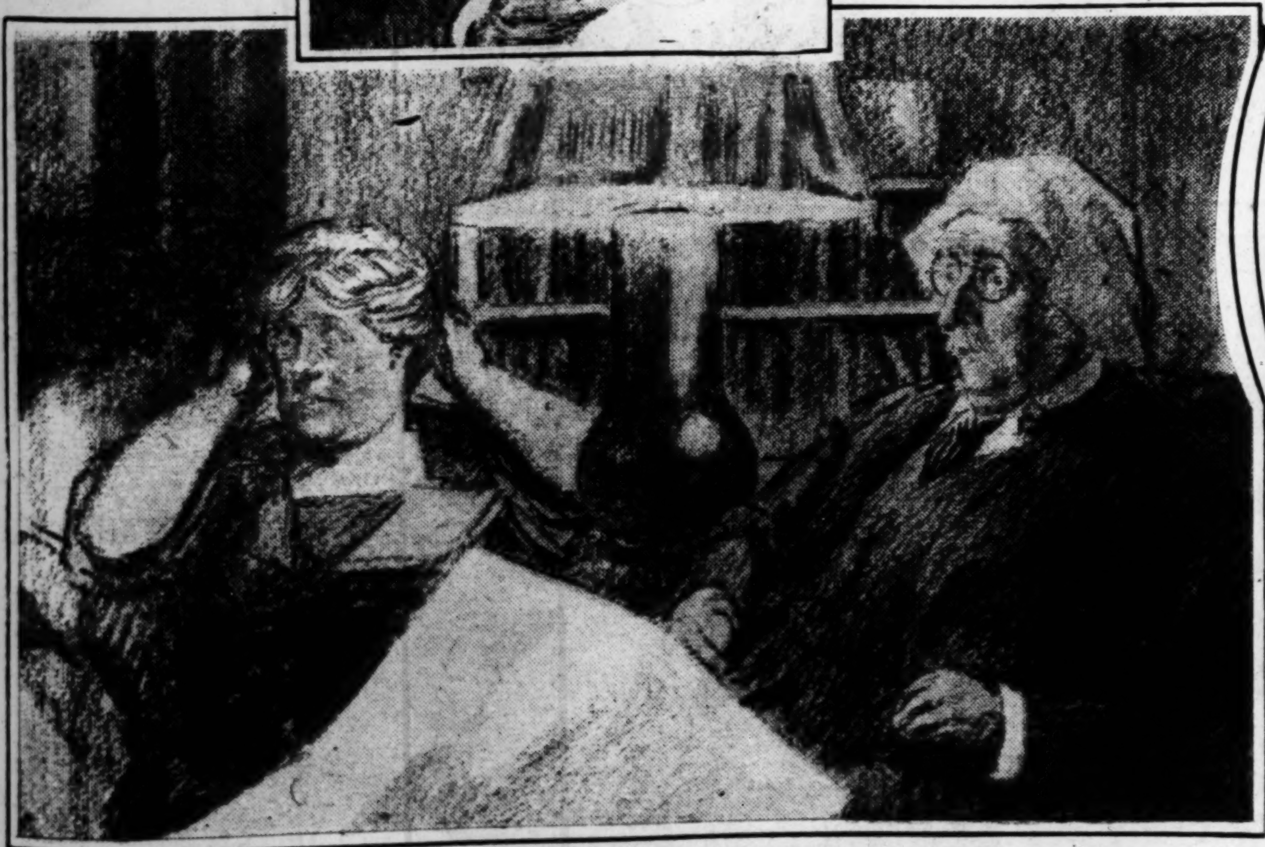
Just a little concert from the new radio to show the callers what it means in an educational way to have a little radio in the home. Over at XYZ, Miss Paula Glowering, the Tantamount picture star, is broadcasting a little talk on the subject of mineral lava. Aunt Mabel, who sits with her back to us, is one of the thousand and one ladies who love to say jestingly, "Well, all I ever hear on the radio are the bedtime stories."



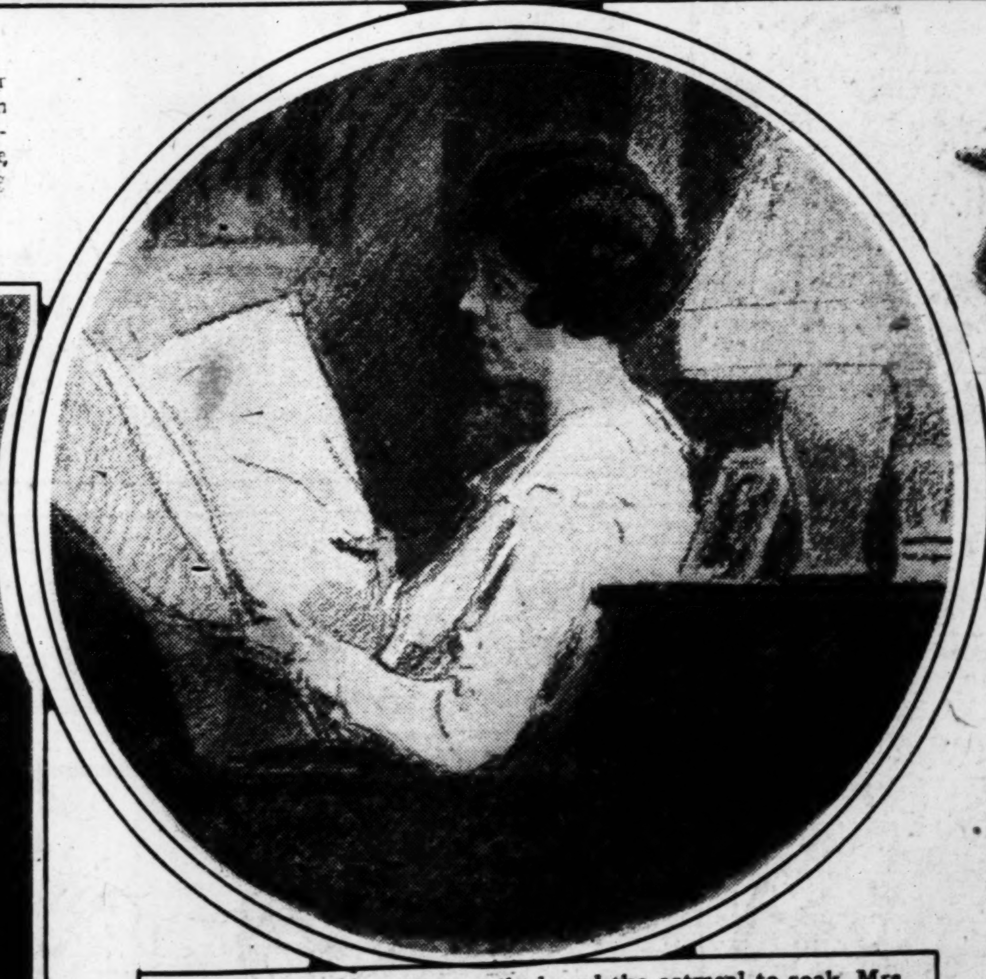
Just a few friends in for bridge, showing the girl from down the street, who will insist on singing to herself while the others are concentrating heavily.



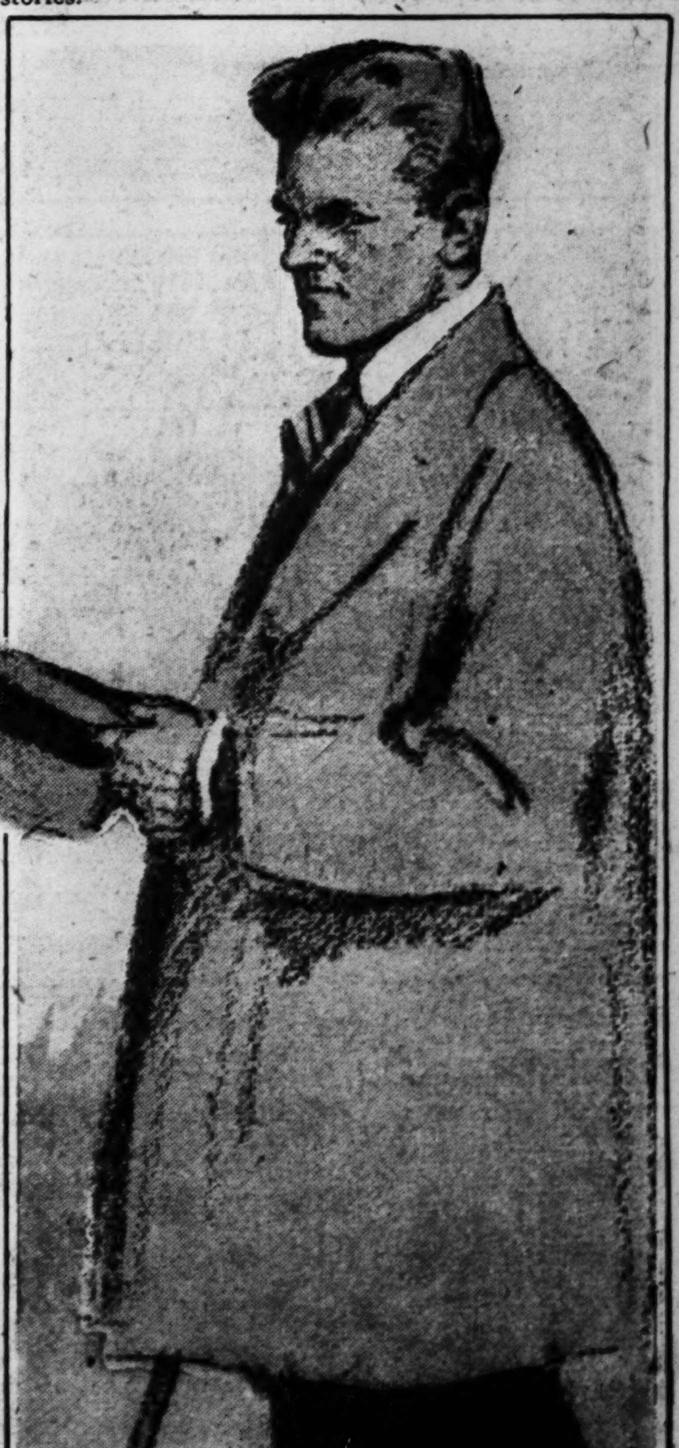
"Oh, Lena, have we any bicarbonate of soda upstairs?" This from the tired business man who dined not wisely but too well on roly poly pudding with brandy sauce.



THE EARLY EVENING NAP. "Oh, my gracious—there's the doorbell! Now who," supposes Mrs. Clarence Downie, "would think of calling at ten minutes past nine! Does my hair look awful, Poppa?"



Having put the children to bed, and the oatmeal to soak, Mrs Battersea prepares to get in touch with the news of the day, as every intelligent citizen of these United States should do. Continued from page one, Mrs. B. is reading all about how the dismembered body, with the exception of the left foot, was packed in a wicker suitcase labeled fragile. Next, Mrs. B. will take note of how Miss Lottie Gurgle, Dallas society pet, would have danced steadily for ninety-nine and one-half hours, thus establishing a record, if she had not gone criminally insane from fatigue at the beginning of the sixty-sixth hour.



The young man who calls to take the daughter of the house to the movies is a very fancy dresser these spring evenings.
